Measure to Curb Holding Groups Passes in Senate

Bill Tightened to Kill All Those More Than 'Once Removed.'

56-32 Vote Caps Battle on Change

Move to Ease Rein Loses by 45-44; Roosevelt Letter Is Read.

By Robert C. Albright.

A drastically tightened utility holding company bill, prescribing the "death" penalty for all holding companies more than once removed from an operating concern, yesterday was swept through the Senate by a 56-to-32 vote.

Limitation of exemptions to "first degree" holding companies came unexpectedly in the last few minutes of debate on an amendment offered by Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho. It was approved without a record vote.

Passage of the bill in a form even more sweeping than when it came from committee followed the dramatically narrow defeat of an amendment by Senator William H. Dieterich (Democrat), Illinois, to eliminate the "death" sentence clause.

By a margin of only 1 vote, 45 to 44, the Dieterich proposal failed. As opposed to holding company elimination provisions of the bill, it would have permitted companies to readjust their corporate structures after January 1, 1938, and extend unrestricted voting power to all classes of shareholders.

A second attempt to strike out the "death" sentence, giving the Securities and Exchange Commission power to determine what holding companies are engaged in practices detrimental to the public interest, was rejected on a ballot almost as close—45 to 43. It was put forward by Senator Augustine Lonergan (Democrat), Connecticut.

Asks No Vital Change.

The bill now goes to the House, where a parallel measure is tied up in Interstate Commerce subcommittees. The House committee is expected to act late this week, or early next.

A letter from President Roosevelt, who has persistently asked dissolution of "unnecessary" utility holding companies, helped speed the measure to final passage.

Addressed to Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, coauthor of the bill, it was read slowly by the Montanan before the crucial votes were taken.

"To verify my talk with you this morning," President Roosevelt was quoted as saying, "I am very clear in my mind that while clarifying or minor amendments to section 11 (holding company elimination) can not be objected to—nevertheless any amendment which goes to the heart or major objective of section 11 would strike at the bill itself and is wholly contrary to the recommendations of my message."

Major stipulations of the bill provide in brief:

1. Elimination of holding companies beyond the "first degree," or more than once removed from the operating utility company.

2. Registration of public utilities holding companies with the Securities and Exchange Commission after September 1, 1935.

3. Holding companies and subsidiaries must divest themselves of control over properties not a part of a single economically and geographically integrated system, beginning January 1, 1938, through reorganization or dissolution, if found by the commission to be detrimental to the proper functioning of such a system.

May Extend Time.

4. Except under definite conditions laid down by the Federal Power Commission, holding companies must cease to be holding companies within the definition of the bill, promptly after January 1, 1940. The Securities and Exchange Commission could extend the date of dissolution to 1942, if it found the extension necessary in the public interest.

5. Making the first assertion of Federal jurisdiction over the interstate flow of power, the bill brings operating utilities under Federal Power Commission regulation, with commission approval required before they can issue new securities, consolidate or transfer their operating properties. The price of energy sold wholesale in interstate commerce is made subject to commission determination and the commission can prescribe the form in which accounts are to be kept.

Jubilant over passage of the bill and defeat of all efforts to curb the scope of holding company dissolution, Senator Wheeler told reporters:

"I think this means the end of all holding companies, generally."

But the committee of public utility executives, which has bitterly fought to modify so-called "destructive" features of the bill, asserted the Senate's action will "lengthen the Nation's breadlines and obstruct the efforts of the American people to achieve the

Marriage Follows Pearl Buck's Divorce

Reno, Nev., June 11 (U.P.).—Pearl Comfort Buck, best-seller novelist, and Richard Walsh, New York publisher, were married here today shortly after Mrs. Buck was granted a secret divorce.

Both women, who lived amicably together in Reno while establishing their divorce residences, charged their husbands with "extreme cruelty," omitting all details from their complaints.

George Whiteley, who acted as attorney for both women, declined to comment on their harmonious matrimonial triangle, other than to say Mrs. Walsh and Mrs. Buck "are old-time friends."

Tilt in Senate Averts Ballot On New NRA

Long's Hand Seen in Clause Requiring $4,000 Jobs Be Confirmed.

By Felix Bruner.

Recessing in confusion until today, the Senate yesterday wrecked plans of Democratic leaders to push through a vote on extension of NRA and so tangled the situation that it appeared probable that the measure may not go to the White House before the end of the week, when the old law expires.

The issue was confused by adoption, in a vote of 43 to 38, of an amendment, offered by Senator Gore (Democrat), of Oklahoma, providing that all Government employes receiving salaries of $4,000 a year or more must be confirmed by the Senate. The amendment has no specific reference to NRA.

Senator Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, acting as Democratic leader in the absence of Senator Robinson, hastily moved to recess before action on the amendment could be clinched by tabling a motion to reconsider. The motion to recess was carried, 45 to 38.

Long Threatens Filibuster.

Senator Long (Democrat, of Louisiana, made the motion to reconsider and Gore, at Long's suggestion, moved to table. This would have prevented any further consideration of the amendment. As the motion to recess intervened, Long declared, "If they want a filibuster, I'll show them how."

Administration leaders were expected to rally their forces last night and to come on the floor today with an effort to kill the Gore amendment on reconsideration. The maneuver, executed through Gore by Senator Long, caught the Democratic chieftains off guard and upset all their plans.

The Senate met a half hour early to consider the NRA measure with an amendment offered by Senator Pat Harrison limiting the provisions that could be contained in a voluntary agreement under the new NRA. Such agreements, under the amendment, could contain only provisions for collective bargaining, minimum wages, maximum hours, prohibition of child labor, and "prohibiting unfair trade practices which offend against existing law or which constitute unfair methods of competition under the Federal Trade Commission act, as amended."

As soon as the Senate convened, the Gore amendment was offered and Senator Borah offered another strengthening the antitrust provision of the measure by providing prohibition of unfair trade practices

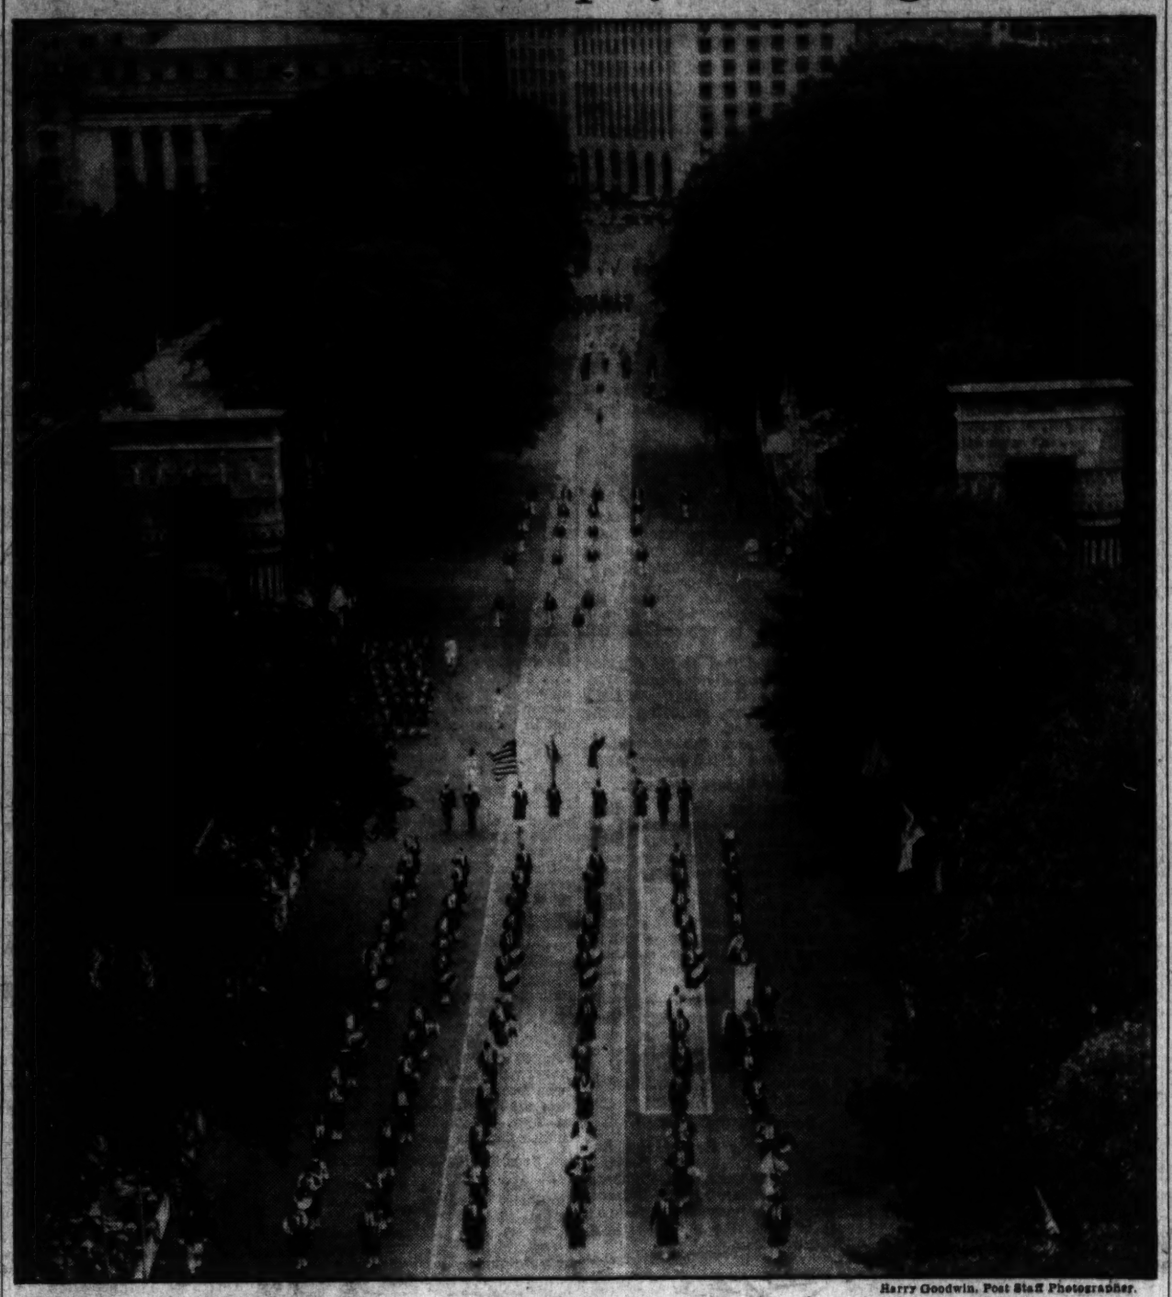
100,000 Thrill to Tramp of Marching Shriners



Harry Goodwin, Post Staff Photographer.

This is the way the big Shrine parade looked yesterday from the roof of the Mills Building at Seventeenth and Pennsylvania avenue, looking down through the Pavilion of Omar.

Auto Parking Ban Is Lifted On 39 Streets

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, yesterday partially lifted the parking ban in the downtown area imposed during the Shrine convention by ordering regular rules back into effect on 39 streets. His act diminished by more than half the area in which no parking was to be permitted during the Shrine invasion.

The order limiting the former large area came after many merchants and residents had complained against it. Maj. Brown declared that a survey conducted during the parade yesterday morning showed that the large scale "no parking area," promulgated by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, appeared to be unnecessary.

C Street Included.

Maj. Brown said that Van Duzer had approved his order with the exception as it applied to Massachusetts avenue. Despite this, the ban was lifted on this street. The complete list of streets on which former parking rules will go into effect immediately follows:

First street between B southeast and the Union Station; Second street between B southeast and California street northeast; Delaware avenue between Union Station and Constitution avenue; East Capitol between First and Second; Maryland avenue between First and Second northeast; B street from Second northeast to New Jersey avenue.

Roosevelt Due to Review Second Big Parade of Nobles Tonight; Mammoth Pageant Is Scheduled for Tomorrow Evening.

By Gerald G. Gross.

With one parade off their silken chests, the 25,000 Shriners who have turned a staid Capital into a topsy turvy playground caught their second wind yesterday in preparation for another march down Pennsylvania avenue tonight and the pretentious pageant tomorrow night.

A crowd estimated at 100,000 watched yesterday's parade, although several thousand of the 52,000 grandstand seats were vacant. The throngs who jammed sidewalks and packed Washington Circle, where the 8,000 marchers disbanded, exceeded the number of paying customers.

The fact that President Roosevelt is expected to return to Washington in time to review both tonight's and tomorrow night's displays probably will stimulate seat sales, officials said.

200 Receive First Aid.

First aid and emergency treatment was administered to some 200 men, women and children who were stricken with the heat, suffered fainting spells or otherwise became ill while the parade was in progress. None was affected seriously.

At least 25,000 nobles have reached Washington, said the registration committee, the difference between this number and the 8,000 who participated in the parade being accounted for by the fact that only 51 of Shrinedom's 159 temples were represented. Between 15,000 and 20,000 nobles from temples which did not send uniformed bodies are here for the imperial conclave.

Hear Message From Roosevelt.

The 700-odd nobles who make up the Imperial Council opened their three-day session at the National Theater, listening to a message sent by President Roosevelt, an address by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings and greetings by Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, Almas Potentate Robert P. Smith and Robert S. Regar, Grand Master of Masons for the District of Columbia.

"You Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, in your devotion to the maintenance of hospitals for crippled children and to other enterprises of philanthropic endeavor are daily attaining to the lofty standards implicit in the titular designation of your members," the President said in his message.

Cummings Speaks of Kidnaping.

Attorney General Cummings, who helped Vice President John N. Garner review the parade a few hours earlier in the absence of the chief, the President, called attention to the new Government buildings and to the work of the Department of Justice.

"The recent kidnaping on the Pacific Coast, which I rejoice to say is moving toward a complete and satisfactory solution, has brought us once again a tragic reminder of a menace that threatens one of the tenderest relationships of life," he said. "Terrible as it is, the crime of kidnaping is but one of a series of crimes with which the Federal Government is seeking to deal."

He expressed the wish that Shriners will indorse his efforts to establish a bureau of crime prevention, "which, with the two existing bureaus, the Bureau of Investigation and the Bureau of Prisons, I hope to integrate into a well-rounded structure to deal with the problem of crime in all of its principal aspects."

Potentate Smith, of Almas Temple, director general of the convention committee, extended cordial greetings to the visitors. So did Mr. Regar, in behalf of all Masonic bodies in the District, and Commissioner Hazen, speaking for the municipal government.

Council's Session.

The opening of the Imperial Council session was sandwiched between liberal doses of sightseeing trips, golf matches, river excursions, luncheons, band concerts, banquets and wrestling bouts but yesterday's piece de resistance was the colorful potpourri of pink panties, thumping drums, austere camels and swaggering drum majors, all welded into one big Shrine parade.

It took two hours and 42 minutes for the procession to pass a given point, according to official word given out by L. Whiting Estes, chairman of the parade and patrol committee. It contained about 100 bands, acres of sheiks, several score horses and a batch of Mandan Indians.

It had "wooden soldiers" and a calliope, a bass drum so big that it had to be rolled along on its side, wrecking crews and a 1910 Oldsmobile. Perhaps it is most effective simply to repeat that 200 watchers required first aid.

Maj. Bown in Lead.

Vice President Garner stood through it all in the presidential reviewing stand in the Pavilion of Omar. Attorney General Cummings arrived late and left early. Imperial Potentate Dana S. Williams, Deputy L. P. Steuart, Potentate Smith and other imperial officers took seats near Mr. Garner after heading the parade. Their wives sat with them.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of Metropolitan Police, was in the first unit. He rode in a roadster with a fezzed bulldog over his shoulder. Next came Commissioners Hazen and George E. Allen, followed by a group of Pennsylvania highway patrolmen and Metropolitan policemen on motorcycles. It was 10:30 when Admiral Harry G. Hamlet, head of the United States Coast Guard and grand marshal of

Nichols Flays Cab Operators For 'Hijacking'

Capitol Hill became the storm center of Washington's taxicab war yesterday as prospects for a new strike of drivers faded. Representative Jack Nichols, irrepressible Oklahoma Democrat, accused the Diamond and Union companies of "hijacking the Shriners," while Representative Andrew J. May (Democrat), Kentucky, warned he would seek a House taxicab investigation.

A group of interested Congressmen, led by Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, planned to advance a resolution today to compel the P. U. C. to place all cabs on the old rates of 20, 30, 50 and 70 cents.

Union drivers, led by Adolphe Hohensee, talked of seeking a meeting of operating companies to demand a compromise minimum of 25 cents.

Three Scales Prevail.

As the situation remained strained on the heels of Monday's one-day cab strike, Shriners and home town patrons found the Diamond fleet operating on a 35, 50, 70 and 90 cent basis, another group charging the P. U. C. approved scale of 20, 40, 60 and 80 cents and still others asking the old prices of 20, 30, 50 and 70 cents.

The movements initiated yesterday, congressional and otherwise, all have as their purpose to restore both harmony among the drivers and a uniform rate.

Nichols urged a boycott of Diamond and Union cabs. He described the situation as an "out-

Alexandria Veteran, Missing With $900, Sought by Police

Moving quietly but thoroughly, Alexandria police are inquiring into disappearance of B. W. Graves, 35, who has been missing since he cashed $900 worth of checks Monday afternoon.

Graves, an employe of the Fruit Growers Express in Alexandria, has madea practice of cashing pay checks for his fellow employes for some time. On pay day Graves would be entrusted with the checks, would take them to a bank in the business section, and return with the cash.

Monday afternoon he left as usual, with checks amounting to between $800 and $900. He did not return. Yesterday police were asked to look for him. Following his trail, they learned that he received the cash for the vouchers and left the bank. Here they lost track of him.

Graves lives just south of Alexandria with his wife and several children. He is a World War veteran and has an excellent record in the community. Police believe he may have been kidnaped and robbed and his body disposed of in the country. This happened recently to J. M. Ellison, who was missing for five days before his body was found, after he had been robbed. Ellison may have been killed near Alexandria, it was pointed out. Police also believe Graves may be suffering from amnesia.

Enthused G.O.P. Now Plans Call For New Parley

Parade's Not So Hot To Rameses in Furs

While yesterday wasn't exactly a scorcher, it was not fur coat weather, and that's why two Shriners evoked so many "Gees!" and "Whews!" during the parade.

They were two Rameses Nobles from Toronto, Canada, and they sat through all two and a half hours of the parade in distressingly heavy fur coats, decorated with hot water bottles, Toronto license tags, bandana handkerchiefs and seat pads attached to the garments.

They cheered so wildly that occupants of the press box, in front of which they sat, temporarily ignored the rest of the goings on to watch their maneuvers.

One of the Canadians was Happy Carroll and the other was Jack Thorne. Staying on the sidelines throughout, they seemed to feel the heat no more than if they had been clad in shirts and shorts.

Creed for '36 Adopted Unanimously at Springfield.

9 States May Meet At Columbus Ohio

Text of Resolutions—Page 4

By Raymond Clapper.

A Staff Correspondent.

Springfield, Ill., June 11.—As a result of party enthusiasm generated at the Midwest Republican grass roots convention, which closed here today, other visiting leaders decided to hold an even larger sectional meeting to embrace East, Central, Middle Atlantic and border States and carry on the vigorous attack on President Roosevelt begun with outspoken language at the shrine of Abraham Lincoln.

Walter S. Hallahan, Republican national committeeman for West Virginia, said that it was hoped the proposed meeting could be held at Columbus, Ohio, about September 15. He said the meeting would exceed the Springfield conference in size.

States to be invited to this gathering will include Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Delaware, Kentucky, Tennessee and three large northern States, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan.

Defeatism Replaced.

This decision was reached at a conference participated in by Hallahan, former Gov. Wilber E. Bruckner, of Michigan; Mrs. Worthington Scranton, Pennsylvania national committeewoman; Mrs. Katherine K. Brown, Ohio national committeewoman, and Mrs. F. G. Tallman, Delaware national committeewoman.

Taken during the closing hours of the grass roots meeting here, this action was indicative of the new party spirit which has resulted from the Springfield conference, replacing the defeatism of the last two years.

Another result was expected to be stimulation of Western interest in the mountain States conference, already set for Salt Lake City. Invitations have been sent out by Ernest Bamberger, Utah Republican national committeeman. The date has not been set. States invited to attend include: Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

Constitution the Issue.

The Republicans have thus seized upon the issue of the Constitution precipitated between President Roosevelt and the Supreme Court and are coupling it with an aggressive personal campaign against the Democratic President and a return to conservative Republican tenets. On that basis they are preparing to wage a campaign in 1936 which may prove historic in its effects.

Republicans leaving the closing session of the conference said that their meeting, undertaken amid considerable skepticism from some of the more cautious national leaders of the party, may well prove to mark the turning point away from the creeping paralysis which had marked the decline of Republican vitality during the Hoover Administration.

Party spirit was so low in the campaign last year that numerous candidates sidled over to seek reelection under the friendly wing of the New Deal. Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, asked the Republican National Committee not to assist him with speakers in his senatorial campaign last year. The Republican leader of the Senate, Senator McNary, of Oregon, failed to take an active part in the campaign. That was the general spirit reflected widely throughout the party a year ago.

Leaders Full of Fight.

Today the leadership is full of fight. Former hesitation about denouncing Mr. Roosevelt directly has given way to the most aggressive personal attacks.

The grass roots meeting served to nail down the Constitution as a basic issue. Republicans built up a picture of Roosevelt as a man who sought by devious ways to pervert it and to introduce collectivism with European flavor. Republicans pounded home the slogan that the issue was Roosevelt versus the Supreme Court.

Following up the bill of indictment with its 18 counts adopted at the Grass Roots convention last night the conference adopted a party creed today, covering the constructive aspect of the program.

Here the Republicans were on less sure footing than in their condemnation of Roosevelt. They spent most of the night and this morning attempting to state their principles in language broad enough to appeal to farmers and wage earners and still remain faithful to the note of conservatism which dominated the earlier bill of

Boland's Fate Is Kept Secret At Rockville

Verdict to Be Withheld Till Mrs. Lyddane's Trial Is Over.

By Karl Schriftgiesser.

A Staff Correspondent.

Rockville Courthouse, June 11. With the secret of "Gambler Jack" Boland's fate locked up in the minds of the three judges hearing the Lyddane trials here, the stage is set for the opening tomorrow of the trial of Mrs. Anne Lyddane for conspiracy to murder her husband, Francis "Slom" Lyddane. This afternoon the three judges sitting in Circuit Court reached a verdict in the Boland case, but announced that they would withhold it until the other trials had been held.

There was much speculation here as to the verdict but none officially connected with the case would comment upon its probable tenor. Thus Mrs. Lyddane will take her place in the prisoner's box tomorrow morning unaware of the status of the man she is said to have hired to kill her husband. It had previously been stated, however, that had a not guilty verdict been returned in Boland's behalf the indictment charging Mrs. Lyddane with the same crime would have been nolle prossed.

Boland on Stand.

The decision to keep the verdict secret came after Boland, who freely admitted in court that he earned his living running a dice game in Washington, had spent several hours on the stand. When the three judges filed in and Chief Judge Hammond Urner announced that they had made a decision, Boland was seated in the enclosure with his slim, brown-haired wife who is 18 years his junior. She seemed disappointed when Boland's counsel, Fred A. Maltby, asked the court to withhold the verdict, but the gum-chewing gambler who hides behind silver-rimmed spectacles was as unemotional as ever.

The second day of Boland's trial was featured by his own appearance on the stand. Fond of big words, which he frequently mispronounced, he was a garrulous and even argumentative witness. Heavy of shoulder, he slumped in the witness chair, calling first "foist" and giving an Al Smith pronunciation to the word radiator. This word was frequently mentioned when he told at length and in an injured tone that the only reason he ever came voluntarily with the police to Rockville was because it was so cold in Washington's Eighth Precinct.

He told a fantastic tale which

Federation of Women's Clubs Backs Scientific Birth Control

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, June 11.—The General Federation of Women's Clubs, in what delegates termed the most radical action since it gave support to suffrage, approved today by resolution the dissemination of birth control information through scientifically regulated sources.

The resolution, asserting "it is of utmost importance to all Americans that the population of our country be vigorous and healthy both mentally and physically, and that proper and intelligent use of scientific contraceptive methods under direction of qualified and reputable physicians is essential to these ends," was adopted by the convention, 493 to 17.

An amendment offered by Mrs. Harve W. Wiley, of Washington, would have placed the federation on record as urging "that the code of law to be administered by the World Court shall not contain any inequalities based on sex."

No sooner had it reached the rostrum than World Court was forgotten, and for a half hour the battle raged over woman's right in the sun.

Eventually Miss Avis Long, of St. Louis, federation peace leader, gained the floor and diverted attention back to the World Court. "It seems far more important," she said, "to provide protection for women and their families than to raise the question of rights. Man and woman suffers just the same during the war."

The amendment was defeated, 142 to 256.

Tax Rate Rise Of 60 Cents Due In Montgomery

Levy for Coming Year to Be $1.50; Budget Totals $3,356, 084.

Montgomery County taxes will be increased 60 cents for the coming year, according to a tentative budget announced yesterday by the board of county commissioners. The budget totals $3,356,084.51, of which $1,368,533.14 represents taxes.

The 1935 levy is $494,114.75 higher than in 1934 and will require a tax rate of $1.50 per $100, as compared with 90 cents last year.

In addition to the direct tax levy, the commissioners' budget provided for receipts of $1,612,500 from the issuance of bonds and certificates of indebtedness, divided as follows: Emergency refunding bonds of 1935, $692,500; school construction bonds of 1935, $850,000, and tax sale certificates, $70,000.

The budget was completed after considerable paring by the commissioners and budgetary aids. The progressive health program under which the county health department has been proceeding was sacrificed to reduce the rate.

Dr. V. L. Ellicott, county health officer, presented a budget of $19,862, which would provide for additional nursing and clinic services, but this was pared to $14,536 at the insistence of Commissioner Charles E. King.

Dr. Ellicott declared the services sacrificed are far more important than the additional milk inspection which is contemplated by the board and said that even the sanitary inspector had better be sacrificed than the nursing and clinic service.

Would Shift Inspector.

Dr. Ellicott pointed out the county had lost considerable Federal and State help by its insistence on appointing Lawrence Tolson as sanitary inspector after both Federal and State health officials had declared he was no qualified. The doctor said he believed approximately $3,500 could be restored to the health work from Federal and State sources if a sanitary inspector acceptable to those bodies were appointed.

Commissioner King vehemntly opposed changing Tolson to the newly created position of milk inspector, as suggested by Commissioner Robert D. Hagner, and held his ground on slashing the health department budget, an action which was concurred in by all except Commissioner Richard H. Lansdale.

The budget provides $85,650 from the general levy and $3,750 from reserved receipts to make a total of $89,400 for public welfare to be administered by a newly created welfare department. In addition $7,800 from the general levy and $1,200 from reserved receipts are provided for the county home, which is to continue to be administered by a member of the board of county commissioners at a salary of $600 a year additional. All other welfare activities are lumped in the administrative functions of the new department.

The estimated receipts and expenditures are as follows:

Appropriations fro mfunds secured by issuance of securities: Bonds and interest, $575,500; public schools, $920,000; purchase of property at tax sale, $70,000; Montgomery County suburban district, (street improvement account), $47,000, total, $1,612,500.

Appropriations from reserve receipts: Bonds and interest, $196,151.83; County Home, $1,200; delinquent tax expense fund, $12,000; engineering, $7,000; extinguishing forest fires, $75,000; police, $19,000; public welfare, $3,750, totaling $242,176.83.

Appropriations from general revenues: Assessors and assessing, $11,800; assistant county agent, $900; attorney, $7,720; auditors, $5,925; board of zoning appeals, $12,000; bonds and interest, $359,773.30; building inspection, $4,050; circuit court expenses, $10,847.70; contingent fund, $60,000; clerk to the county commissioners and assistants, $17,700; county commissioners, $9,000; county accountant, and assistants, $14,660; county treasurer and assistants, $24,000; county home, $7,800; elections, $14,700; engineering, $10,460; extinguishing forest firfies, $125; insolvents, $38,714.10; insurance and bond premiums, $10,000; janitors and elevator operator, $7,920; jail expense, $5,920; juvenile court, $4,500; law library, circuit court, $300; lights and telephone, $7,500; Montgomery County Board of Health, $14,538; Montgomery County Cattle Testing, $2,700; Montgomery County Farm Bureau, $12,000; Montgomery County Home Demonstration, $1,495; orphans' court, $3,000; police, $80,200; police court, $5,700; printing and publishing, $3,700; public schools, $692,691; public welfare, $85,650; repairs, fuel, stationery and supplies, $4,000; sheriff and deputies, $9,650; special clerks, $11,400; social service league, $10,500; taxes in error, $2,220.58; Town of Rockville water supply, $1,050; volunteer fire departments, $15,000 totaling $1,501,407.68, making a grand total of $3,356,084.51 for appropriations.

Estimate of receipts assuming a county tax rate of $1.50: Receipts from issue of securities: emergency refunding bonds of 1935, $692,500; school construction bonds of 1935, $850,000; tax sale certificates $70,000; making a total of $1,612,500.

Receipts reserved for specific purposes: Bonds and interest fund, payment for sub-district debt refunded by county, $64,743; election district road taxes, $40,848.83; liquor licenses, $11,000; liquor profits, $30,000; tax sale redemptions, $71,-560; making a total of $196,151.83 for the bonding interest fund.

County home fund: Sale of farm products, $1,200; delinquent tax expense fund, advertising charges, fees, etc., $15,000; engineering fund, engineering services, $7,000; extinguishing forest fires fund, state department of forestry, $75,000; police fund, building permits, $1,700; civil costs, $600; criminal fines and costs, $7,000; dog licenses, $7,000; miscellaneous income, $400; sheriffs' fees, $2,300; making a total of $19,000 for the police fund.

Public welfare fund: From relatives of inmates, $1,500; race track charity allotment, $2,250; making a total of $3,750 for the public welfare fund, and a total of $242,176.83 for receipts reserved for specific purposes.

General revenue receipts: Taxes, real and personal (at $1.50 per $100), $1,270,-000; motor vehicles, $43,796.25; shares, corporations, $7,960.23; ordinary business, $4,170; nonstock corporations, $1,009.46; utilities, $27,089.87; bank shares, $8,-788.38; corporation shares, $152.15; savings bank, $4,454.69; franchise, $1,000; making a total of $1,368,533.14 for taxes.

Other receipts: Interest on taxes, $10,000; entertainment licenses, $1,800; miscellaneous, $400; making a total of $12,200; unencumbered balances in funds, $115,774.84; making a total of $1,510,-308 in general revenue receipts, and a general total of $3,356,084.51 in receipts.

Embezzler of $2,779 Sentenced to 2 Years

Richmond, Va., June 11 (AP).—After pleading guilty to the embezzlement of $2,779 in State funds, W. B. Rudd, secretary of the Virginia Real Estate Commission, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment today.

Judge John L. Ingram in hustings court took under advisement a motion that the sentence be suspended. The judge said he wished to hear additional testimony concerning Rudd's character and record before acting.

Roosevelt Gets Rawhide as Hoover Did; Issues Sharply Drawn in Springfield Indictment.

By Raymond Clapper

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 11.—If President Roosevelt has kept his radio tuned in on Springfield, Ill., during the last two days, he can understand what his predecessors went through in the White House under the goadings inspired by the genial Charles Michelson, master mind of the Democratic "smear Hoover" campaign.

For the first time, the full swing of the political rawhide has been laid on Mr. Roosevelt personally.

He, Farley and the "fourth-rate professors" have been booed. Roosevelt has been charged with betrayal, deceit, with exerting subversive influence on the American form of government, sabotaging recovery for political purposes and of being the most malignant incarnation of Mussolini, Hitler, Stalin, all combined.

Roosevelt's effort to fight the British attack on the dollar by setting up a stabilization fund has been denounced as a secret maneuver for speculating in foreign exchange. Devaluation of the dollar, now widely recognized as having been inevitable, is denounced as a base betrayal.

The air has been crackling with such phrases as "professorial nincompoops," "men with soft hands and fat heads," "fanatical theorists." Mr. Roosevelt has been pictured as the cross between King Midas and the Archangel Lucifer, who was the master plotter of them all.

Roget's thesaurus must bow in abject humility before this display of inventive castigation.

All of the suppressed impulses of those who have been wanting to kick Roosevelt's shins during the last two years have been released vicariously in the two-day torrent of leather-lunged rending of Mr. Roosevelt. The Republicans lashed him to the whipping post, threw him into boiling oil, hauled him around in tar and feathers in a hysterical orgy of political lynching.

Oddly the Democrats themselves, in the smearing of Hoover, matched this performance in the tanbark arena at the live-stock pavilion.

But behind the scenes it was not so hysterical. There everything was carefully planned and executed.

The indictment was carefully drawn and was the result of previous conference and communication among many party leaders. That was an easy task and one at which the drafters went with glee and a feeling of release from long restraint.

Only when it came to drafting the constructive proposals of stating what the party would do in place of the terrible things that Roosevelt has done did the convention leaders have to give pause. They worked until 5 o'clock this morning and returned to the task again after breakfast. It was a long and painful labor, what obstetricians might call a breech presentation. The kicking foot came first.

For what purpose, and with what possible results?

1. The grass roots Republicans, representing practically the whole Mississippi Valley, have shown fight for the first time since 1932. They have revived the spirit of the party leadership in 10 States. If example is contagious this should have a revitalizing effect on the party organization throughout the country. It is an example of courage, or at least daring, which is slightly different. These Republicans are willing to take chances, to burn their bridges, and to fight every inch of ground. That this meeting will have far-reaching effects upon the party as a whole—so far as the organization is concerned—appears obvious.

2. The conservative tone of the speeches and the resolutions also stamps the Republican organization in the temperamental Middle West—traditional breeding ground of agrarian protest and radicalism—as a safe and sound group, as kindred in spirit with the conservative Republicans of the East, untainted by New Deal heresy.

3. This meeting serves as a gigantic trial balloon. While setting the tone of the Republican debate, it has no binding force and still gives leeway for the party at its national convention next year to swing back to a more moderate attitude if the reaction should be unfavorable. Although this is probable, it seems more likely, however, that the party will not recede from the position taken here at Springfield, but will follow through. Still, the trial balloon aspect should not be completely overlooked.

4. Sentiment expressed here against changing the name of the party, or forming a coalition, has been so strong that this idea, recently nursed by some persons, probably will be dropped. On the other hand, every speaker proffered the olive branch to dissatisfied and anti-New Deal Democrats. Stalwarts like Al Smith, former Governor Ely of Massachusetts, Senator Glass, and Senator Gore of Oklahoma, were mentioned proudly with cheers.

But it was clear that any fusing must be on the part of Democrats and that the Republican party has no thought of modifying its identity, much as it desires the support of anti-Administration Democrats.

5. Of material importance to the organization leaders is the hope that the sentiments expressed here this week will soften the hearts of prospective campaign contributors and lead them to reach for their check books. Since 1932 the party has been poorly nourished financially. Now campaign fund collectors may approach business men with heads up and offer them the opportunity to contribute to a party which is committed to the principles in which most of them warmly believe.

But the great underlying development probably will prove to be the crystallizing of the issue recently projected by the Supreme Court and President Roosevelt's challenge to its NRA decision.

Preservation of the Constitution, and the American system essentially, as it was handed over by the Hoover Administration, a check on further experiment and blocking of any fundamental alteration of the division of State and Federal powers have been so emphatically advocated here that unless public sentiment shows a sharply contrary attitude, this view will gain strength just as did the isolationist challenge to Woodrow Wilson when he came back from Paris with the League of Nations covenant under his arm. The Republican position has strong basic impulses behind it and the advantage is on the side of the Republicans.

In this struggle the future trend of government in this country probably will be determined. Republicans have dramatically and sharply defined the question in the simplest terms. They have thrown the burden of proof on President Roosevelt and put him on notice that he can move ahead only in the face of the most tenacious opposition.

The Republican 18-point indictment of President Roosevelt reminded one spectator here of the proud old mother who said that her boy was a good boy.

"He has been indicted 21 times and never convicted," she said.

Farm Boy, 18, Admits Beating Dad to Death

Springfield, Mo., June 11 (AP).—Lloyd Robinson, 18-year-old farm boy, confessed today, authorities announced, that he beat his father to death and burned the body for $5,000 insurance.

In the signed confession, which authorities said they obtained after two days and nights of questioning, the youth declared the slaying had been carefully planned by his mother, Mrs. Mary Robinson, 49, and their family physician, Dr. W. F. Schlict, 55, Niangua, Mo.

The three were placed in jail at Marshfield, Mo. County Attorney Homer Chaffin said he would file first-degree murder charges. The slaying occurred June 3.

Four British Papers Banned From Italy

Rome, June 10 (U.P.).—The government tonight banned four British daily newspapers from circulation in Italy because of their recent criticism and comment on the Italo-Abyssinian dispute in East Africa.

The papers are the London Daily Herald, Manchester Guardian, Sunday Express and London Evening Standard.

The cross-fire by the press of Italy and Great Britain in recent weeks has been so fierce that Premier Benito Mussolini ordered the Italian press to cease the bitter campaign against the British and resume purely objective comment on the Abyssinian situation.

Robles Kidnap Witness Assaulted in His Home

Tucson, Ariz., June 11 (AP).—Goyo Estrada, 11, a principal Government witness in the June Robles kidnaping case, was beaten by an unidentified assailant in his home last night, it was disclosed here today.

A man entered the Estrada home, struck the boy on the head and escaped. The blow caused a painful but not serious injury.

The boy, a student at the Menlo Park School, received the first ransom letter and delivered it to June's parents two hours after the child was abducted.

The boy repeatedly has said he would be able to recognize the man who gave him the note.

Senate Ballot On NRA Balked By Long, Gore

Recess Follows Victory of Rider to Force $4,000 Jobs Be Confirmed.

"which violate the antitrust law."

The first half hour of the session was consumed by discussion of the Gore amendment. Because of a previous arrangement, it became necessary to consider the holding company bill. Following its passage, the NRA resolution was immediately taken up.

As Long, with his arm around the blind Oklahoman, whispered in his ear, Harrison objected vigorously to consideration of the Gore amendment, pleading that speed was necessary and that the amendment had no connection with the pending measure. Gore, urged on by Long, persisted that the amendment be considered.

Amendment Adopted.

Long took the floor and began what appeared to be one of his typical speeches, favoring the Gore amendment. Senators leaned back in their chairs prepared for a long session. Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, broke into the Long tirade to ask whether the Louisiana Senator "knew of any Senator who is opposed to this amendment."

Long replied that he did not and Tydings said he didn't either.

"Then I'll quit talking," said Long as the spectators, including many Shriners, laughed.

In quick order the amendment was adopted and the recess taken.

Seen as Victory for Long.

Administration leaders believe the amendment as proposed by Senator Harrison will be accepted by the House and that the resolution, if it carries no other provisions, will be speedily sent to the White House. They fear, however, that the Gore amendment, which is seen as something of a victory for Long in his patronage squabble, might tie up the measure for some time.

The resolution would extend NRA, without its principal authority, that of enforcing codes, until April 1, 1936. Unless it is passed this week, all provisions for NRA will expire and the organization will cease to function.

Personnel Cut Assured.

In the debate during the first half hour of the session, Harrison indicated that Donald R. Richberg, retiring chairman of the National Industrial Recovery Board, had agreed to cut NRA personnel from 5,400 to 1,500.

Meanwhile, it was revealed that agents of the Internal Revenue Bureau, acting on orders from Secretary Morgenthau, have completed a partial survey of the effect of the NRA decision on business. It was said that the survey was not intended to be inclusive but was for the purpose of obtaining a quick cross section of the situation. Results of the survey have not been revealed.

Urschel Again Tells Story at Lawyer Trial

Oklahoma City, June 11 (AP).—Charles F. Urschel, wealthy oil operator, told the story of his abduction in July, 1933, for $200,000 ransom in 20 minutes of testimony at the kidnap conspiracy trial of Attorneys Ben B. Laska and James C. Mathers late today.

He had presented the account four times before from the witness stand at other hearings, defying death threats of the kidnap band headed by Harvey Bailey.

Urschel took the stand after Laska, who, with Mathers, is charged with accepting ransom money for the unsuccessful defense of the gangsters, leaped to his feet to enter a blanket objection to the whole kidnap testimony. He was overruled.

Post Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., June 11.—The Maryland Court of Appeals today ruled that it is proper for a woman to expose her knees to a jury as proof of injuries sustained in an accident.

The decision was given in the case of Miss Sylvia Mayson, 24-year-old cabaret dancer, of Baltimore, who obtained a judgment of $3,000 in the Court of Common Pleas last October, in a suit resulting from a collision between a milk truck and a taxicab. The young woman showed the jury scars on her knees resulting from the injuries. This formed the chief of several objections raised in appealing the verdict. The Appellate Court in denying the appeal stated that there was "no impropriety" in exhibiting the scars as proof.

Dr. Ackerman Urges Loyalty To Institutions

Speaker at Richmond U. Sees Destructive Trend in U. S.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., June 11.—"That the power to create implies the power to preserve . . . that the power to tax involves the power to destroy . . . and that the power to destroy may defeat and render useless the power to create . . . are propositions not to be denied."

Impressively repeating these words of John Marshall at the beginning and the end of his address, Dean Carl W. Ackerman, of the Columbia School of Journalism, urged tonight that the Nation be guided by Virginia's traditions of democracy.

Speaking at commencement exercises of the University of Richmond, he called for "the fortitude and the patience to preserve the abundant good in American life before we begin to destroy, section by section, the institutions which have protected us throughout a series of national emergencies since the Constitution was ratified."

"In every country where a dictatorship has been substituted for representative government," Dean Ackerman said, "the change has been preceded by social fermentation manifesting itself in the form of fear, prejudice, hatred, greed, malice and the desire to destroy.

Sees Similar Trend in U. S.

"Today there is an astounding similarity between these manifestations abroad and at home.

"Those who own private property or who occupy prominent social or public positions and who refuse or fail to proclaim their allegiance to all schemes which meet the popular fancy are regarded with suspicion.

"In many colleges and universities there are strikes against academic discipline necessary to successful organized effort. Institutional loyalty is considered old-fashioned and reactionary.

"Just as the World War and foreign dictatorships were preceded and accompanied by social unrest, so is the United States today witnessing similar manifestations as we struggle for recovery and reconstruction. Recently the target of attack was the press, private banking and business. Today it is the Supreme Court and our colleges and universities. Tomorrow it may be the church and the home. Whatever the immediate objective, the ultimate aim is the same—the substitution of the power to destroy for Marshall's political philosophy: 'That a power to create implies a power to preserve.'"

He urged youth to think of security not "in the form of individual safety, but in the preservation of inherited institutions."

"This is not an easy task," he continued, "because it is contrary to the popular conception of security and the function of the modern State.

"Throughout this country today millions of citizens believe that security is something rendered out of the fat of the land and distributed by the Government, or that it may be obtained by votes. Security is not a bond, a bonus, a pension, a treaty or a social system. Neither mass meetings nor bayonets ever have provided or ever will provide that security to which civilized men and women with souls as well as bodies are entitled.

"The continuity of public service in Virginia demonstrates that we inherit a measure of security from our fathers and forefathers in the form of fundamental institutions. These can not and will not be maintained through a period of social unrest by substituting collective regimentation for individual responsibility and liberty."

Bill to Tighten Smuggling Law Wins in House

Act Empowers President to Extend Shore Limit by 50 Miles.

By the Associated Press.

A bill intended to stop the pumping of millions of gallons of smuggled alcohol into the country, with a revenue loss running to at least $30,000,000 annually, won a quick vote of approval yesterday in the House.

The measure would extend the customs jurisdiction of the United States, tighten up enforcement of the smuggling laws and impose harsher penalties.

It would let the President set up customs enforcement areas extending 200 miles along the coast and 62 miles at sea—50 miles beyond the present 12-mile limit — whenever vessels hovering offshore threatened to bring contraband into the country.

Describing an increase in alcohol smuggling to "alarming proportions" in the last year and a quarter, Chairman Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, of the Ways and Means Committee, asserted 40 or 50 smuggling craft now are assembled off American shores.

Scarcely a ripple of debate and even scantier opposition greeted the measure on the floor. By a one-sided voice vote it wa ssent to the Senate, where its backers looked for an equally friendly reception.

To protect it from assault on grounds of unconstitutional delegation of power, specific directions for presidential creation of the customs zones were written into the measure on the floor.

Originally the bill merely authorized the President to establish the areas.

Doughton said the bill would meet the test of internatoinal law, would not stir up foreign animosity and would not injure legitimate commerce.

Nazis Seize Property Of 38 German Emigres

Berlin, June 11 (AP).—The heavy hand of Nazidom fell today upon 38 emigrant Germans, confiscating their property and making them devoid of German citizenship.

The list includes a former Reich minister of finance, Rudolf Hilferding, member of the Stresemann and Mueller cabinets.

Others prominent in the pre-Nazi period whose property was confiscated are Karl Hoeltermann, leader of the Republican Reichsbanner; Kurt Hiller, editor of the radical socialist Welt-Buehne; Erika Mann, daughter of Thomas Mann, writer; Victor Schiff, foreign editor of the socialist Vorwaerts; Berthold Brecht, Walter Nehring and Paul Westheim, radical publicists, and Arthur Wolff, prominent in stage affairs. All had been living abroad since Nazi assumption of power.

Law Closing In On 3d Suspect In Kidnap Case

Hunt for Mahan Pressed; More of Weyerhaeuser Ransom Found.

By the Associated Press.

Salt Lake City, June 11.—Manhunters armed for a finish fight were believed closing in rapidly tonight on scar-marked William Mahan, confident his capture would complete solution of the George Weyerhaeuser kidnaping and bring recovery of all but a fraction of the $200,000 ransom.

Indications were the army of peace officers and Federal agents, all heavily armed, expected to have their quarry soon.

The search for Mahan—32-year-old paroled robber implicated by two confessed members of the kidnap gang held here—ranged throughout the West and along the Canadian border. Hundreds joined in the chase.

Activity at Butte, Mont., indicated, however, that pursuers were confident the fugitive was cowering in some out-of-the-way hiding place there, perhaps with one or more confederates.

Investigators made no secret of their conviction that when Mahan is found some $89,000 of the $200,000 paid by Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Weyerhaeuser, jr., of Tacoma, Wash., for the return of their 9-year-old son will be found with him.

Federal Charges.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced in Washington that charges of violating the Lindberg kidnaping act would be filed against the kidnapers.

Those to be accused he listed as Harmon Waley, 24-year-old former convict, and his wife, Margaret, now in custody at Salt Lake City, and Mahan.

Hoover said the decision to proceed with Federal kidnap charges resulted from an investigation which disclosed that the kidnapers "drove out of Washington and into Idaho" while transferring the young victim from Tacoma to Spokane.

Earlier in the day Hoover said complaints charging violations of the Federal extortion law had been filed at Tacoma against the three. At that time he indicated that prosecution might be under Washington kidnap laws, which carry a death sentence.

Money Recovered.

Finding of $116,000 of the money was announced at Washington today by Hoover, with the recovery of $90,700 in Emigration Canyon, near here.

Breaking under questioning as they had done in implicating Mahan, Waley and his wife told investigators here where the money would be found, Hoover said.

While the hunt for Mahan went forward, a plane was reported ready to speed the Waleys to Tacoma—and to trial for the abduction of the little heir to the Weyerhaeuser timber fortune as soon as legal formalities can be completed here.

The pair, arrested Saturday after Waley's girl-wife was caught trying to pass a $5 bill from the ransom money, presumably were freed from the grip of questioners at the Federal Building here after they disclosed the hiding place of the $90,700.

While Department of Justice men indicated they believed the Waleys and Mahan alone engineered the kidnaping, many developments supported belief expressed in other quarters more persons were suspected.

Reference to Gang Cited.

At Tacoma, it was recalled that even after the three suspects had been publicly named, a Department of Justice official asked newspaper men to agree to withhold all publication of ransom money discoveries "so we can catch the rest of the gang."

Working with the greatest of secrecy, Department of Justice identification agents were locked in the Spokane kidnap "hideout," presumably gathering evidence.

Hoover did not itemize the $116,000 of the ransom money found. Only approximately $110,000 could be accounted for definitely in unofficial checks.

This total included the $90,700 found in the canyon—wrapped in black oil cloth and a gunny sack as investigators said Waley had hidden it; $15,155 left by Mahan in a car he abandoned Sunday at Butte, Mont., when police approached; $4,000 Federal men believe Waley burned in fright and some $300 spent by Waley and his wife.

The kidnapers were not honest even among themselves, if detectives' conclusions were correct.

Investigators said Waley appeared to have been "shorted," having apparently received only $85,000 from Mahan, who took $105,000 and went his way.

Witnesses, the Kidnapers and Where They Held the Boy

Night Club Songstress Shot to Death in Bed

Chicago, June 11 (AP).—Police tonight sought Anthony Madona, 26, a small time gambeler, for questioning in the brazen "witness slaying" of Mrs. Celia Venable, 29, red-haired night club singer, in her hotel bed.

The killer, accompanied by a companion, compelled Harry Keeney, night clerk at the Berwyn Beach Hotel, to accompany him to the woman's room and look on as he fired five pistol shots into the woman's body. When she pleaded "Tony, don't shoot any more," the killer fired again.

Police described Madona as a disappointed suitor of Mrs. Venable. They also sought the other man, who escaped with the killer.

Wife Divorces Mate Who Killed for Her

Chicago, June 11 (AP).—Three years ago Peter Del Page killed a man. He said he did it to protect the "honor" of his wife, Edith, now 22. The courts gave him a 14-year sentence for the slaying.

Today the wife went into court—divorce court. She asked a divorce on the ground that her husband was a felon because he had killed. On the bench of the divorce court was Judge Francis Allegretti—the judge who, when in the criminal court, sentenced the husband.

"It's too bad," said the judge, "that I have to grant the divorce. But the wife has legal grounds."

Guffey Bill Advocates Suffer Blow as Pittsburgh Firm Drops Support.

As the dispute between warring groups of coal mine operators over the Guffey coal bill assumed more serious proportions yesterday, the industry began to look to President Roosevelt for some move to avert the Nation-wide bituminous coal strike scheduled for next Monday.

Operators advocating passage of the Guffey bill, which mine union leaders have indicated might avert the strike, suffered a serious blow yesterday when the Pittsburgh Coal Co., important operating concern owned by the Mellon interests, withdrew its support of the Guffey bill. It was explained that counsel for the company believed the measure to be unconstitutional.

The National Conference of Bituminous Coal Operators, which claims to represent a majority of the country's tonnage, went on record as favoring the measure with amendments. At the same time, the Committee Against the Guffey Bill, which also claims to represent a majority of the tonnage, announced it would test constitutionality of the measure, if it becomes a law.

Meanwhile, it is expected Senator Guffey will move today to obtain Senate consideration of his measure, which establishes a "little NRA" for the coal industry. With the Senate in a snarl over NRA extension and with the necessity of action in both Houses, it appeared doubtful whether the measure can be enacted before the week-end deadline.

There has been no indication from President Roosevelt that he intends to intervene in the situation, but the Administration has repeatedly interested itself directly in labor disputes and both sides in the present controversy hope that similar action will be taken now. In a previous mine wage controversy, the NRA stepped in and obtained an extension of the contract which was included in code provisions. Stripped of its code authority and faced with imminent extinction, it is hardly probable that NRA will take a hand in the present situation.

The amendments proposed by the National Conference of Bituminous Coal Operators would limit the Guffey measure to four years, would provide for Federal purchase of marginal coal land as a reserve and would delay for 18 months the tax on operators to pay for this purchase.

The controversy between mine operators over the Guffey bill is largely sectional. With the exception of the Pittsburgh company, most of the important Northern concerns favor the measure, while companies in the South and West are actively opposed.

The measure would allow price fixing and production control according to specified districts.

Two Boys Burn to Death Caught in Deserted Camp

St. Johns, Ariz., June 11 (AP).—Trapped in a flaming building at an abandoned camp site here, Harold Gibbons, 13, and Norman Holcomb, 11, were burned to death today.

The two boys told their grandparents they were going to spend the night with each other. Instead, they borrowed a candle and decided to stay in an old building at the camp, investigators said. Shortly after 2 a. m., a general alarm was sounded when the flames from the burning camp building on the outskirts of the town threatened destruction to the adjoining New Day Hotel.

Unaware that the youths were inside, volunteers concentrated upon saving the hostelry. Several hours later a man examining the smoldering ruins discovered the bodies.

Fumigation to Stop Influx of Mosquitoes

By the Associated Press.

The mosquitoes which carry dreaded yellow fever germs are not going to hitch-hike on airplanes between tropical countries if the United States Public Health Service can prevent it.

According to Dr. C. L. Williams, senior surgeon, the transfer of mosquitoes by plane has been demonstrated, some of them remaining even after trips of hundreds of miles.

The health service tentatively suggested that "fumigation might be performed at the port of departure and at each port of call immediately before the airplane departs.

Plebiscite to Decide Greek Monarchy Fate

Athens, June 11 (U.P.).—Prime Minister Panayoti Tsaldaris tonight formally announced a national plebiscite definitely would be held on the restoration of King George to the throne of Greece.

Tsaldaris said that the newly elected national assembly would decide the date of the vote for a return of the monarchy, overthrown 11 years ago. The monarchists failed to gain the decisive victory they anticipated in the general elections earlier this month, but were jubilant at the prime minister's agreement to permit the people to settle this long-debated issue disturbing the nation.

Missing Woman Found Dead Along Train Track

Indianapolis, June 11 (AP). — The body of Mrs. Minnie Burns, 58, was discovered today along a railroad track west of this city. She had been missing since May 21, the day her husband, Jerome Burns, 63, was found in their home with wounds that later caused his death.

Sheriff Otto Ray expressed the belief that Mrs. Burns was killed by the same person who shot her husband.

There was evidence in the Burns home of a terrific struggle. Furniture was overturned and blood-stained.

No motive for the attack has been established.

Westminster Pastor Gets 6-Month Leave

Westminster, Md., June 11 (AP). The Rev. John Hess Belt, for three years associate pastor of Grace Lutheran Church here, has been granted a leave of absence for six months and is on his way to San Pedro, Calif., where he will be chaplain for the Civilian Conservation Corps.

A graduate of Gettysburg College and Gettysburg Theological Seminary, the Rev. Mr. Belt is a first lieutenant chaplain in the Army Reserve Corps. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Belt, of Westminster.

Revised G. O. P. May Call New 9-State Parley indictment. It was not an easy task.

When the chairman of the resolutions committee, Edward A. Hayes, of Illinois, former national commander of the American Legion, brought the finished handiwork before the convention for approval today there was a conciliatory note in his explanation that an attempt had been made to present a composite of various viewpoints and that the agricultural declaration especially had been treated with great consideration for all points of view and had incorporated the ideas of former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, one of the principal speakers before the conference.

The farm plank was the subject of considerable executive session debate and the effort to devise compromise phraseology consumed hours of time. Some delegates, especially the Kansans, opposed any flat condemnation of AAA. As a result the final statement of principle skirted around this subject despite rough treatment of it by picked conference speakers.

No Alternative to AAA.

The farm plank indorsed such legislation as is approved by the farmers themselves for maintaining parity prices. It stated that so long as industry receives tariff protection, corresponding benefits should be given to that portion of agricultural products going into domestic consumption. As to how such protection might be given, and the mechanics of it, the Grass Roots platform drafters were silent. No alternative legislative proposal to AAA was offered.

This was the most difficult issue the Republicans had to meet, but one upon which a conference composed of the dominant agricultural States had been expected to assert constructive leadership. They have been living with the problem ever since the war and the failure to offer a specific program was a disappointment to some.

Apparently what the conference leaders sought to suggest was revival of the McNary-Haugen plan in some form. That plan provided for no crop limitation, but for controlled marketing restricting the domestic marketing to domestic needs and dumping the surplus abroad at whatever price it would bring.

Advocated by Lowden.

The plan was advocated for years by former Governor Lowden. It was vetoed by the late President Coolidge in a sharp message condemning it as a measure which would create a vast government bureaucracy and interfere with the laws of supply and demand. His denunciation of it sounded like the Grass Roots denunciation of some of the Roosevelt program.

Hoover also was strongly against it. The Grass Roots Republicans, much as they would like to have embraced this measure once spurned by their own Republican administration at Washington, could not do so directly without being made to look ridiculous.

The handling was significant because it illustrated the dilemma which the Republicans encounter when they pass from denunciation to the task of carpentering something in place of that which they denounce.

So far as the problems of industry are concerned, the chief recommendation was that the anti-trust laws be vigorously enforced.

Collective bargaining, opposition to employment of children in industry, regulation to protect the health of women in industry were indorsed.

Then came this sentence: "We recognize that the security of our citizens demands government aid in the establishment of old-age and unemployment reserve."

Crowd Out for Blood.

Otherwise the planks in the creed conformed to the general tenor of Republican utterances fo rthe last two years—economy with due allowance for essential relief; prompt balancing of the budget; sound currency based on gold, definitely stabilized by Congress — and extended so that stabilization will be international; free growth of industry through the competitive system; a living wage; aid by the Government in finding new outlets for industrial and farm products; breaking down of international trade restrictions; equality of opportunity for all.

If the leaders who drafted the final statement of principles were conspicuous, as they argued through the early morning hours, of the arduous perplexities of constructive statesmanship, the rank and file of the delegates showed no such concern over details.

They had yelled themselves hoarse with the orators who skinned the Roosevelt crowd alive. They were out for blood. They got it and went home happy and hopeful, feeling no doubt, much like Roman lions after feasing ala carte on a few dangerous Christians who thought they were saving the world.

New HOLC Applications Only Half of Expected

By the Associated Press.

Although time for filing expires June 28, the Home Loan Corporation reported yesterday that the number of new applications for loans has been less than half those expected when its new $1,250,000,000 fund became available. And only about one out of three thus far filed has been eligible.

Officials say the situation is due to improvement in the real estate market. Mortgage holders are becoming more and more loath to part with their securities for Home Owners Loan bonds and refuse to consent to reduction in principal. Many are prompted, officials feel, by the prospect of foreclosing on properties and realizing more at resale than could be obtained through Government loans.

Thousands of delegates attending the Republican "Grass-Roots" conference at Springfield, Ill., Lincoln's home town, flocks to his tomb to hear speeches urging them to fight for the "holy cause of liberty."

Creed Approved by 'Grass Root' Republicans

By the Associated Press.

Springfield, Ill., June 11.—The text of the report of the resolutions committee to the Republican "Grass-Roots" conference follows:

DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES.

The conference of Republicans of the Middle Western States offers reverent gratitude to Almighty God for the wisdom, courage and faith of our forefathers who established on American soil and through sacrifice and far-sighted vision have maintained the eternal principles of human rights and human liberties.

We renew our faith in those principles and solemnly rededicate ourselves to the perpetuation for our posterity of the blessings which have accrued to us from their establishment and maintenance.

These American principles are the basis of Republican creed and Republican policies, and we translate these principles into some, but not all, of the policies which we favor. We make no pretense of attempting to write a platform, but we urge the consideration of the matters herein stated by the proper representatives of the Republican party.

REPUBLICAN CREED.

We believe in the Constitution of the United States.

We believe that the Constitutional separation of the powers of government into legislative, executive and judicial should be maintained.

We believe that the maintenance of the independent sovereignties of the Federal Government and the several States, as guaranteed by the Constitution, is vital to the maintenance of our American system of government, and we reaffirm the wisdom of our forefathers who reserved to the States their power over matters of intrastate and local concern and delegated to the Federal Government certain power over specified matters of national concern.

We believe in the maintenance of our American political and economic systems as established by our forefathers and developed over a century and a half of unparalleled progress.

We believe that they are sufficiently flexible to meet all of the needs of a complex civilization while preserving those enduring principles derived from the accumulated experience of mankind.

We believe that our present troubles are not due to any inherent defects in our American system, and can be effectively dealt with within the framework of our Constitution.

We believe that a free press, open discussion and honest criticism are essential to the preservation of free institutions.

We believe in individualism and in individual enterprise, as opposed to communism, socialism, fascism, or any other form of collectivism, no matter in what form it masquerades, whether as a "New Deal," a "Planned Economy," or otherwise.

We believe that our American system of free enterprise is the one above all others capable of providing the great mass of the people with a substantially higher standard of living and greater economic security without loss of freedom through an ever-widening distribution of property ownership among American families.

We believe that the successful functioning of the American system demands that the competitive system be maintained and fostered and that individual initiative be encouraged.

We believe that once economic freedom is destroyed, political liberty must suffer the same fate, and that aside from its contribution to material progress, there is a moral value to liberty which justifies any sacrifice to preserve it.

We recognize and approve the principle of collective bargaining, the representatives of labor to be of labor's own choice. We are opposed to the employment of women in industry so that their health and welfare may be safeguarded. We are firmly committed to the principles that wages in America must be kept consistent with American standards. We recognize that the maintenance of the American standard of living of the wage earner is an essential element of national recovery.

We recognize that the security of our citizens demands Government aid in the establishment of old-age and unemployment reserves.

We are grateful for the valiant and sacrificing service of our men of all wars and pledge ourselves to see that justice is accorded them.

We believe that the resources of our country and the enterprise and industry of our citizens are such that the existence of an immense and permanent class of dependents is as unnecessary in the future as in the past; that Americans will continue to demand work at decent wages, not the dole of public charity, and that this demand can be generally and promptly met once American industry is freed from the uncertainties of indefensible experiments and the attempt to force American life into new and alien molds.

We believe in the equality of economic opportunity for all men, irrespective of race or color, in accord with the humanitarian beliefs of Abraham Lincoln.

We believe it to be our duty to accept the challenge of the defeatists, who would repudiate our country's past, and betray its future, and to appeal to our countrymen to rally to the defense of American institutions.

GOVERNMENTAL POLICIES.

Guided by the principles expressed in our Republican creed, we advocate the following:

1. The immediate adoption of a policy of economy and thrift in Government with due allowance for essential relief expenditures as opposed to the present spending policy of waste and extravagance.

2. The prompt attainment of a balanced budget, not by the misleading method of double bookkeeping, but by the honest method of bringing the expenses of the Government within the limits of its income.

3. A sound currency based on gold and definitely stabilized by Congress, so that individual enterprise may have confidence in the future value of the dollar, in terms of which every man's plans for his present or future must necessarily be made. This is a necessary foundation of enduring national recovery. Every effort should be made to extend this stabilization so that it will be international in character.

4. The immediate withdrawal of Government from competition with private industry.

5. The maintenance of the vitality and free growth of American industry through the preservation of the competitive system protected against monopoly by the vigorous enforcement of anti-trust laws so that small businesses may be preserved and the door of equal opportunity kept open to all.

6. The rigid enforcement of all laws, civil and criminal, to prevent and punish dishonest or unfair practices in business, industry and finance; this is essential to the conduct of legitimate business and the protection of our people.

7. National recognition of the needs of agriculture. Agriculture is a fundamental industry of the United States. No high standard of living can be attained or long enjoyed which is indifferent to agriculture. The farmer combines in one, the functions of capital, management and labor. He constitutes that class, the decline of which, throughout the history of all nations, has been followed by national disintegration. Any program for national security must, inevitably, start with agriculture.

We hold that no economic advantage of agriculture thus far attained shall be surrendered. The farmer is, of right, entitled to a fair and proportionate part of the national income and to receive a parity price for the products of his farm in domestic markets. Recognizing these facts, to endorse the enactment of such legislation, approved by the farmers themselves, as will accomplish such purposes.

While it is recognized that agricultural products will suffer certain price fluctuations, the same as in the case of other business, we hold that the stabilization of the farm market will go further than anything else towards the stabilization of all business and the elimination of recurring panics and depressions with their tragedies of bankruptcy and unemployment. We endorse the statement of Gov. Lowden in this conference that, so long as we have a protective tariff for the benefit of industry we should give to agriculture corresponding benefits for that portion of the products of the soil which goes into domestic consumption. We further recommend research by the Government, looking to the creation of new outlets in industry for agricultural products. The machinery of Federal land bank loans should be used to refinance farm mortgage debts at low rates of interest.

8. Work for the workers. With men out of work, as now, the capital structure of the Nation is not only being impaired but undermined. Wilful, wanton and reckless spending of our people's moneys are likewise undermining the physical assets of our nationals. The vitality and the integrity of our economic laws grow out of the formula of nature's processes. Naturally, there is an economic fraternalism between the farm, industry and all workers. Working together that great trinity can make, and always will make for the peace, happiness and an ever-increasing prosperity of all our people. Radicals and reactionaries, always have, and probably, always will make for unbalancing the advantages of the working together of this healthy trinity. It is for this reason the policies of such trouble-makers never can prevail to the proving point of such process. The Republican party, since Lincoln, progressively gave the working man the full dinner pail, a living wage and a saving wage. We now pledge ourselves to the encouragement of an economic fraternalism between the trinity of farm, workers and industry that will enable the workers to earn and receive work for the workers at protective wages.

9. The breaking down of arbitrary restrictions that throttle world commerce, such as quotas and exchanges restrictions. They, and not reasonable tariffs, are the real enemies of world trade.

10. Continued protection to farm and home ownership, and continued provision, in co-operation with State and local governments, for those that are in need until private enterprise absorbs the present army of the unemployed. We urge these policies as means of ending the depression. By their adoption the wheels of commerce and industry will begin to turn; and relief rolls will be reduced, the unemployed will find work at fair wages through private enterprise, and hope and happiness will re-enter the American home.

Few Comment On Resolutions Of G.O.P. Parle

Dickinson Thinks Program Constructive; McNary Cool on Gold Stand.

By the Associated Press.

Comment was sparse yesterday as congressional leaders gave hurried glances at the resolutions adopted by the "grass roots" Republican conference at Springfield.

Senator Dickinson (Republican), Iowa, said:

"I think that's a very constructive group of suggestions around which we can work for a little while. Of course, other meetings may be held before the convention and make other suggestions."

Some Western Republicans would not be quoted, but thought the sound currency resolution would have been stronger from the party standpoint had it mentioned a "metal" rather than a "gold" base.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, the Republican floor leader, said the resolutions "appeared rather constructive and progressive."

Speaker Byrns: "Of course, I shouldn't comment, because I have had no opportunity to look the resolutions over carefully, but it sounds as if some of them are right in line with what the Administration is trying to do. Balance the budget, for instance."

Chicago, June 11 (AP).—Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Emergency Relief Administrator, today had this to say about the Republican grass roots convention at Springfield:

"That's just the amateur contingent of whereas-ers. The professionals will meet later."

Hopkins, here to address a national conference of bakery owners, said he was unable to determine from newspaper accounts "just what the boys at Springfield are for."

Lincoln, Nebr., June 11 (AP).—Britt Taylor, president of the Nebraska Federation of Labor, today said labor can expect nothing from the Republican "grass-roots" meeting at Springfield, Ill. He said labor was not invited to the convention.

"We wouldn't have attended anyway," he added.

Included in the soloist's program were "Caro mio ben" (Giodani), "Invictus" (Huhn), "Reading" and "Wade in de Water" (Burleigh). Jennie B. Lee presided.

'Old Heidelberg' Slated By Holy Name Society

The Holy Name Society of Holy Name Church will hold an "Old Heidelberg" in the school building, West Virginia avenue and Neal street northeast, June 17 to 19.

There will be entertainment, dancing and bingo. Music and refreshments will be provided each of the three evenings. June 18 has been designated as "homecoming night" for former parishioners.

The committee in charge is composed of the Rev. J. H. Lansinger, general chairman; John Irving, manager; William Toomey, Arthur Emory, John Shanley, Lawrence McVeary, William Miller, Henry Schade and Francis McCallum.

Roosevelt's Son Urges Speedier Tests on Acts

Rulings on Constitutionality Shouldn't Be Delayed, He Says.

By the Associated Press.

Excelsior Springs Mo. June 11.—James Roosevelt eldest son of the President today urged provision be made for earlier determination of the constitutionality of congressional acts such as the NRA.

He charged that Republicans, seeking to regain lost power, are "hiding under the cloak of the Constitution of the United States."

Roosevelt, secretary of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, addressed a meeting of Missouri Young Democrats. He came here from a similar rally at Amarillo, Tex.

"As we all realize," he said, "the NRA, and every other Administration measure passed during the first session of the Seventy-third Congress, was the result of a call to action, because of a major crisis in the life of the individual American. For four years previously that action had been disastrously withheld.

"Unfortunately, the fathers of our country did not provide for the determination by the Supreme Court of the constitutionality of legislative proposals before their enactment. To this is added the burden of slow trial through the courts. Never has this particular oversight been so greatly regretted.

"I, for one, would like to propose that provision be made in the immediate future for an earlier determination of the constitutionality of the acts of the National Legislature."

The President, he added, has obeyed the "opinion of the highest court," and has sought the advice of the people as to "ways and means of retaining the admitted gains of the last few years."

"The issue is clear," he said. "Either we as a party solve these problems to the satisfaction of the people and maintain and go ahead with the great social purposes, which alone can assure permanent prosperity for our people, regardless of occupation, or we drift back into the control of those whose training and heritage would return us to that stage which Abraham Lincoln so dramatically declared to be impossible—'half slave and half free.'

"From the year 1920 to the year 1932, under Republican administrationx, we saw the results in this country of letting a nation accumulate and develop vast economic wealth without at the same time setting up measures to distribute that wealth evenly amongst the entire population.

"Today that same group again seeks to regain power. This time they are hiding under the cloak of the Constitution of the United States. They make the broad assumption, as indicated by their past performance, that our Constitution was created for their sole benefit.

"May we remind them that the Constitution as a public document was largely written by the same heart and the same mind which conceived the broad principles now as always the foundation of the Democratic Party * * * Thomas Jefferson."

Doctors Learn Of New, Deadly Disease of Ear

Medical Group Is Told of Fatal Ailment and Cure by Operation.

By the Associated Press.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 11.—A fatal new ear disease and a complete cure for it—an "earache" which hurts in the eye and has been mistaken for meningitis in the past—was described at the American Medical Association's scientific exhibition today.

The ear trouble is called officially a "new disease entity," which means that it is a complete, separate disease, like pneumonia or tuberculosis. It was discovered by Drs. Samuel J. Kopetzky, Henry K. Taylor and Ralph Almour, of Beth Israel Hospital, New York City.

The trouble is infection of the petrous bone.

This bone is porous. The source of infection in its channels is assumed to be streptococci, which are carried there directly through the blood.

If this infection is not checked, it penetrates deeply into the ear, and finally from there directly into the brain. In the brain it causes death, by meningitis, or inflammation of the brain linings.

Once the infection is in the brain, it is too late to save life. The disease can be stopped and cured by operation, the doctors said.

Dr. Kropetzky and his associates have identified the diseases signs sufficiently to detect 32 cases with aid of X-rays. Of these they cured 26 completely. Five others were caught too late and the victims died of meningitis. In another case brain abscess caused death.

The discovery of a new method of photographing the brain by X-rays was shown by Drs. Herbert Schoenfeld, Claude Moore, and Walter Freeman, of George Washington University.

They inject into the brain a cloud of particles of thorium, a metal, which is about as heavy as lead, but harmless to human tissues.

The thorium cloud etches the brain passages in shadows which clearly reveal tumors and show whether they may be removed safely by surgery.

A shot of compressed air into the brain is the usual method of making its passages distinct under X-rays. The George Washington physicians reported that the thorium appears superior to air, because it causes less headaches and illness. The air takes four days to a week to escape from the brain. The thorium drains out in two hours, unless there is some obstruction. Twenty brains have been injected with the thorium at George Washington without ill effects.

The thorium is slightly radio-active. Whether this radio-activity will be harmful is still a question, but calculations indicate it should be safe.

New Proposal Delays Signing Of Chaco Truce

Hitch Is Expected to Be Ironed Out Today by Bolivia, Paraguay.

By the United Press.

Buenos Aires, June 11.—A last-minute hitch tonight postponed signing of an agreement which would end the three-year Gran Chaco war between Paraguay and Bolivia—bloodiest conflict since the World War.

Signature of a truce formula worked out by mediators from the United States and neutral South American countries had been scheduled for 11 p. m. (Eastern daylight time), and hostilities were expected to cease before dawn. However, Louis A. Riart, Paraguayan foreign minister, declared:

"The signature of the peace formula has been postponed because of a last-minute proposal for a simple armistic without guarantees, instead of the plan agreed to by Bolivia and Paraguay. The new proposal obliges me to consult my government before signing."

Clarification of the truce agreement was expected to be achieved in time for signing some time tomorrow. The original formulate provided for definite cessation of hostilities and immediate convocation of a peace conference, with both sides giving security guarantees.

Major points in the peace plan include:

1—Both armies retain their present positions until demobilized.

2—Five thousand men on each side is the maximum allowed in this "truce force."

3—Recognition by Paraguay and Bolivia of the Pan-American declaration of August 3, 1932, that territorial conquest by arms confers no sovereignty."

4—A neutral peace commission shall fix the lines separating the armies during the truce. The commission already is on the way to the war front.

5—A peace conference will be held immediately by direct negotiations between Paraguay and Bolivia to settle finally all outstanding problems—chiefly a definite border line in the Chaco between the nations.

6—Demobilization of both armies within 90 days after the separating lines have been established by the neutral commission.

Buenos Aires as well as La Paz, Bolivian capital, and Asuncion, Paraguayan capital, prepared gala celebrations markin the armistice.

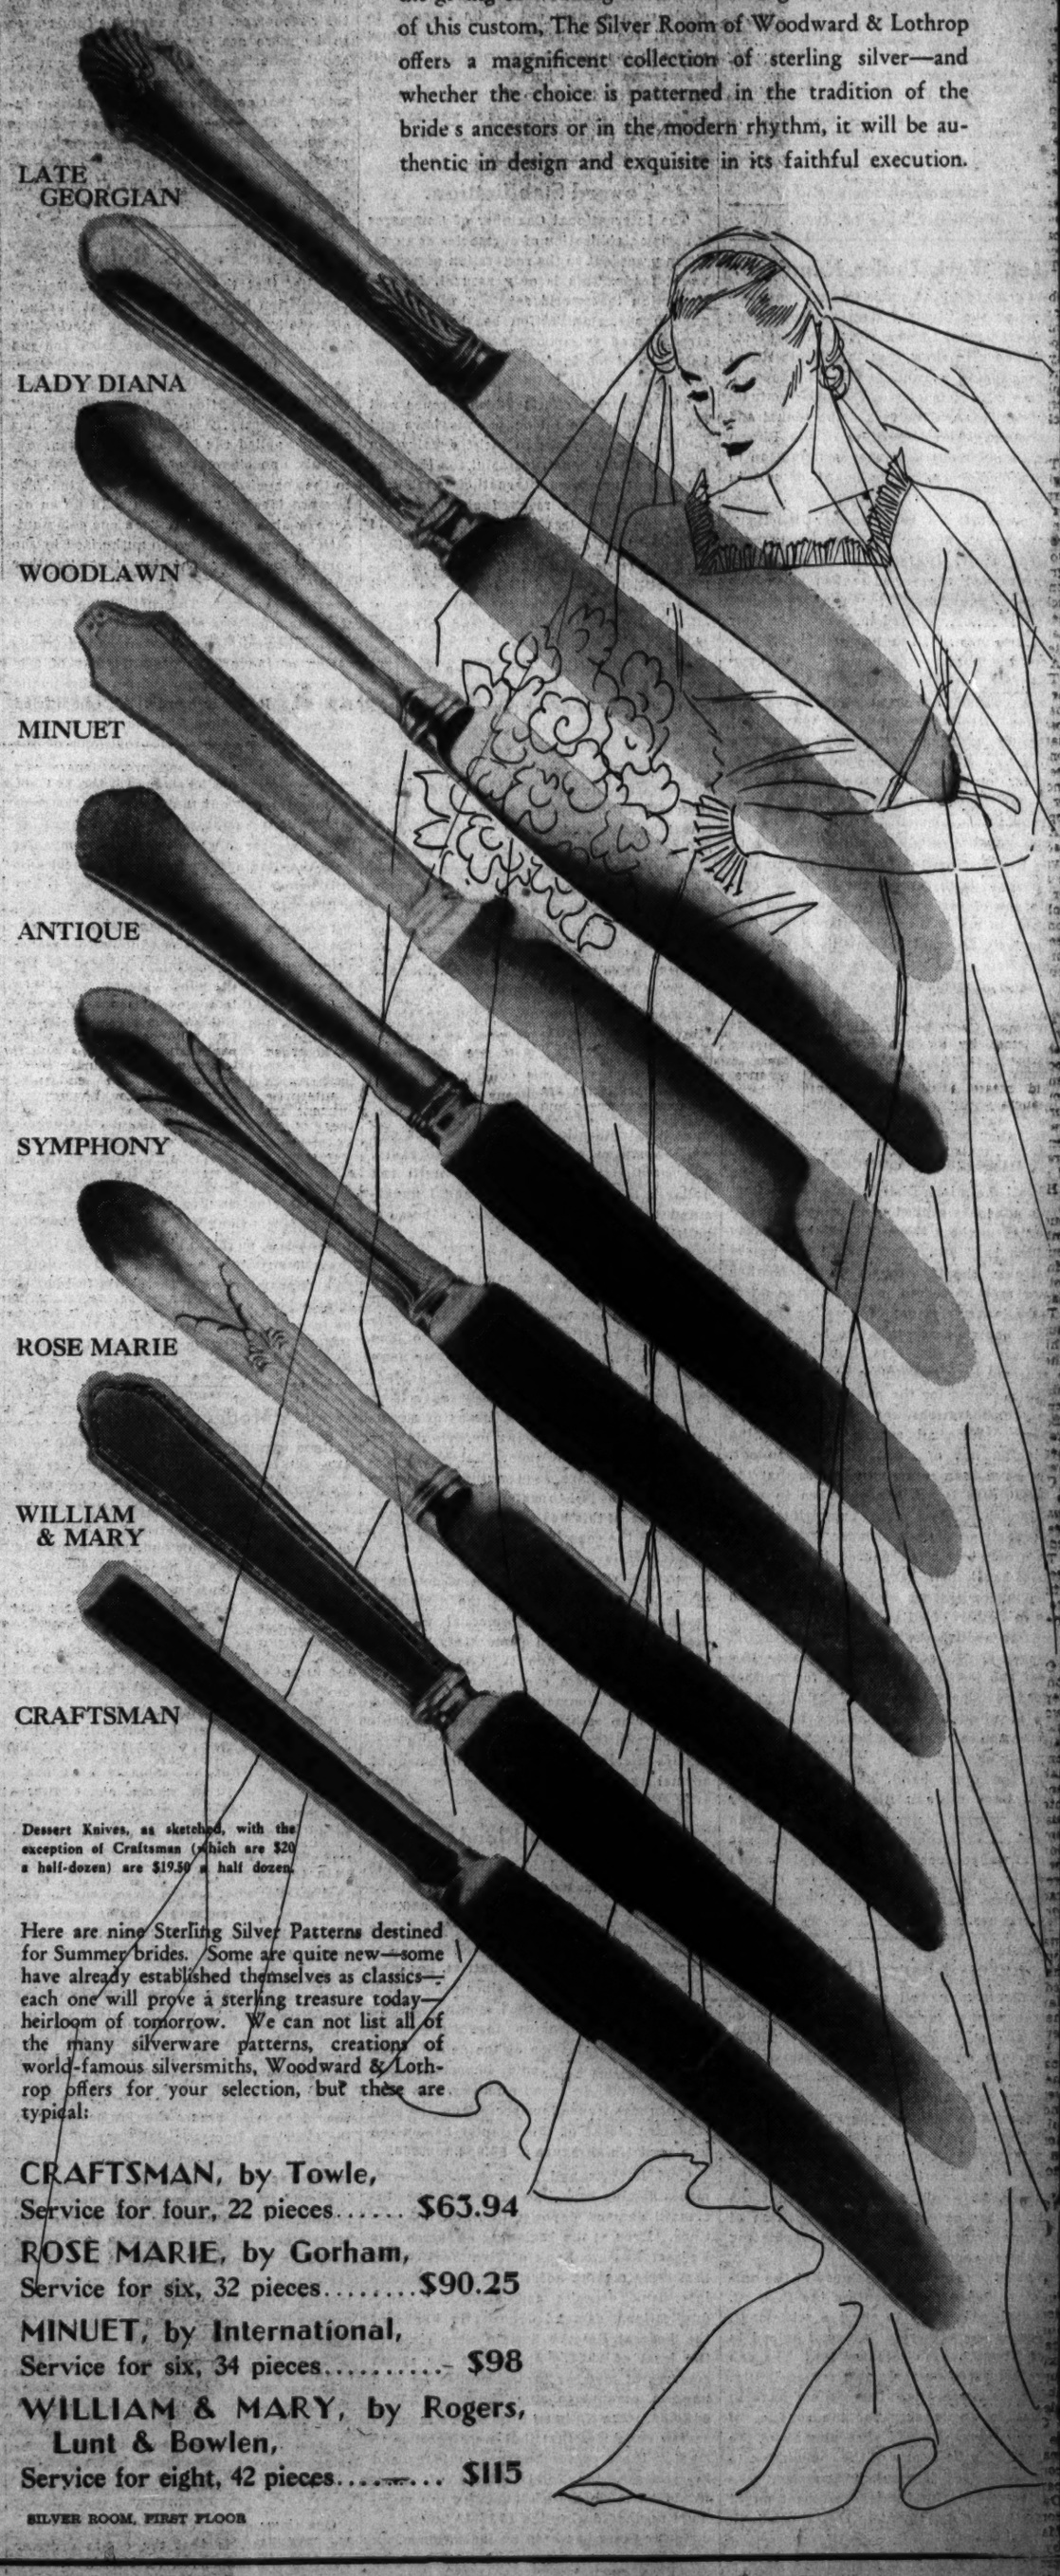
WEDDING SILVER

Almost as traditional as the wedding ceremony itself is the giving of wedding silver. For the gracious observance of this custom, The Silver Room of Woodward & Lothrop offers a magnificent collection of sterling silver—and whether the choice is patterned in the tradition of the bride's ancestors or in the modern rhythm, it will be authentic in design and exquisite in its faithful execution.



Dessert Knives, as sketched, with the exception of Craftsman (which are $20 a half-dozen) are $19.50 a half dozen.

Here are nine Sterling Silver Patterns destined for Summer brides. Some are quite new—some have already established themselves as classics—each one will prove a sterling treasure today—heirloom of tomorrow. We can not list all of the many silverware patterns, creations of world-famous silversmiths, Woodward & Lothrop offers for your selection, but these are typical:

CRAFTSMAN, by Towle,
Service for four, 22 pieces..... $63.94

ROSE MARIE, by Gorham,

Good Work Under Handicap.

A great deal of criticism has been directed at the parole system now operating in the District. However, there is plenty of evidence to show that the Parole Board is functioning as well as can be expected, in view of deficiencies in the indeterminate sentence law and the lack of personnel and equipment. The disposition of the Rheem case should make a further contribution to public confidence in the board, if not in the system under which it operates.

Edmund D. Rheem, former mortgage broker of Washington, has previously been denied parole. Heretofore the board has not regarded the term he has served as sufficient punishment for the fraudulent practices which resulted in heavy losses for local residents. Even now the board believes his punishment has not been commensurate with his crime. But Rheem's prison conduct has been exemplary. The decision to release the prisoner ten months before his maximum sentence expires, providing he can find work outside of the District of Columbia, was made in the conviction that Rheem will make "a serious effort to rehabilitate himself."

The board does not explain its desire to exile Rheem from the District. Presumably its purpose is to remove the prisoner from the scene of his previous activities, so disastrous to many Washingtonians. But for an entirely different reason this step seems appropriate. The District is so handicapped by a lack of parole officers that the activities of convicts released here can not be properly supervised. The board would not be illogical if it made a practice of requiring paroled men to leave the District, thus emphasizing the pitiful inadequacy of its follow-up work.

Undesirable Concealment.

Of all the minor District bills before Congress none has evoked more widespread interest throughout the city than the Dirksen "hidden bar" bill. Now that it has passed the House, the day can not be far off when liquor may be served in Washington without the inane ceremony of closeting the bartender behind a screen while he pours the drink.

It is not only resentment at such prudery which accounts for the public's interest but also considerations of cleanliness and honesty. With all mixing and decanting conducted out of sight of the customer, there have been reasons to believe that the greatest care is not always taken to wash and polish. Also, many complaints have been registered that cheaper liquor than that ordered is often poured in the seclusion of the hidden bars.

To insure passage of the bill, it seemed wise to strip it of all provisions not directly aimed to abolish the need for screening off bartenders. In at least one instance this meant the jettisoning of hopes for another needed revision. A section of the bill would have required all stores selling liquors to observe the same closing hours. This seems only fair and logical.

On the other hand, a provision which would have made it illegal for any other than a licensed dealer to import more than 12 quarts of alcoholic beverages during a month was properly deleted. This would have set up a virtual monopoly for District wholesalers in an unjustified and discriminatory manner.

Congress Shares The Blame.

Congress may well get excited over the taxicab strike, for it is more responsible than any other body for the chaotic condition into which this local carrier service has drifted. Representative Nichols thought the new rate agreement provided a good opportunity to denounce the Public Utilities Commission. But if the Congressman had been in Washington long enough to get acquainted with the local government and its problems he would have realized that the P. U. C. has been reduced to a position of complete impotence so far as regulating taxicabs is concerned.

When the cab strike developed at the outset of a mammoth convention the P. U. C. used its good offices to effect a settlement. Of course the agreement which it helped to bring about has no force of law. The cab operators acted on their own responsibility. Under the present law they do not have to answer to any agency for the conduct of their business. Instead of carping about the seemingly futile efforts of the commission to bring order out of chaos, Congressmen who are responsible for local government ought to hasten the movement to reestablish taxicab regulations.

Representative May complained to the House that he had been insulted, ousted from the cab in which he was riding and compelled to take a street car. But other Congressmen will doubtless agree that behind even such hoodlumism a certain poetic justice lurks. For Congress has forbidden the P. U. C. to regulate taxis; it has permitted the cab business to run wild, with neither protection for the public nor reasonable returns for the drivers. Any student of human nature might have anticipated that the operators would soon or late take advantage of such a situation.

The problem is not one of devising a special system of rates for the Shriners' convention but of effective regulation of the taxi business throughout the year. That can be accomplished only by the Public Utilities Commission. Since Congress has made such a mess out of its attempt to control the taxi business through annual riders in the District appropriation bills, it may reasonably be hoped that the job will now be turned back to the P. U. C., with adequate authority over this as well as over other local utilities.

Toward Stabilization.

The International Chamber of Commerce is urging stabilization of currencies as a condition precedent to the restoration of normal world trade. This is only natural, for the conviction that world recovery will follow, not precede, stabilization has been greatly strengthened as country after country has been forced off the gold standard by conditions not subject to its control.

The desperate efforts which France and the remaining gold bloc nations have put forth in recent weeks to resist devaluation appear to have been successful for the time being. But unless an international stabilization agreement is reached at no distant date, the relentless pressure upon gold prices will no doubt soon lead to another currency crisis. Meantime, all countries—those still on gold and those with managed currencies—suffer from the evil effects of monetary fluctuations which tend to debase foreign trade to a gamble.

It is unquestionably true, as the report of the International Chamber of Commerce states, that a number of fundamental political and economic reforms are required to bring about permanent restoration of an international gold standard and permit its effective functioning. Political difficulties, international debt problems, unbalanced national budgets and a host of related evils call for redress. Nevertheless, progress toward stabilization need not wait on solution of all these difficulties, some of which may require years to effect. Provisional stabilization is not only possible, even under existing conditions, but would itself do much to solve the knotty questions that are supposed to impede stabilization.

Probably the greatest immediate stumbling block in the way of effective action is the hesitancy of Great Britain to enter into an agreement with this country while the future of the dollar remains undetermined. Sir Josiah Stamp says, for example, that "we want it (stabilization) much more than you do, because we need world trade so badly. But stabilization can not come until the dollar is taken out of politics and I understand that it is not yet clear of possible political pressure."

If the English are willing to abandon dreams of driving a shrewd stabilization bargain with this country, there is no reason why they should hesitate to make a provisional agreement, fixing the value of the pound in relation to the dollar. For none know better than the English that debasement of the currency, widely advertised by the Keynes school as a means of stimulating exports and reducing imports, invites emulation. Thus the theoretical benefits of isolated action are soon nullified and the expected gains fail to materialize. Obviously, realization of this has of late begun to penetrate into the consciousness of the Roosevelt Administration.

The past three or four years of monetary instability have emphasized the disastrous results of trade and commercial warfare, carried on with the aid of monetary manipulation. Every day now it is more clearly realized that there can be no stability in international commercial intercourse, and therefore no stability in domestic agriculture or industry, as long as fluctuating currencies interfere with the reestablishment of normal trading relationships.

The Gold Flood.

During May gold imports and receipts of newly mined gold approximated $150,000,000. Imports exceeded $78,000,000 during the one week ended June 5. The current inflow, due chiefly to a capital flight from European gold bloc countries, has been in progress intermittently since early April, with net receipts for that month reaching $148,600,000. Prior to that time—from the date of devaluation of the dollar to the end of March—our gold imports totaled $1,400,000,000 in round numbers. As a result of these stupendous accretions, the gold monetary stocks of this country have risen to a record high figure of $8,900,000,000.

Gold imports and government disbursements flowing back into the banks have increased demand deposits to record proportions. Even at the beginning of March, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York found that after making adjustments to eliminate inter-bank deposits and allow for other duplications, demand deposits in banks of the Federal Reserve System were close to the level of 1929. At present the excess reserves of member banks, swollen by gold imports, amount to approximately $2,500,000,000. The National City Bank's monthly review concludes that if it were possible to employ these excess reserves in loans and investments, the total volume of credit would be much more than twice the maximum reached during the 1928-29 boom.

So far there has been no indication of an expansion of business or an advance in prices paralleling the rise in the total of deposits subject to check. The Reserve Bank of New York explains this discrepancy by noting that the average rate of turnover of such deposits has risen only slightly from the lowest level of the depression. Moreover, the commercial loans of member banks show no signs of expansion. The total loans of reporting member banks at the end of May were well below the figures for a year ago and declines also occurred during that month.

These unusual conditions provide convincing refutation of the argument that the country needs more money either in the form of cash or deposit currency. The banks are bursting with unused funds. The immediate problem which confronts them is how to find safe and profitable employment for their resources. If the available funds were to be more actively employed, complaints about a shortage of purchasing power might soon give way to fears of a "spending spree" that could easily lead to ruinous inflation. The necessity of constant vigilance to guard against such a catastrophe is emphasized as the volume of excess reserves grows with the steady influx of gold from abroad.

The F. C. C. Ruling.

Belief that the Federal Communications Commission has assumed a "trust busting" attitude by its order forbidding interlocking directorates among telephone, telegraph and radio companies is subject to modification. The commission does not seem to have manifested any intention of "cracking down." On the contrary, it is said, the F. C. C. has merely applied the law as it is written.

Only one element of discretion was left to the commission in cases of this kind. The law provides that no person shall be an officer or director of more than one communications company unless so authorized by the commission after showing that "neither public nor private interests will be adversely affected thereby." The commission decided that the directors who sought to hold two or several positions did not prove that application of the primary requirement of this statute would be prejudicial to the public interest. In other words, the commission did not feel justified in exempting the companies from the central provisions of the law.

It would indeed be strange if the F. C. C. deliberately set out to decentralize the communications business. Its recommendation for a merger of the telegraph companies and the Radio Corporation of America is still before Congress. There are few if any utilities in greater need of unification than wire and wireless communication services. Certainly this field is conducive to the development of a monopoly regulated by the Government in the public interest. A glance at the F. C. C.'s advice to Congress is sufficient to indicate that the commission is thinking along this line.

If, therefore, the communications business is gradually moving toward unification, with the approval of the Administration, there is something futile, if not reactionary, about the separation of directorates of parent and subsidiary companies. Apparently the law which the F. C. C. is administering is not in line with its own recommendations. Congress, which is responsible for the law, ought to give close attention to the commission's findings. And in doing so a re-examination of the clause forbidding interlocking directorates in this field would be in order, particularly with a view of examining its consistency with existing State laws.

A Modern Petruchio.

Good-natured concentration on the business at hand may be the means of curbing traffic casualties. At any rate, Capt. J. J. Pitt, head of the police traffic detail of Denver, seems to think there may be something in the theory. To this end, he is compiling statistics by which he hopes to demonstrate the connection between worrying and traffic accidents. He lists the irritants in this cause-and-effect study under three heads—domestic, financial and miscellaneous. Of the first, Capt. Pitt says that "a man who is having trouble with his wife is a menace to safety when he is behind the wheel."

It is quite evident that Capt. Pitt is a very brave man as well as a conscientious servant of the law. But he seems to have overlooked entirely that maxim about discretion being the better part of valor. And in so doing, he runs into manifold complications of unlimited scope.

In the first place, if it should be found that marital woes are the direct cause of any reasonable percentage of traffic accidents, the careless driver would be given an excellent alibi. In telling it to the judge, he could simply lay the blame on burnt toast. Insurance companies might refuse to issue motorists' liability policies unless and until a man could show that his wife is not unnecessarily disagreeable, thereby making him a poor risk. Undoubtedly the question would also arise as to whether such cases should be tried before the Traffic Court or the Court on Domestic Relations.

Capt. Pitt's research should uncover some interesting, if futile, findings. For even if it should reveal that connubial quarrels are responsible for most traffic mishaps, the only plausible reaction to such a conclusion would be "so what?" Or can it be that the captain is more courageous than wise and intends winding up his campaign for safer driving by inaugurating a scheme for the taming of the shrew?

Advocates Blue Hen.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Sick chickens have made the masterful Blue Eagle exceedingly blue because of the decision of the "Nine old men in kimonos," as expressed by our famous funster. The constitutional decision on the NRA experiment has brought that once proud bird to earth and put the country up in the air, so to speak. When we analyze the emblem of the NRA we find he is by nature a wild and predatory bird—just the reverse of the bluebird of happiness. However, he has admirable qualities, in that he is fearless and rises above the crawling creatures of earth. Therefore, we should retain the good features of NRA experiment and so revise it that child labor will be abolished and working hours be shortened. It should include an adequate pension for those over 60 years of age, making it necessary to step out and give place to the younger unemployed, if they desire to benefit by the pension. With child labor and elderly workers eliminated and shorter working hours employment would be more equitably distributed.

Our so-called civilization could and should so adjust the overabundance of our country to supply a good living to all who are willing to work, if greed and dishonesty are properly curbed. We can and no doubt will revise and reorganize the NRA and hatch a constitutional bird for our emblem.

The writer would suggest the useful and domestic hen—not the Rhode Island Red—we do not favor reds as our symbol of recovery. A white Leghorn would be symbolic of purity and production. The hen is a natural mother and will hatch any sort of good egg trusted to her and will protect and provide for the brood until able to scratch for themselves. She may cackle a bit about her achievements, but the rooster crows vociferously merely to attract attention to himself when he has produced nothing. Hence the hen for a symbol of a new NRA. AMANDA S. OLIVER.

"Should Be Revised."

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: Concerning the slaughter of the NRA one wonders why the New York Herald Tribune calls its foreshortened pathway a blind alley down which the people were led! There could hardly have been anything hidden or secreted in either the framing, launching or operating of the measure.

Who doubts that the President knew some of its provisions were unconstitutional, or that the Supreme Court itself was aware of it, and knew that he was. They both must have known it, and each have been aware that the other knew it. All hypothetical, of course. It is doubtful if it all belongs on the President's doorstep, though he is not one to disclaim. Reconstructing the crime, it may be assumed that if these facts existed, both Administration and court deemed it wise at the most critical period of the depression to permit its use in the interest of expediency just as Federal bonds were protected in the gold decision. The President and the court are the servants of the people, and the people made the Constitution.

Why praise the court now for its denial of a seemingly parallel petition, unanimous on this and divided on the former, and after so long an interval in which the NRA had become a powerful adjunct to and factor in the country's commercial scheme? Accompanied as it was by all the pomp and circumstance of a Supreme Court decision and as sudden as a paralytic stroke!

Some workable modification of the NRA to last through the present Administration is probably being drafted today. For the NRA is not a failure, but merely unconstitutional, and by "merely" is meant that the Constitution is a creature of the people and should be revised to conform to the present needs of the people. Puerto Rican Facts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of June 9, under the caption, "West Indian Wages," a Sacramento, Calif., correspondent writes that a Puerto Rican Negro family of three persons would be willing to work in America for a combined wage of $6 monthly. Your correspondent further states: "Can we afford to grant citizenship to 1,500,000, largely Negroids of this type?"

Apart from the slur cast on all the people of Puerto Rico by the above remark, it is a grave misstatement of fact. Whether they were born before or after Spain ceded Puerto Rico to the United States citizenship was granted to its inhabitants by the organic act of 1917.

To anyone who has lived in the island it is apparent that Puerto Rico is not "largely Negroid." A percentage of the population consists of Spanish, Corsican, French, German and other racial stocks, without any mixture of Negro blood. There are also many Americans who have settled permanently in Puerto Rico and intermarried with natives who are proud of their pure Aryan descent.

Army Experience.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of June 6 you carry a letter entitled "Bonus Advocate" in which the writer advocates paying the veterans not only the $1,000 bonus but "also $50 a month" for risking their lives. It was not necessary for him to add "I am not a World War veteran."

I would in no way belittle the work of the American overseas veteran during the World War and as I was in overseas service during 1918 and 1919 I had an opportunity to see something of the armies in the field. The American veteran was better fed and better cared for than any other soldier in the field.

How often have I heard the American doughboy say "I wouldn't have missed this experience for a million dollars." A large number of veterans received a trip to Europe which they would never have gotten otherwise and received remuneration (even if small) while doing so. While all army food leaves much to be desired, the food issued to our troops was far and away better than that issued to other armies. Our army was well clothed and if it was humanly possible they were well supplied with tobacco and candy. After the Armistice the most wonderful leave areas in the world were opened to them and they were royally entertained.

My brothers all served in the Army and my sister and myself saw overseas service, but I do not believe that any member of my family is entitled to the bonus when the country is in its present critical state. Would it not be better for people to refrain from advocating the bonus or other measures when they do not know from actual experience what they are advocating?

MISS F. L. PARKER.

Washington, June 7.

States' Duties.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is interesting, and if conditions were not so alarming it would be amusing, to note the general reaction, as we get it through our daily papers, to the decision of the Supreme Court bringing up again the old question of States' rights. It is a source of satisfaction to remember that there can be no doubt in this case, as the decision was unanimous.

We note that a number of our States, led by gentlemen who seem to have authority to speak for these States, are not slow to inform us that they shall insist on these States exercising those powers granted them by this same Constitution, that has survived 150 years of assault.

The needs of the home are the needs of the Nation, or the State, or the community. The member of a family, or home, that will let another member of that home suffer want, is not worthy to be called by the family name, and no honest, self-respecting member of a family will see a brother or sister in want.

This should be the theory of the State, but today it is only in theory, unless it is to aid the cause of certain individuals, for we read daily of State after State refusing to care for its unfortunate citizens, knowing that the rich uncle will surely come to their aid, and hoping thus to shift the burden that is theirs to the already burdened back of Uncle Sam.

The first duty of the home is to care for its own and when every resource of that home has been exhausted they may turn to the community for aid. The same plan applies to the city and the State, but some of our modern exponents of States' rights seem to have forgotten this, for apparently they have no part in relief work. That is the duty of the central Government. GEORGE C. EARLY.

Washington, June 6.

Purpose Of Education.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The statement was made by some one from the radio, that, while the framers of the American Constitution had guaranteed life and liberty, they had not been able to guarantee happiness, but only its "pursuit." A further reflection, however, would seem to prove that the framers of the Constitution were wiser even than they knew, since, upon examination of this issue, we find that happiness ceases only when one ceases to feel the need of further pursuing it.

To counteract this danger, education was provided as a human institution. Here we have the purpose of education; and the criterion of its usefulness is, "has education in this generation planted in human souls a natural hunger for the higher, nobler ideas of being, its law, plans and possibilities?" When this question is answered intelligently, the need to combat Communism among teachers or schools will become unnecessary—the Nation will have found the "master key" to the solution of all her seemingly complex problems. C. PHILIPS.

The Post Impressionist

Post Office, Wednesday.

NOT upon deaf ears or hard hearts has fallen our plea that the Column's readers should rally to the defense of an endangered food-form. We felt certain that our devoted contributors would not remain unmoved, once they had been told how the ham sandwich is threatened with extinction. Nor was our confidence misplaced.

Already rescue volunteers are registering at this office. Their zeal, indeed, extends even beyond porcine limitations and encompasses the country's whole present sandwich situation—of which, it seems, the ham catastrophe is but a single phase.

In short our friends' broad view of the whole matter can not be better expressed than it is expressed in a letter from Joseph Danziger.

"Let me," he begs, "be the first—anyhow, the 169th—to join the SRA: Sandwich Restoration Administration. Unless there comes a decision that eating sandwiches is not interstate commerce, and therefore not subject to regulation, we must defend our inalienable heritage in real American sandwiches, free from all effete adulteration. Let our motto be:

"'A bas la (or le—you supply the grammar) mayonnaise, et cavent letuca!'

"Lettuce," Mr. Danziger admits, "is an admirable article of food—for a vegetarian—and no lobster salad is conceivable without mayonnaise. The latter, if used discreetly, adds the final exquisite touch to a club sandwich, provided the chicken breast is sliced thick. But modern sandwich architects ignore the fact that the club sandwich was the unique inspiration of a master-mind—that no other three-decker can approach its perfection. Hence, we have the present deluge of mayonnaise."

Then, for a moment, Mr. Danziger deserts the main line of his argument. He says that, right here in Washington, there is one restaurant where the American sandwich is making its last stand. He says the buns "are crisp and generously buttered, with a thick slice of ham between—or cervelat—which might have hailed from Braunschweig, the home of the tasty link. He declares that the accompanying coffee is perfect.

Whereafer, he tantalizingly adds: "I will not intrude the commercial address into a piece of pure reading matter."

So let's get on:

"With all our boasted independence, we Americans," says Mr. Danzinger, "must yield to Europeans in their bold insistence on having their sandwiches straight. Such English sandwiches as I have encountered are hearty and satisfying. The Dutch have those fine, creamy white buns into which they insert a fat slice of mild Dutch cheese—in fact, they are the only people who know how to make good mild cheese; not knowing how, other cheese-eating nations confine themselves to sharp cheeses.

* * *

"Danes," Mr. Danziger choplickingly reminds us, "have an inexhaustible supply of cheeses, sausages and cold meats with which to build sandwiches."

(As if we had never been to Copenhagen's Tivoli!)

And with the Danes Mr. D. ranks the Germans. "Queen among their sandwich raw materials," says he, "is the Illustriertes Brootchen based on a single crisp roll, a thick application of sweet butter, the whole graced with a dozen or so varieties of delicatessen.

"However," concludes Mr. Danziger, "the king of sandwiches, for such a poor but honest workingman as I am, I discovered in a taxi drivers' lunch room on the East Side of Berlin:

"There was a single slab of rye bread—the solid kind they serve in Berlin. It was completely covered—by a half-inch stratum of roast pork. This and a stein of echtes (meaning beer from either Pilsen or Munich) and you have had enough food and inspiration to write a Column any day!"

* * * *

Well—perhaps.

Mr. D. is a famous advocate of the old-fashioned German kitchen. It is related of him that, when Carl Williams was editing Physical Culture he ordered from Danziger an article on the reform of eating-habits in post-war Germany. Danziger went to work conscientiously, but, when he had finished, he had done a rhapsody on pre-war Germany dinners. Considering the notorious dietetic rigors of the owner of Physical Culture, Danziger thought he was the author of a dead loss.

Not a bit of it. The article was so ecstatic that it whetted even Bernarr MacFadden's palate to a point where something besides breakfast food was wanted. He told Williams to publish the piece—and to pay Danziger the biggest price the magazine had ever paid for a single contribution!

* * * *

As for us, we prefer the French kitchen—the French butter-kitchen.

* * * *

But Mr. Danziger has demonstrated his right to join that organization upon which he has bestowed a name. He is hereby written high in the proud roll of the

The Best Show.

ONE of the funniest shows in town, which the Shriners should by all means see, is going on just now at the Capitol. They are usually very funny up there but in their performance on the greatly modified NRA bill they are really excelling in their mirth-provoking tactics. After the collapse of the NRA it seems that some of the gentlemen on the Hill, particularly those who had been bitter opponents of the Eagle, foresaw their being charged in the next campaign with having been responsible for the reemployment of child labor and the breakdown of wages. It was the reemployment of child labor that especially worried them.

So when Mr. Roosevelt, for reasons best known to himself, took the attitude that all was over, that while he had done his best to lift humanity to a higher plane there was no need of continuing the fight and asked for an NRA to serve simply as a fact-finding and research agency, some of the boys on the Hill became quite perturbed and decided that "oh, the NRA's good points must be saved."

• • • •

Thus the bill continuing the NRA has been shaped up to provide that the President can waive the anti-trust laws and approve voluntary trade agreements if the minimum wage and child labor provisions of the old codes are adhered to. This plan runs counter to, if it does not defeat, what apparently is Mr. Roosevelt's strategy. He has given the impression that he wants the Eagle to be as dead as a door knob in order that he can make it an issue in the next campaign. He apparently thought at first that there would be such great disorder by that time that he would have an issue of the first degree. He has probably become disillusioned as to the amount of disorder or chaos the Eagle's death will cause but he still hopes, it is presumed, to be able to get quite an issue out of it nevertheless.

Those opponents of the NRA on the Hill, however, don't want to be made the goats. So they write the bill so they can point to the record to show they "provided against child labor and for minimum wages."

When the bill came from the House it simply authorized the President to approve voluntary trade agreements. Pat Harrison told his colleagues this didn't mean a thing because it was a cinch the President would approve none. But he is put in somewhat of a hole when the bill is written to authorize him to approve agreements which have the wage and child labor requirements.

• • • •

It is difficult to see on what ground he could refuse to approve such agreements. They accomplish just exactly what he said the NRA accomplished. It wouldn't be up to him to worry about the so-called chiselers if some industries and businesses came in and said they were willing to operate under these prescribed agreements. But it would serve pretty largely to remove the issue he had expected to get out of the NRA.

The catch is, of course, that no business is likely to come in and ask for such an agreement unless it can get a price-fixing or production-control clause. The new bill expressly prohibits this.

Doesn't this, however, project the whole picture into clear relief? After two years of confusion and wrangling it develops from the maneuvering on the Hill now that price fixing and production control is the nub of it all.

And denied this, business will go right ahead operating under the trade agreements it has had for 10 or 15 years. They are not new at all. The two so-called gains, minimum wages, of doubtful value—the American Federation of Labor was vigorously opposed to them until two years ago—and abolition of child labor, a greatly exaggerated accomplishment—these two so-called gains will be voluntarily retained. That is to say, this will be the situation among all businesses and industry which were paying the slightest attention to the NRA.

As the picture becomes clear it looks as though nobody is to get an issue out of the mess except the Republicans, and they because Mr. Roosevelt intimated one day he wanted to change the Constitution.

In Tin Pan Alley

Current Dispute As To Origin Of 34/54's Of Popular Song Reveals Facts Of Composing Business, Top-Notchers Of Which Just Whistle From Brahms Or Chopin.

By Ralph E. Renaud.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

New York.

THERE are famous streets in everybody's memory, the Champs Elysees, Unter den Linden, Regent and Threadneedle streets, and even Wall street and Pennsylvania avenue have been heard of. There are famous by ways, too—Featherbed Lane, in Bermuda, and Birdcage Walk, in London, for example. But the turnpike which undoubtedly makes the loudest noise in the world is Tin Pan Alley. Tin Pan Alley, or Melody Lane, just as your ear dictates.

Some of the discords of Tin Pan Alley are being played in the courts of New York right now and it looks as though there were going to be a solution of several dark musical mysteries. An alley composer who wrote "I Love You Madly," claims that 34 of the 54 measures of his song were stolen outright and set like gems into the lilt of "Play, Fiddle, Play." The latter song purports to have been written by Arthur Altman (music) and Jack Lawrence (words) and "inspired" by Emery Deutsch, a radio gypsy. The point is that "Play, Fiddle, Play" got itself adopted as a theme song by Dave Rubinoff, radio violinist and popular stooge for Eddie Cantor, and made $250,000 for everybody concerned except Ira B. Arnstein, the "I Love You Madly" man, who wants at least 34/54 of the swag.

The suit will undoubtedly be settled equitably by Federal Judge Foster Symes and who cares? The major chords of interest ring out on the exposed secrets of Tin Pan Alley.

• • • •

THE trial has already revealed that.

The vast majority of "composers" who write our popular songs can only push the piano with one finger, or two, at the most, and couldn't arrange one of their melodies if they were threatened with jail. They hire fellows to do this for them. The most famous composer of the lot can't write a note on the scale. He whistles 'em.

If a popular song writer swipes an entire melody from Chopin, Beethoven or Brahms he is a wiseenheimer, but if he snatches it from another song writer, who may in turn have lifted it from Chopin, Beethoven or Brahms, he is a gonif. Most of them do and some of them are.

If an actor or a radio performer or a what-not asks a composer to dish him up something blue, or something Eyetalian, or something like "Mommer's Gone to Market for a Poppa," he is a "collaborator" and his name so appears on the song sheet.

Indeed, the crime of musical piracy is so complicated that they had to get a tune detective into the trial. His name is Sigmund Spaeth, as most radio listeners know. Mr. Spaeth (and he is Dr. Spaeth, too), leaped into fame when he revealed that the grand old classic, "Yes, We Have No Bananas" was really excaved bodily out of a popular song by Handel—the Hallelujah Chorus from "The Messiah."

• • • •

IT was Dr. Spaeth's function to demonstrate that both plaintiff and defendant were in reality collaborators, each having lifted his song from the same source, Victor Herbert's "Gypsy Love Song," from "The Fortune Hunter." Which one got it from where the tune sleuth would not say, but he did not stop there. He also showed that the same sequence appeared in Chopin's first piano concerto in E minor and in the Second Symphony of Brahms. Whether or not Victor Herbert was a little too familiar with Chopin the record did not disclose.

It may even be possible that Brahms was looking over some piano music by Chopin before he wrote his second symphony. Indeed, before Dr. Spaeth finished picking at the courtroom piano, imported for the occasion, it looked very much as though nobody could commit a piece of music any more without being a thief. But when Dr. Spaeth began to sing the court promptly stopped him.

Mr. Arnstein claims that at least 14 song hits have been lifted from compositions of his, including that tender lullaby, "My Yiddische Mama." But Franz Schubert and Robert Alexander Schumann are way ahead of him in that direction.

NEW YORK seems greatly interested just now in the law of averages. Tammany has always kept an eye on the average voter; lately we have had Mr. Average Consumer and Miss Average Consumer, and every day the Average Foreign Visitor steps off the boat, saying, "Oh, your skyline is beautiful, and your women are divine."

Now we are offered the Average New York Family, which was officially received in state at City Hall by Mayor LaGuardia, Haround Al Raschid to Bagdad-on-the-Subway. It turns out to be Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Deroussen and their small daughter, Joan, 3½ years old.

We learn that they live in the suburbs (Maspeth, Queens); that Mr. Deroussen has a small job in the city; that they have enough salary to live on; that they like Claudette Colbert and Wallace Beery in the movies and Rudy Vallee over the radio. They don't care for bridge, but do play pinochle. They go to an occasional dance at the district political club and know all their neighbors, which strikes most New Yorkers as extremely untypical. Mr. Deroussen roots for the Giants and has to see the scores every day, but he has given up bowling and poker since Joan came.

All of which makes light summer reading, but proves a large plateful of nothing at all.

THE uncut Jonker diamond, 776 carats, and the largest privately owned diamond in the world, arrives in New York this week. It now develops that the world's largest star sapphire lives, or at least resides in New York and spends most of its time in a safety deposit vault.

It is the property of William G. Willman, a retired paper merchant, and weighs 392¾ carats. In size and shape it resembles an egg cut in half around the middle, and its distinguishing feature, of course, is the beautiful six-pointed-star which shimmers on its top. The star is a flaw, but such a perfect flaw as to add greatly to the value of the gem. Nobody knows exactly what that is and the owner isn't inclined to sell.

Oddly enough, nobody knows the history of the stone, either, except that it came originally from Ceylon. It was obviously torn from a crown, or some such royal setting, as there is adhesive still clinging to its base. It was shipped here in 1916 by a Russian officer, then in France, but was seized by the United States Customs office. It was from Uncle Sam that Mr. Willman bought it. All he does with it is to take it out of the vault occasionally and look at it.

IT was highly appropriate that the Normandie, latest and biggest ambassador from France, should be welcomed in the harbor by Mickey Mouse, the most important personage in America. Mickey wore a rubber garment for the occasion and was inflated almost to the bursting point. He stood about 40 feet high, waving from the deck of a tug, and was the most conspicuous figure at the reception.

ModernNovels 40 Years Ago

IN the course on Modern Novels which I gave at Yale in 1895-1896, and which I described in yesterday's article, the following novels were prescribed for the year, on which every student was required to write a weekly theme.

Lorna Doone, by Blackmore.
A Modern Instance, by Howells.
Marcella, by Mrs. Ward.
Esther Waters, by George Moore.
Treasure Island, by Stevenson.
A Gentleman of France, by Weyman.
The Luck of Roaring Camp, etc., by Harte.
The Phantom Rickshaw, etc., by Kipling.
A Surburban Pastoral, by Henry A. Beers.
Trilby, by Du Maurier.
A House of Gentlefolk, by Turgenev.
Fathers and Children, by Turgenev.
Anna Karenina, by Tolstoi.
Where Love Is, There God Is Also, by Tolstoi.
The Children of the World, by Heyse.
Dame Care, by Sudermann.
Jack, by Alphonse Daudet.
Synnove Solbakken, Bjornson.
In God's Way, by Bjornson.
Lord Ormont and His Aminta, by G. Meredith.
Daisy Miller, by Henry James.
Far From the Madding Crowd, by Hardy.
The Return of the Native, by Hardy.
Tess of the D'Urbervilles, by Hardy.
The Manxman, by Hall Caine.
Huckleberry Finn, by Mark Twain.

In 1895 all of these novelists were alive except Turgenev and Stevenson; and the latter had died within less than a year.

There are only two weak spots in this list; "Marcella," by Mrs. Ward, and "The Manxman," by Hall Caine. Both were taken seriously by the public, but I had no faith in either of them. I included them because of their enormous popularity; but I took care to tell the class that both Mr. Caine and Mrs. Ward would in a few years cease to be read. In included three novels by Hardy, because I believed him to be the most important British writer then living.

No End of Books

Front Windows.

DOWN in Boston—up in Boston—well, anyway, away yonder over there in Boston, they have one of the funniest examples of front-window vanity to be found in these United States. As you walk up Beacon street toward Little Brown, the American Unitarian Association and the Statehouse, with the Common on your right, you'll see on your left a row of dignified brick houses whose lower bow windows (two frames on the bow, Boston style) are made up of small panes of glass. Now most of these panes are very good clear glass indeed, but scattered through them, you'll be a bit puzzled to discover, are panes of blue or purple glass. Very unkempt, you might be inclined to think.

Not so at all—those blue panes are tickets of aristocratic genealogy. For back in the seventeenth century a ship came over to Boston carrying a load of window pane. It was precious enough in those days, so when the purchasers found part of the cargo to be of poor grade—that is, it had been spoiled in the manufacture so that some panes came out blue or purple—there was nothing to do but stick them up in their houses willy-nilly. And thus, if you happen to own a blue pane or two, it signifies that several generations back your family was in a position to purchase window panes. Which, believe me, was something. But, bless you, don't think that bow windows on Beacon street are necessarily the original installations!—Bostonians hand down those blue panes as religiously as a Tibetan would the Grand Lama's little finger nail. They're worth building a house around!

And as an example of refined window-dressing, of sleek, unostentation in the fine art of advertising, I give you that.

• • • •

MANY a store window dresser, many an advertising manager, I'm sure, would give a pretty to happen on a symbol which would grant such authority to his product. Of course there was the shop in New York (was it Duveen's Art Gallery? was it a jewelry store? I'm not certain) which peeled down ostentation to so nice a point that there was not, on the whole front of the store, so much as three little letters of the firm's name to tell you what the place was. You know, or you didn't, and that was that.

But such stylistics are a palpable luxury. The 62 pages of informative text and the 90 pages of elegant plates in "Selling Through the Window" (The Studio, $7.50) show that window display experts would rather like to have you know, at a glance, what sort of merchandising is going on. Harry Trethowan, one of England's leading display men (he's vice president of their professional organization, and did the displays for the exhibition of British Art in Industry), leads off with advices on the power of window exhibits to affect sales (twice that of printed advertising, he computes, half that of personal recommendation by customers); on the various techniques of putting up everything from mannequins to rowboats; and on national characteristics of window advertising. Some eight experts discuss the pointers in certain leading retail fields. Then come the illustrations which, in a phrase, will just about knock your eye out for ingenuity, attractiveness, and that primary and valuable shock-and-hold power.

And though I could stand in front of a display of guns, or garden tools, or fishing tackle, or saws and chisels just about as long as the cop on the beat would let me, it's of the display of books I'd like to speak a minute.

• • • •

JOHN DALAS, of Scribner's, New York, opens the way by remarking on the conservatism of the book trade. Let me dilate that by pointing out that 59 copies of "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh" strung cheek by jowl along a window shelf don't mean a thing. It's like the ocean—if you've seen one wave you've seen them all. And with the curious trait of the human eye to go roving on in search of a difference, it's more than mortal flesh can bear to peer one by one at 59 copies in the faint hope of finding a gorgeous misprint.

No, one jacket is enough. Then why not the book without the jacket? Then why not the book opened at the title page? Then at an illustration or two? And why not, above all, some collateral material?

I know the book-store people will say that too many war helmets for a war book, and too many Igorot spears for a Philippine book, detract from the book itself. True, no doubt. But I, for one, would stop a long while to look at some pages of the author's manuscript, at some corrected page proofs, at a cancelled royalty check, at the chair the author sat in and the typewriter he sweated over, and so on and so on. Hard to get? So are sales.

Of course, my advices aren't likely to be asked in the matter of window displays. But then, as all these odd books of which I'm so fond suggest to me, it's nice to be prepared.

First Aid Given 200 Watchers Of Big Parade

Women and Children Are Overcome by Heat; Car Hits Crowd.

Wailing sirens and screeching whistles added to the bedlam along yesterday's parade route as speeding ambulances darted in and out among the marchers carrying nearly 200 sick and injured spectators to hospitals and first-aid stations.

Police, physicians, Boy Scouts firemen and Red Cross workers were kept busy caring for men, women and children overcome by heat and hurt in a variety of accidents. An improvised relief station on the sidewalk at Ninth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest bore the brunt of emergency cases. Between 45 and 50 persons were treated.

Watchers along the line of march dropped right and left as a torrid sun beat down. Scores were treated for exhaustion without identifying themselves. Careening ambulances narrowly missed marchers and policemen in hurried dashes from place to place.

Struck By Falling Screen.

Miss Drady Lassider, 26, of 413 Columbia road northwest, was watching the parade near Eleventh street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. A heavy screen fell from a second floor window and struck her. She was taken to Emergency Hospital with lacerations.

A piece of wire, carried by an unidentified man, hit Helen B. Smith, 26, of 1804 Curtis street northeast, in the eye. She was treated at the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital for a serious laceration.

A steel cable, holding crowds along the lower avenue, snapped in half. It struck Otto Wollstein, 76, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Elsie Otto, 48, of 714 Taylor street northwest. They were treated at Emergency Hospital for cuts, bruises, fractured ribs and head injuries.

Auto Runs Into Crowd.

Shortly before the parade, an auto careened into a crowd at Twenty-fifth street and Alabama avenue southeast, sending three children to Casualty Hospital. The injured were treated for lacerations and bruises. They gave names of William R. Carroll, colored, 5, of 2449 Ainger avenue southeast; Arthur Carroll, colored, 10, of the same address, and Vaunita Watson, colored, 11, of 2328 Alabama avenue southeast. Driver of the car was not held.

Among those treated for heat exhaustion and minor hurts were:

Delphi Reed, 28, 1913 G street northwest; Sarah Johnson, 30, 1112 Fifth street southeast; Ruby Mickens, colored, 11, 1511 Tenth street northwest; Annie Wheatley, colored, 9, 1902 Ninth street northwest; John Marohood, 13, 829 Sixth street southwest; George Harrison, 17, 1006 Massachusetts avenue northwest; Calvin Austin, colored, 9, 4821 J street southeast, and Henry Cosby, 66, 514 R street northwest.

HigherTaxes Faced By Charlottesville

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 11.—An increase in Charlottesville's tax rate from $1.85 to $1.90 was proposed by the council at a special meeting called to consider both the school and general budgets for the year beginning September 1.

The increase will raise the school operation levy to 62 cents from 57. The additional levy is expected to raise approximately $6,400.

According to a budget estimate prepared by the finance committee of the school board and submitted to the council recently, an increase of 13 cents would have been necessary to meet the expenditures for the coming year. In the proposal, however, it was found that other revenue items were underestimated by about $7,000. The proposed deficit amounted to $13,400, so that an additional $6,400 will balance the budget. A public hearing on the budget is scheduled for June 24.

Mason Binkley Wins In Postmaster Poll

Chambersburg, Pa., June 11.—Patrons of the State Line Postoffice have indorsed Mason C. Binkley for postmaster, giving him 92 votes to 45 for Clyde L. Kitzmiller, acting postmaster.

Binkley's name will be submitted to Representative Harry L. Haines, of the York-Adams-Franklin County district, for appointment.

Both Binkley and Kitzmiller were declared eligible, so the county Democratic committee decided on an election.

The Iron Whims of the Weather

NO matter how other things go up or down, there is always a bumper crop of weather.

The milkman must take it as it comes. He neither asks nor gets any favors from the weather man.

Blow it hot or cold, the world wants its milk when it wants it.

The cows are in the country. The consumer is in the town. The milkman's business is to act as a dependable go-between to link supply and demand.

Let the mercury soar and the consumption of milk responds sympathetically. Fountains do a rushing business in refreshing drinks.

Let the thermometer do a nosedive, and demand tapers off quickly.

There is no way to throw a cow out of gear once she gets going on the job of turning her food into milk.

She has a single track mind. She doesn't do so well under extreme heat or extreme cold. How to match his service with the fickleness of the weather—and the consequent variations in the wants of the consumer—is a problem in itself. The milkman must have the right answer every day.

It may be that the ways of the weather are only nature's whims. But as every milkman knows, they are iron whims.

Men, being men, can not tell you very much about women. For instance, to the young-man-in-love the opposite sex is all sweetness and light; the bachelor, who has dodged the ladies for years, believes them to be scheming minxes, and the married man is probably afraid to tell you what he really thinks.

Therefore, to get a true opinion of women, you must go to a woman for your information . . . and so we've gone to Miss Malvina Lindsay, editor of The Washington Post's woman's pages, to find out about those lovely and sometimes sweet creatures who do so much to make our lives happy and miserable. And Miss Lindsay certainly tells us, and all other readers of The Post, about "The Gentle Sex." You'll find her impressions of her sisters . . . and brothers, too . . . in The Post each Sunday morning to entertain . . . and educate you. Each week she writes this amusing, intelligent column which so satirically punctures so many of our illusions, and which gives us an insight into the levious ways of women.

For example, she outlines the character of Tactful Tillie, who never comes right out and tells her friends they are getting fat. Oh, no! Tactful Tillie merely sniffs, "Are'nt you getting a bit stout, dearie?" Tactful Tillie, Miss Lindsay also reveals, prides herself on being able to find out disagreeable things by a method which is practically painless . . . to her.

Or Miss Lindsay describes the conversation at the Sunday dinner table; and her description is as true to life as the family laundry line. You can recognize Uncle Henry, who wants to talk politics, and Aunt Susan, who simply must tell Cousin Mary about those perfectly darling little needlepoint footstools she saw downtown for only $2.98, or, if you read carefully, you might recognize yourself!

We are sure that Miss Lindsay's sardonic humor will please you as much as it pleases us . . . we think it's one of the best features in The Sunday Post. Gently, oh, so very gently, the barb of her wit penetrates . . . but you're laughing so much you don't mind the sting.

"The Gentle Sex," which has become one of the best-liked columns in The Sunday Post, may be found each Sunday morning on the woman's pages of Foreign Markets.

London, June 11 (AP).—The stock exchange reopened today with a cheerful tone, owing to better Wall street and Paris news. General advances were recorded, led by industrials. French bonds and transatlantic issues showed gains and oil shares, however, eased. The market closed firm.

Paris—Heavy selling on the bourse today caused prices to yield part of last week's gains in a session that was marked by the indecision of traders. The market closed irregular.

Berlin—Selling pressure on the boerse today weakened prices throughout the list. The closing was stagnant.

Batting for Morgan Baker.

ATTEMPTING to cope with the problem of housing and rent in the District, a housing and rent committee, initiated by NFFE, has been formed in the Department of Agriculture to promote plans for financing and developing a project for home ownership among Government employes.

BAKER.

Returns from questionnaires sent Agriculture workers show that 600 employes want to own private homes, indicating that they would back a movement to procure such residences.

The committee, headed by Frank L. Lombard, Bureau of Agriculture Economics, is considering a plan whereby a development company would finance and build the homes. Under this plan the employes would make contracts with the development company to buy the buildings on a 20-year amortization program. It is proposed tentatively that the amortization rate would be approximately $40 a month, with a down payment of between $250 and $350.

Plans for drawing up contracts for bids and estimates from development enterprises will be discussed at a meeting of the committee Friday at 7:30 p. m., Agriculture Building. Also, a program for holding a general meeting of the 600 workers who signed the questionnaires will be aired.

Should a development company agree to finance and build the houses, the following stipulations would be made, according to Mr. Lombard:

1. The company would agree to accept only tenants who are sanctioned by the committees.

2. An area would be set aside for the development of community facilities, such as stores and a recreation center.

3. When an individual signs up, he would deposit $50, tentatively, to be held in trust as a share of stock in a limited dividend corporation, to be organized by the tenants in a limited time for the development of community facilities. If the individuals did not utilize this trust fund within a reasonable time, the development corporation would be permitted to promote community facilities, and the trust fund would be returned to the employes.

The navy yard machinists also are working on a plan of home ownership through a development corporation.

Three to Retire.

Employes who will be retired from the Government Printing Office June 30 are:

Sylvan Shores Popular.

Many employes in Federal Housing have been guests of Mrs. Virginia Nowell, FHA, at her cottage, Sylvan Shores, on South River, near Annapolis. The cottage is proving a popular and interesting place for Mrs. Nowell and her friends, many of whom have arranged to spend week-ends there, fishing, bathing and boating.

Courses in elements of personnel administration, which have been completed under the supervision of the Department of Agriculture, have proved very helpful, according to department officials. Improvements have been noted already as a result of the series of ten lectures, conducted by authorities in the field of personnel administration. Enrollment totaled 766 employes from virtually every department in the Government.

Examinations Announced.

Open competitive examinations for jobs ranging from 68 cents an hour to $4,600 a year have been announced by the Civil Service Commission as follows:

Additional information may be obtained at the Civil Service Commission, Seventh and F streets northwest.

Harold F. Pitcairn, winner of the Collier Trophy in 1931 for pioneering development of the autogiro in this country, "giroed" down from Philadelphia to address a meeting of Patent Examiners on recent developments in the autogiro.

Agriculture Meetings.

Cafeteria facilities in the Department of Agriculture will be the topic of discussion at a meeting of Agriculture Branch, Local No. 2, NFFE, in room No. 2050 at 4:45 p. m. today, A. C. Edwards, president of the local, announced. The discussion will be led by Albert M. Day, Biological Survey, Agriculture.

The Athletic and Recreational Association Board, Agriculture, will meet Friday at 4:45 p. m. in room No. 2050.

A meeting of the medical and health committee, Agriculture, will be held at the department cafeteria at 11:30 a. m. today. Daniel O'Flaherty, public roads, is chairman of the committee.

FHA is going to have a Year Book, which will portray "Who's Who" in the Administration. The book is now in the making, and will include the various activities of the employes such as athletics, welfare, AFGE, swimming club, riding club and other endeavors of the workers. It is being prepared unofficially by FHA employes.

You will receive tickets to one of the following Loew's theaters: (F) Loew's Fox (stage, Al Siegel and Carolyn Marsh, and other acts; screen, "Public Hero No. 1," with Lionel Barrymore, Chester Morris, Jean Arthur and Lewis Stone); (P) Loew's Palace (Will Rogers in "Doubting Thomas"); (C) Loew's Columbia ("It's a Small World," with Spencer Tracy).

The Nobles' Parade.

At home, abroad, or in foreign lands
No jollier music, nor gayer bands!
They still us, thrill us, set us aglow;
And our bodies sway to and fro.
The grouch parks his carping way
And thoroughly enjoys the gala day;
The field glass fiend shoves us aside,
Wounding our feelings and hurting our hide;
The foolish young lovers huddle together,
As though it were typical Christmas weather;
And, soothed by the rhythm, those in pain
Seek the rainbow through the rain.

Baltimore Wreckers Cut Ill-Fated Liner to Pieces.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, June 11.—The Morro Castle, luxury liner which took 134 persons on an excursion of death last September 8 off the New Jersey coast, will be a heap of assorted junk in a few more months.

Forty workmen, armed with blue-flamed cutting torches, were busy at the docks of the Union Shipbuilding Co. today cutting apart the once pride of the Ward Steamship Line.

They began the scrapping only a few days ago but already the giant steamer's smoke-stacks and the greater part of the upper deck have been removed. Seven months will be required to complete the job.

The breaking-up process would have begun weeks ago, but the flames that wiped ou the lives of the 134 persons 8 miles off New Jersey, left the fire-blackened hulk filled with hidden danger. Many days had to be spent pumping oil from the ship's immense tanks, drawing off the accumulated fumes and cleaning out gas pockets to remove the possibility of explosions and further loss of life.

Fire had smouldered in the 11,600-ton vessel for five days after the tragedy. It was beached at Asbury Park, N. J., and, while residents lived in fear of an explosion, it was drenched from one end of its 508-foot length to the other until the flames were finally extinguished.

There was talk of converting it into a municipal museum, but women's organizations of Asbury Park would hear none of that, and the Government had the hulk towed to Gravesend Bay, N. Y. There the liner, which cost $4,000,000 five years ago, was sold to the ship-building company for $33,603 and pulled here by tugs April 2 to be scrapped.

Police Justice's Safe Is Robbed of $80

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 11.—Thieves at noon today took $80 from a safe in the law office of Police Justice W. W. Wharton, on the first floor of the First National Bank Building.

The thieves walked by city police headquarters, located on the same floor, in going to and from the office. Fifty dollars of the money had been collected by Wharton for a client. The office and safe doors were left unlocked during the lunch hour.

On the Air Today

A letter from Henry J. Kaufman announces the judges for the commercial announcer contest. They are, in addition to the four radio editors of Washington daily newspapers, E. H. Reitzke, president of the Capitol Radio Engineering Institute; Dr. William A. Wilbur, dean of English, George Washington University, and Albert E. Conradis chairman Junior Board of Commerce committee on public speaking.

The contest starts June 15 and will last until July 15. Staff announcers will be judged on the basis of diction, sincerity and effectiveness of their commercial plugs. The award will be a cup.

At WJSV studios there's a big box all done up in white paper and yards of red ribbon. What is it it? a phoithboinder, no less. Seems that Stoopnagle and Budd are expected soon, when they will present the phoithboinder to the Smithsonian Institution.

Local winners of the Eddy Duchin contest are Margaret McCravy and Lansing Hatfield. Miss McCravey has been heard many times on WJSV both as soloist with the Sunday Singing Violins and in trio work with her brothers. She was quite busy last night, what with singing with Duchin's orchestra on WRC at 8:30 and again on Godfrey's Gazette on WJSV at 9:30 p. m.

Hatfield is a bass-barytone from Hickory, N. C., has studied voice only three years, two of which were on scholarship at the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore. Last April he won second place in Philadelphia's National Federation of Music Clubs' contest. He will appear Saturday as guest artist on WMAL'S Country Hi-Jinks programs.

Today's Shrine stuff:

Massed Shrine band from the Ellipse, on WMAL and WJSV at 1:30 p. m.

Illuminated parade descriptions on WJSV at 8 p. m. and WMAL at 9:30 p. m.

Other dial-twists:

President Roosevelt presenting diplomas at West Point graduation, WJSV and WMAL at 9:15 a. m. and WMAL again at 10:15 a. m.

Toscanini conducts the British Broadcasting Corporation orchestra on WMAL at 2:30 p. m.

"The Old Maid," Zoe Akins' Pulitzer Prize Story, to Tour 76 Cities, 33 States

A Long Season On Road Takes Play to Coast

Present Stars to Continue; Gayety Ends 42 Weeks; About Showshops.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

Reminiscent of the record-breaking tour of "The Green Pastures" last year will be the 1935-36 cross-country safari of "The Old Maid," newest of the Pulitzer prize winning plays.

"The Old Maid" was written by Zoe Akins, responsible, also, for "Declassee," in which Ethel Barrymore closed the current season of the National Theater Players last Saturday night and is based upon the novel of the same title by Edith Wharton.

The stars, both of whom, incidentally, will appear on tour, are Helen Menken—last seen here as Queen Elizabeth in "Mary of Scotland," with Helen Hayes, and Judith Anderson, whose last local appearance was in Eugene O'Neill's tragic trilogy, "Mourning Becomes Electra," with Florence Reed, recently seen at the National in a revival of "The Shanghai Gesture."

The producer is Harry Moses, whose previous contributions to the Broadway scene have been "Grand Hotel," Priestley's "Dangerous Corner," "Four Saints in Three Acts" and "The Warrior's Husband."

It was the last-named vehicle that served as the springboard to project Katharine Hepburn from the legitimate stage into world prominence as a star of the cinema.

Tour Begins September 30.

"The Old Maid" will inaugurate its forthcoming road tour in Philadelphia on September 30, and will play 76 cities in 33 States before writing a period to its peregrinations in Richmond, Va., in March, 1936. This somewhat closely approximates "The Green Pastures" record of 93 cities in 39 States.

The Akins play, again like the Marc Connelly classic, will be presented at more than 20 universities throughout the country and will play brief engagements in every major city from one coast to the other and from the Canadian border to the Gulf.

I have every confidence in this announcement because it comes to me from William Fields, one of the theater's more reliable stentors, who possesses a peculiar faculty for allying himself with long runs and transcontinental tours.

It was "Bill" who handled the publicity for "The Green Pastures" and it is he who now presides over the newspaper destinies of "The Old Maid," his many Washington friends will be glad to learn.

Speaking of "The Green Pastures," purchase of the screen rights to the famous play was announced yesterday by Jack L. Warner, vice president of the Warner Bros. interests in charge of production. The purchase price of the amazingly gripping drama of Old Testament scripture, as interpreted through the mind of the primitive Negro, was not revealed, but it was reported that Marc Connelly, the author, at one time had demanded $176,000 for the motion picture rights. In making the announcement, Warner hinted that Max Reinhardt, noted European stage director, now in Hollywood, where he recently completed his first picture, a camera version of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," might have charge of the filming of "The Green Pastures."

Jimmy Jams It Over.

Flitting nimbly from the sublime to the ridiculous, when Col. James J. Lake, the Chesterfieldian Beau Brummel of Ninth street and the sports arenas, closes his Gayety Theater after the fall of the final curtain on Saturday night of this week, he will have terminated one of the most successful burlesque seasons in the history of the house.

Shattering every Washington record for length of season since before the depression hit us its resounding and paralyzing wallop six years ago, the Gayety, come Saturday night, will have spun out an unbroken season of 42 consecutive weeks. A season of this duration harks back to what are sentimentally known as the "good old days." The good old Col. Jimmy will tell you that these are the good old days.

There is a reason for all this prosperity on Ninth street and Jimmy Lake is it. He has put on the best burlesque attractions to be seen anywhere in the United States and, as vice president and general manager in charge of production for the Independent Burlesque Association, has taken pride in the staging of girls-and-music shows that have been notable for their spectacular investiture and the presence in the casts of the foremost comedians, singers and dancers available in this branch of the theater.

Current Bill All-Star.

The current valedictory bill at the Gayety is closing the season in what is generally referred to as a blaze of glory. No wonder!

The guest star for Shrine Week is Hinda Wausau, who ran up a prodigious record as star of Billy Rose's Casino de Paree, in New York, and holds the house attendance record at the Gayety—14 consecutive performances of absolute standing-room capacity.

The Carroll Sisters also are among those present—two platinum blondes who habitually knock the down-front pewholders right off their chairs into Conductor Mannix's orchestra pit. They always fall toward the stage!

In addition to these favorites, there is an all-star cast of principals and a snappy bunch of line-girls to make the merrymaking contagious and complete.

But it is the personality, keen showmanship and knack of handling crowds with which Jimmy Lake is endowed that have put the Gayety on Washington's amusement map and kept it there. The old boy knows his stuff and this column is glad it knows him.

He'll be glad-handing you again on the first floor along about Labor Day—all summer long on the second floor, if you know what we mean.

In reply to an inquiry dated June 8, it may be said that the appearance of Tullio Carminati as guest star at the National Theater was necessarily precluded by Manager Cochran's sudden determination to end the eleventh consecutive season of the National Theater Players last Saturday night. Not only was Signor Carminati a prospective guest star, but negotiations also were pending with Conrad Nagel and others in whom Capital theatergoers feel an especial interest. It is not unlikely that next spring and early summer will find them all on hand under a strictly guest-star policy with the National Players in support.

Sheepskins Awarded.

Following the second act of "The Charm School," the final sketch of the graduation program of the Clifford Broke Academy of Stage Training in the Dramatic Arts, at the National Theater Sunday night, diplomas were presented to the senior class by Maurice Greet, the academy's dramatic director.

Those receiving their diplomas were Jean Prince, Frances Ridgeway, Arthur Little, Edwina Wise, Eleanor Campbell, Eleanor Ray, Charles E. Crowe and Molly Schwartz.

Tonight is the night the Roadside Theater Players will broadcast 15 minutes of dramatic highlights from "Oil for the Lamp of China," at 10:30 o'clock through Station WJSV. Carey Lucas and Ralph Fowler, to be seen in "After Dark," the Roadsiders' first production of their second season next week, will be heard in the parts played on the screen by Josephine Hutchinson and Pat O'Brien. Marvin Beers is directing. "Oil for the Lamps of China" comes to the screen of the Earle Theater on Friday. I'll have to hurry and finish reading the book, an item I have only just now got around to, and only now because Frank La Falce, of the Warner forces, presented me with a copy of the book a day or so ago.

Watch the Call Board!

Washington Community Players in the cast of Lord Dunsany's "The Gods of the Mountains" are called for rehearsal at the Sylvan Theater tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock and again Saturday afternoon at 2, in preparation for their forthcoming appearance on the Monument Grounds Monday night, June 24, with the cast of Philip Moeller's "Helena's Husband" and a brief dance pantomime.

This program will be presented as the second Summer Festival of the 1935 al fresco season in the Sylvan Theater, under the sponsorship of the Community Center Department and the office of National Capital Parks.

The curtain-raiser of the recent "Three Short Plays," by the Community Players—Quinteros' "A Sunny Morning"—will not be given in the performance of June 24. The dance pantomime, chosen to "open the show" instead, probably will be directed by Lisa Gardiner.

Having proved one of the most charming and most successful screen operettas of the season, "The Unfinished Symphony," dealing with the romance and music of the young Franz Schubert, great composer, not only will complete three full weeks as major feature of the bill at the Belasco Theater, but will be held through two days of the fourth week. Helen Chandler, American actress; Hans Jaray and Marta Eggerth appear in the principal roles of this splendid work. On Friday, "The Unfinished Symphony" will be succeeded by "Moscow Laughs," a Russian jazz farce, instead of by "The Man Who Knew Too Much," as originally announced.

"Black Fury" Wins.

The preview committees on both the East and West Coasts who announce their evaluations of current films through the offices of the Will H. Hays organization—that would be the Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America, Inc.—chose the Warner Brothers-First National production of "Black Fury," starring Paul Muni, as the best picture of the month bounded by May 1 and June 1.

"The entire cast is most capable, the direction skillful and the photography notable," is their joint verdict.

They also pay high tribute, according to the monthly brochure just to hand from Mr. Hays, to that cinematographic anomaly, "The Informer," one of the finest pictures ever made, but more or less of an abysmal box-office flop throughout the country. Of this the expert screen-gazers say: "A skillfully directed, well acted picture with outstanding work by Victor McLaglen."

It was all of that, yet nobody went to see it. Why?

Miss Lay Is Wed At U. of Virginia

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 11.—A wedding of wide social interest in Virginia and New York occurred at 8:30 p. m. yesterday in the Gothic Chapel at the University of Virginia, when Miss Louisa Lay, daughter of Dr. Beirne Lay, widely known educator and former member of the faculty of Groton School, became the bride of Woolridge Brown Morton, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Morton, of New York City, a third-year student in the college department at the university.

Out of town guests included Mrs. William H. Davis, Mrs. George T. Douglas, Mrs. George W. Taylor, and Col. Harry Schwabe, of New York; Dr. and Mrs. James Southall, of King George County; Mr. and Mrs. Lomax Hunter and family, of Richmond; H. I. Brock and Oswald Chew, of Radnor, Pa.; Thomas Atkinson and the Misses Atkinson, of Staunton, Va.; O. H. W. Hunter, of Hagerstown, Md.; Miss Anne Bruin, of Fredericksburg; Mr. and Mrs. Hughes Reynolds, of Alexandria, and Craig Morton, of Dayton, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton left for Charleston, S. C., where they will spend their honeymoon. Upon their return here June 18 they will reside on The Lawn, at the university, where Mr. Morton will attend the summer school.

30 Fined in Virginia In Slot Machine Drive

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 11.—Thirty operators of slot machines in Rockingham County were fined $5 and costs today by Trial Justice Hamilton Haas, and 17 machines valued at $1,500 were destroyed by Sheriff Charles R. Fawley upon the the order of the court.

The machines contained $35 in pennies and nickels.

Third of Frederick County Levy Paid In

Frederick, Md., June 11 (AP).—Approximately one-third of Frederick County's 1935 levy already has been collected, according to County Treasurer Thomas A. Chapline. Discounts allowed for payment in January, February and March aided in collection.

The levy is $773,744.03, and approximately $236,000 has been paid.

Also Wears Tahitian Swim Suit

Watching Them Make Pictures

Hollywood, June 11.

THE Broadway theater takes a vacation in the summer and moves to the country barns where, before the invasion, only the chickens laid eggs. The movies have been trying to make this summer theatrical tryout locale the background for a flicker. The first hundred scripts of "The Broadway Melody" concerned itself with the adventures of two college lads in a theatrical barn, but in the further rewriting the barn was discarded for something more original: A backstage musical comedy on Broadway.

However, another script in the rewriting process took up this idea: "The Girl Friend," once a Broadway hit musical, is about a country yokel who puts on a show in the barn to pay the mortgage. In the stage play, if you recall, the yokel hero was a bicycle rider who trained in the barn while he turned milk into butter.

Jack Haley is now the yokel hero, and I watched him play a scene in the barn with the cows and the chickens and some horses and a rooster.

• • • •

Eddie Buzzell is the director, but the animals will pay no attention to him, and Buzzell directs his remarks to the Equity actors. He depends upon chance with the poultry. Buzzell is a Shorr guy and he holds a whip in his hand while directing. But even with a whip he can't frighten the actors, and as he swings it into the air he knows there is only one person he can hit with it. Buzzell hits himself with it. It is really out of pity, that later one of the actors takes the whip and hides it from Buzzell.

• • • •

THIS flicker, "The Girl Friend," is being produced at Columbia on a quick shooting schedule and a light budget. Especailly in scenes where a number of bit and extra players are used must Buzzell shoot fast. Else Harry Cohn will look out of his window onto the sound stage and demand to know what a crowd is doing in his studio.

One day last week Director Buzzell was filming a sequence of the play being presented in the barn and a number of old vaudevillians, Al Klein, Pat West and Sam Fisher to mention a few, were hired for this comedy playlet. Director Buzzell was trying to hurry them through; trying to finish the scene that day, and thus the crowd would get only a day's pay. It was amusing to watch this troupe at work.

If a bit player did his scene in one take the rest of his fellow troupers would hiss him. If he blew the scene once, he rated a smile. If he managed to blow it a second time, he rated applause. Jack Haley played his scene perfectly, then he stepped to the center of the stage and apologized to the entire company for doing it right. He said he'd do better the next time and muff it.

• • • •

Wesley Ruggles is directing Herbert Marshall and Ernest Crossart in a scene in "Accent on Youth," but if you are on the set you don't really pay any attention to the director or the players. The person you watch is Romayne. She is Director Ruggles' secretary and script girl. You can get a quick idea of her by this fact: Romayne has her name printed on Wesley Ruggles' office door, only her name is printed in letter three times larger than Ruggles'.

Romayne is always hungry. She picks up an apple from the dining room table on the set and starts to eat it. She takes one bite and tosses it away. The apple has been sprayed with Flit. Director Ruggles says: "That'll teach you not to eat the props. Yesterday we had to send for more fruit to finish a scene."

"WAY DOWN EAST" is returning to the screen and will speak for itself. The talkie version of this classic of the silent flickers is now being remade at Fox. The director is Henry King and not D. W. Griffith; the girl is Janet Gaynor, not Lillian Gish, and the hero is not Richard Barthelmess, but Henry Fonda. Yes, plenty of celluloid has rolled over the camera spool since Griffith made screen history with this one.

There have been changes, many changes. Director Ring is doing a scene out in the open on the back lot. Edward Trevor comes riding on a horse to the Maine farmhouse, and is met at the gate by Henry Fonda. They try this scene again and again, but each time it is spoiled because an airplane flies by overhead. There is no way of telling the aviator that he is interfering with art. And just when every one believes the plane has gone it buzzes by and destroys the sound track. It is almost in desperation that Director King says to his troupe: "Griffith never had this trouble when he was making 'Way Down East.'"

• • • •

Another great singer comes to the screen. Nino Martini, who boasts that he can hit a G above high C, is being directed by Al Green in his first flicker, "Here's to Romance." In his apartment, he plays a phonograph record and sings with it. Martini goes through the gestures as the playback broadcasts the aria from "La Tosca" he has already recorded. It is fine singing. When the scene is completed I walk over to the phonograph to take a look at the record which he is supposed to be accompanying. The record is Cab Calloway singing "Eadie Was a Lady."

Hecht Scores Central Bank Under U.S. Rule

Tried and Abolished Here Twice, Says A. B. A. President.

Omaha, Nebr., June 11.—The bankers future in America "would not be a promising one if we were to turn back 100 years and experiment for a third time with a central bank, and especially with one which stock would be owned entirely by the Government," R. S. Hecht, president of the American Bankers Association, declared here today in an address on "The Bankers' Future." He spoke before the American Institute of Banking at the opening session of its thirty-third annual convention.

"There is virtually unanimous agreement among bankers that our present regional system under private ownership is immeasurably better for the Nation than a Government owned and controlled bank," Mr. Hecht declared.

"I need not tell you that central banking has been tried twice in the United States," Mr. Hecht continued, "and both times was aboiished because the credit control it exercised became critically unpopular and objectionable."

Mr. Hecht stated that the American Bankers Association's survey brought out the significant fact that of all of the central banks now in operation there are only four whose stock is owned by their governments. The very size and diversity of our Nation tends to make a central bank impractical, Mr. Hecht pointed out.

"The central banks in Europe such as the Bank of England, France or Germany, cover areas not so large as some of the single States in this country," he said. "A central bank in the United States in fact would be called upon to administer the financial policies of an area far larger and more diversified than all of Europe, in which there are a large number of central banks."

World Buys Less Coffee.

New York, June 11.—World coffee deliveries to consumption during the 11 months of the current year, July 1, 1934, to May 31, 1935, amounted to 20,788,064 bags, according to the New York Coffee & Sugar Exchange, Inc., a decrease of 1,843,237 bags, or 8.2 per cent when compared with deliveries during the similar 1933-34 period which totaled 22,631,321 bags.

Reserve Board Balances Gain $70,000,000

Loans, Investments and Time Deposits Drop for June 5 Week.

The Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks in 91 leading cities on June 5 shows decreases for the week of $57,000,000 in total loans and investments and $73,000,000 in time deposits, and increases of $38,000,000 in net demand deposits and $70,000,000 in reserve balances with Federal Reserve banks.

Loans on securities to brokers and dealers in New York declined $50,000,000 at reporting member banks in New York and $53,000,000 at all reporting member banks; loans to brokers and dealers outside New York declined $6,000,000 in the Chicago district and $8,000,000 at all reporting member banks, and loans on securities to others declined $1,000,000. Holdings of acceptances and commercial paper bought in open market declined $5,000,000 in the New York district and $7,000,000 at all reporting member banks; real estate loans showed little change for the week; and "other loans" declined $55,000,000 in the New York district and $49,000,000 at all reporting member banks.

Holdings of United States Government direct obligations increased $58,000,000 in the New York district, $30,000,000 in the Chicago district, $10,000,000 in the Cleveland district, and $82,000,000 at all reporting member banks, and declined $12,000,000 in the San Francisco district. Following the flotation of fully guaranteed obligations of the Home Owners Loan Corporation in exchange for those guaranteed as to interest only, holdings of obligations fully guaranteed by the United States Government increased $99,000,000 at all reporting member banks and holdings of "other securities," which include obligations guaranteed by the United States Government as to interest only, declined $121,000,000.

Business Man Claims New Air Travel Mark

Cambridge, Md., June 11 (AP).—Setting a time of two hours and 38 minutes for the 476 miles from New England to the Maryland Eastern Shore, Arthur L. Johnson, New England business man, today claimed a new airplane sped record from New England to the Shore.

His pilot was Capt. Joshua Crane, jr., formerly of the Navy. Last November Johnson made the distance in three hours and 33 minutes.

475 Awarded Their Diplomas At Morgantown

Pilgrims and Citizens Are Needed, Dr. Hutchins Tells Graduates.

By the Associated Press.

Morgantown, W. Va., June 11.—Urged to "walk the pathway to the city of their heart's desire," 475 young men and women of West Virginia University today received degrees at the sixty-eighth annual commencement exercises.

Twenty-five students received master of arts degrees, 18 master of science, and 10 doctorates, the others receiving bachelor of science and bachelor of arts degrees.

Dr. William J. Hutchins, president of Berea College, Berea, Ky., delivering the commencement address, told the graduates that they could mold their future "with the forces that have made your country a land worth loving."

He declared that it is popular nowadays to say that the past generation made "quite a mess" of this civilization.

"But it is always to be noted that the smart young things who talk in this way draw their life from books which are the life blood of the master spirits of the past, enjoy the privileges of libraries which they did not build, owe to this somewhat messy civilization the freedom of the press and of the platform, the freedom of education which now permits them to proclaim their revolt and their great illumination."

Citing the story of the "Pilgrim's Progress," Dr. Hutchins said:

"The need of the hour is this: Men and women who shall be at once citizens and pilgrims—pilgrims with the hearts of citizens, citizens with the hearts of pilgrims. It is the glory of an education that it gives the man a chance to be at once a citizen and a pilgrim."

Maryland School Holds Exercises

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., June 11.—The eighty-ninth annual commencement of the Academy of the Visitation, B. V. M., was held yesterday with the address to the graduates by the Rev. Henri Kiesel. Miss Helen Marie Stretmaster, Washington, was the salutatorian. Secretarial diplomas were awarded to Miss Evelyn Hoffman, Frederick; Miss Harriet Engelbrecht, Frederick, and Miss Charlotte Kennedy, Frederick.

Scholarships in the junior department were awarded to the Misses Mary Florence Selby, Anne Monmonier, Katherine Flaherty, Patricia Maloney, Mabel Krantz, Helen Bennett, Pauline Ross Myers, Patricia Bennett, Jane Maloney and Claire Feeley.

Barton High School Commencement Held

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Barton, Md., June 11.—Graduation exercises for Barton High School were held tonight in the school auditorium, with Principal Gilbert C. Cooling presiding. The address was delivered by Lieut. C. S. Waynesboro Recalls $40,500 School Bonds

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., June 11.—A saving of more than $800 to taxpayers was made by the Waynesboro School Board in special meeting yesterday when $40,500 in bonds of the issue of 1907 and 1911 were recalled. From the sinking fund $10,000 of the bonds were paid off, leaving the bonded indebtedness of the district $110,500. A new issue of $30,500, in 3 per cent bonds, is being offered to replace the issues called.

HOLC May Save Home Would-Be Bride Told

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., June 11.—The "attractive" 24-year-old Ashby, Mass., girl who'll marry any Richmonder who'll lift the mortgage from her home and spend some money for repairs, was told today to tell her troubles to Uncle Sam who might arrange to get her a HOLC loan.

"The bank has my home and I must get it back as soon as possible," she wrote Chamber of Commerce Secretary Malcolm Bridges. "So therefore I'd be willing to marry immediately."

Heads Outline Church's Plans In Maryland

Leaders of Consolidated Denominations Meet in Frederick.

By the Associated Press.

Frederick, Md., June 11.—Plans for work of the Potomac Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed Church were outlined here today by leaders of the general synod of the recently united church.

Dr. George W. Richards, Lancaster, Pa., president of the general synod, told of the union of the two churches and said that prospects are good for the future. Dr. William E. Lampe, Philadelphia, outlined the work of the church.

The Rev. Edgar F. Hoffmeier, Hanover, Pa., a member of the committee which planned the constitution for the new denomination, spoke on the physical organization of the body. The old Reform Church, he said, was divided into 68 classes and the evangelical synod into 20 districts.

The new group will have six areas and 35 synods. The general synod is to meet biennially and each of the synods annually. Each synod will include approximately 20,000 members.

100,000 Form A Human Fence For Marchers

They came to watch the Shriners on parade—the 100,000 and more who formed a jostling, shouting, human fence along the curbs, filled the grandstands and framed themselves, like living portraits, in every available downtown office window.

Some came because they had husbands or fathers or brothers or sweethearts among the fez-topped marchers, who tramped a heroic pathway to an imaginary Mecca up Pennsylvania avenue, thoroughfare of Presidents, and, for the day, thoroughfare of potentates and their followers, as well.

Bust most of the milling, excited thousands came because they loved a pared, and the pageantry of 3,630 costumed men, clad in most of the rainbow's colors, swinging up the streets beneath a warm June sun that made the asphalt reminiscent of the traditional desert sands.

Garner Reviews Parade.

They loved the thump-thumping of the big, gaily-decorated bass drums of the bands. They loved the glitter of the tin scimitars some of the drum majors waved furiously, and the razzle-dazzle of the batons the others carried.

In the grand stand, cool and fresh as lettuce, were most of the ladies of the Shrine, who watched their husbands swing past the imperial potentate, Vice President Garner and the other dignitaries in the reviewing stand. With them were the thousands who had purchased seats for the great pageant which marched, a seemingly endless, colorful caravan, past them.

But in the streets along the line of march were many thousands more, some poorly dressed, some garbed as though they were part of an Old World fiesta crowd.

Some Arrive at Dawn.

Long before the first units began to sweep everything before them in the great parade, the crowds started gathering. Some who loved parades particularly well were out at dawn, sitting on the curbs, so that when the great moment arrived, they would miss nothing.

Among these were many children. There were boys and girls who were to see their first Shrine parade, and who doubtless had memories of the circus fresh in their young minds.

There were stout ladies who came later and rented the camp chairs the hawkers sold. Many of those who rented chairs were relegated to the background when the parade got under way because the squirming, twisting, pushing, shoving legions who love parades edged in front of them, but no offense was meant.

Only Three Children Lost.

Dignified old gentlemen with the greatees of the storybook Carolina colonels of a mellower era, rubbed elbows with debutantes in silken summer dresses, bowed and begged their pardon in soft accents.

There owere fat men who took up too much space in the throngs, and slim men who slid gracefully now this way, now that, and peered over the chic hats of shorter ladies at the marchers as they swung by, past the oriental orches that made of the city Spangleland.

In the milling thousands were youngsters who clung tight to their mothers' and fathers' hands so tight, in fact, that police reported only three got lost. These were quickly claimed as headquarters, and everything ended well.

Atop the Treasury Department Building spectators massed like a thousand and one human pillars. Not a single office window was vacant, and from some of the buildings showers of torn paper and confetti fell to the street.

Unofficial Holiday.

The morning became an unofficial holiday for Government workers whose offices were along the line of march. Work was forgotten, for in the streets outside and below were bands, men, horses, cannon and camels!

"That, Reginald, is your daddy," a mother told her small son, lifting him high.

"And that, Isabella, is your uncle Cedric. Doesn't he look grand?"

The Reginalds and Isabellas were particularly impressed when they caught glimpses of the wooden soldiers of Kismet Temple, Brooklyn, N. Y. The tall Shriners, their faces painted as though they had just been turned out of a mammoth German toy shop.

In the crowds were Mr. and Mrs. Jones, and Mr. and Mrs. Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. Grundy, and all their neighbors. They saw the spectacle through lorgnettes, through tortoise spectacles, through sun glasses and monocles. Some were worried and glum when they arrived, but quickly they forgot their troubles.

Three Camels in Parade.

For instance, at the very end of the parade, Zox Temple, of Madison, Wis., appeared with three real camels, Nobles astride them.

The vendors did a land office business. They sold everything from canes and miniature fezzes to hot dogs and peanuts. The solemnity of Mecca's blazing path failed to counteract the American appetite for soft drinks and hamburgers. They sold balloons with the likenesses of Shriners on them.

Vines Is Bruised, Boy Dies in Crash

Netman's Wife Is Injured in Auto Collision.

Clinton, Iowa, June 11.—Ellsworth Vines, automobile, en route to New York City, collided with another car west of Clinton. Mrs. Vines, driving the car while her husband slept, was cut about the head and taken to a hospital for treatment.

Rober Crampton, 14, riding with his father, William Crampton, 45, a farmer, was fatally injured in the crash. He died in a hospital. The father was reported in serious condition.

Potentates and Politicos Review Parade

Almas Passes in Review.

Ornamented only with a broad smile and a red fez, in contrast with the multi-colored uniforms which were coming, Potentate Smith next came by on foot, escorted by his divan and several of his predecessors. The Almas units—band, drum corps, legion of honor and patrol—followed, first of the uniformed bodies in line, as befitted the host aggregation.

Kora, Lewiston (Me.) Temple, of which Imperial Potentate Williams is a member, came after Almas, its band playing the Maine stein song. Mr. Williams stopped his official white car long enough to throw a kiss in the direction of the reviewing stand. Anah had next place because it is the other Maine temple (Bangor).

Each in his own convention car, the imperial divan drove by in the order of priority. They were Hugh M. Caldwell, chief rabban; Clyde I. Webster, assistant rabban; Walter S. Sugden, high priest and prophet; A. A. D. Rahn, oriental guide; James C. Burger, treasurer; James H. Price, recorder; Walter D. Cline, first ceremonial master; George F. Olendorf, second ceremonial master; Thomas C. Law, marshal; Albert H. Fiebach, captain of the guard, and Morley E. Mackenzie, outer guard.

Mecca Temple Is Oldest.

They preceded the band, patrol and other nobles representing Cyprus, President Roosevelt's home temple, of Albany, N. Y. From this point on the order of march was based on seniority of affiliation. Accordingly, Mecca Temple, of New York City, founded in 1872, headed the first division, and Zor, the Madison (Wis.) contingent, which celebrates its third birthday next month, brought up the rear.

The Mount Sinai Band provided the first strutting drum major, a 6-footer under a white shako, who was roundly applauded. In this unit was the 25-year-old motor car, filled with Shriners waving tiny parasols.

Al Koran boasted a 250-pound horn player in its band but yielded the palm, so far as the number of pieces was concerned, to Medinah's 110-piece aggregation which followed. Medinah, the Chicago temple, is the largest of all Shrine units with its 20,000 members. About 1,000 marched in the parade, including a large Arab patrol in green trimmed with white and a group of chanters who megaphoned a tune entitled "Howdy Do, Almas Temple."

Saber-Swinging Leader.

Murat, of Indianapolis, had a saber-swinging band leader who slashed the thin air with each measure of "Back Home in Indiana." Its patrol fired a small cannon at intervals. Oriental's band and patrol were togged out in grey uniforms. Pyramid, from Bridgeport, Conn., floated up the avenue in white blouses and cerise pantaloons.

Syria, of Pittsburgh, second only to Medinah in membership, boasted a wheeled banner which will be illuminated at tonight's show, a cannon, a 48-piece band, an Arab patrol with a blue-yellow color motif, an Oriental band, a Legion of Honor which is one of the largest and oldest, and a trio of musicians representing the "Spirit of '76."

Officers of Moslem Temple, Detroit, drove past in Fords, a bold gesture in a parade which was largely a product of General Motors. Baltimore's Boumi Temple had a band with a drum six feet in diameter.

Acca's band from Richmond followed a colored boy, very dour faced, who hauled the bass drum. Osiris' band, led by a drum major with trick knees, played the West Virginia song as it passed Vice President Garner.

Garner Keeps on Feet.

Mr. Garner showed no signs of fatigue at the conclusion of the first division march, although he stood throughout and accorded each unit a stiff salute.

The drum major of Rameses' band, here from Toronto, was too tired to raise his baton. The band played "The Star-Spangled Banner." Kismet showed off a dozen nobles dressed as wooden soldiers and marching accordingly. Ismailia's corps of musicians played "Dixie" to the stroke of a baton wielded by a herculean leader.

Al Malaikah sent a large delegation all the way from Los Angeles. Probably the most attractive uniforms were those worn by the patrol of Morocco Temple, Jacksonville, Fla. The color scheme was white and green.

Yaarab, of Atlanta, brought cheers with its painting of the "Little White House, Warm Springs." A gong with a distinctly wicked ring punctuated the emissions of the Oriental band. The Mandan Indians from Fargo, N. Dak., next made their salaam before the reviewing box, followed by Hamasa Temple's contingent, led by its potentate, who is Representative Aubert C. Dunn, of Meridian, Miss.

Steam Calliope Blares.

Next were Aladdin, which was the temple of President Warren G. Harding; Oasis, of Charlotte, N. C., and Sphinx, whose patrol members wore white tropical hats instead of fezes. Sphinx is located at Hartford, Conn. Beni-Kedem contributed, besides the usual band, patrol, etc., a float bearing a small orchestra playing "When I Grow Too Old to Dream." Also a steam calliope.

The rather long pause which intervened before Salaam came along was utilized by the radio announcer's eulogizing General Motors and its public-mindedness in donating the amplification system, not to mention the 350 automobiles used by imperial officers, convention officials and others.

A mounted guard of 32 men was the distinguishing feature of Salaam's delegation from Newark, N. J. Even the potentate, August Franke, rode horseback. A bagpipers' band made the crowds consider Luxor, St. John's, Newfoundland. Incidentally, this unit and Rameses were the only "foreign" temples in the parade.

Jaffa was a proud aggregation with its 70-piece band and drum corps, good sized patrol and Legion of Honor. Cairo, from Rutland, Vt., was the last temple in the second division.

Last-Minute Entrants.

Mounted on a prancing stallion, Maj. Lane Schofield ushered in the third division, whose first unit was Lu Lu Temple, Philadelphia. The Lu Lus didn't reach Washington until the parade had got under way, but they got into line in time. Their principal bid for attention was two separate bands and a drum corps, numbering more than 200 musicians altogether. The chanters halted before the Presidential box long enough to serenade Mr. Garner and W. Freeland Kendrick, former Mayor of Philadelphia and chairman of the board of trustees of the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children.

Zembo's band played "My Maryland." Its chanters wore tuxedos. Bektash had a couple of nobles disguised as Kentucky colonels, although they come from Concord, N. H. El Kurafeth was next, followed by Khedive, Nemesis, Kerbela and Arabia, the latter audaciously attired in flaming orange jackets and white trousers.

"Dixie" issued from the Kazim band and a battalion of blue-shirted members wheeled a cannon. A Negro dressed in white had a good time carrying two cans, whose contents was not divulged, for the Sudan boys from New Bern, N. C. Mahi's drum major salaamed to Vice President Garner and his imperial superiors and then skipped off gayly.

Camels End Display.

The Vice President was looking at his watch when Tigris came by but now the parade was almost over. Ali Ghan swept up, including its chanters in cerise capes and a big drum drawn by two ponies, and then Zor brought the picturesque display to a close on the strains of "On Wisconsin." Zor and Rufus, the two adult camels, were mounted. Zora, the youngster, was led along the route.

And that was the parade, a carefree exhibition of fraternal color and camaraderie. After all this, it is anti-climatic to add that there were band concerts, luncheons and banquets afterward.

W. Freeland Kendrick, chairman, announced last night following a meeting of the hospital board of trustees that Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors Corporation, may come here for ceremonies tomorrow at which 15 Shrine flags will be presented, one for each of the children's hospitals maintained by the Shrine.

The presentation will take place at 12:30 p. m. in front of the Willard Hotel and will be broadcast. Mr. Kendrick will accept the gifts. Twelve of the hospitals for crippled children are in the United States, two in Canada and one in Honolulu.

The first order of business when the Imperial Council resumes its session at the National Theater at 9 a. m. today will be election of officers, Imperial Potentate Williams declared. L. P. Steuart, now Deputy Imperial Potentate, will be elevated to the highest post as Mr. Williams steps down and other members of the imperial divan will be moved up likewise.

Only one contest is expected, and that is for the position of imperial outer guard which will be vacated by Morley E. Mackenzie when he rises a notch to the role of captain of the guard. Those who have announced their candidacies are Dr. Fred Fletcher Whitcomb, of Omaha; James N. Galbraith, jr., of Mexico City; William H. Woodfield, of San Francisco; Alfred G. Arvold, of Fargo, N. Dak., and George H. Rowe, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Tonight's parade, which starts at 8 p. m. and follows the same route, will be practically the same as yesterday's except that the addition of numerous floats and "startling electrical effects" will make it more elaborate. Other events today include an exhibit at the Navy Yard, a massed band concert in the Ellipse, Army demonstrations in the Monument Grounds, a grand ball in honor of the imperial potentate-elect and dancing in Fifteenth street between Pennsylvania and Constitution avenues.

The fireworks display which was scheduled for 11 p. m. was canceled yesterday but the more pretentious exhibition of pyrotechnics planned for tomorrow night will be held.

Also in the reviewing stand were, left to right, Jean Wallace, daughter of the Secretary of Agriculture; Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. Roper and Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper.

Always belittl'n—these New York cops.

After the Shrine parade had passed, a District policeman, with some pride, turne dto his New York helper, and said

"Certainly some swell parade, wasn't it"

"Aw, it was fair."

"Must been 15,000 in those stands near the White House."

"Yeah," said the New Yorker, suppressing a yawn.

"Ever seen a crowd like this before"

"Betcha never saw a mob like this all at once," urged the District policeman.

"Aw, whaddya talkin' about," cracked the New Yorker, "we draw more people than this at a Macy sale!"

Patrick Henry Estate Bill Favorably Voted

By the Associated Press.

The House Public Lands Committee yesterday reported favorably the bill by Representative Burch (Democrat), Virginia, to provide for acquisition by the United States of Red Hill, the estate of Patrick Henry, located in Charlotte County, Virginia, according to the Associated Press.

The property acquired would be set up as the Patrick Henry National Monument and "shall be a public national monument to Patrick Henry."

Epidemic of Measles In Hagerstown Wanes

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 11.—An epidemic of measles, which has been prevalent here for two months, is on the wane, the Health Department announced.

The outbreak made its appearance in Frederick County and then spread to Washington County. Several hundred cases, mostly among school children, developed here.

You Saw March, But Did You See These Oddities?

Reporter Notes Sky-Writer and Spectators With Periscopes.

The three camels of the Zor Temple, of Madison, Wis., brought thunderous applause from the crowds. Astride each beast of the desert was a Shriner. Attendants guided the mounts by pieces of rope, attached to halters. Their appearance at the very end of the parade held interest just as the audiences in the grandstand were preparing to dissolve.

Droning high above the marchers, a sky-writer smoked out numerous greetings from the exhaust of his plane. He stunted back and forth and up and down the heavens while thousands of necks were craned.

Here and there appeared stubby wooden periscopes, which made standing on tip-toe unnecessary.

The price of the hot dogs bought in the marching area was no more than usual. The same went for soft drinks bought from stands.

With his fez at a jaunty angle, one old Shriner drove a horse and buggy straight across the Capitol Plaza, while amazed Representative looked on, exclaiming: "I guess that fellow never heard of the taxi artike!"

Numerous marching units, particularly Murat Temple, of Indianapolis, Ind., had miniature cannons, from which occasional explosions popped.

Sudan Temple, of New Bern, N. C., came in for a big hand from the crowds when the announcer complimented the Carolina Nobles on their excellent showing.

"They come," said he, "from the greatest bright leaf tobacco market in the world."

Playing "On Ohio," the Aladdin Temple marchers from Columbus, Ohio, swept by the reviewing stand and took the salute of Vice President Garner.

When the Rameses Temple patrol from Toronto, Oont., passed the reviewing stand, its band played the familiar strains of "America," which also are those of "God Save the King."

In a quandary, the spectators seated in the grandstand stood, then debated which patriotic anthem had been intended.

When Moslem Temple, of Detroit, went through perfectly executed manoeuvers, doing squads left and squads right along the line of march, they drew thunderous applause.

From Salaam Temple, Newark, N. J., came a special mounted patrol, which added dash and vim and color to the parade. The unit had almost passed the reviewing stand when the announcer informed spectators the mounted men were from Newark, N. Y.

Several of the drum majors led their Oriental bands with huge tin scimitars, which they brandished with gay abandon to the delight of the crowds.

Following the New Bern, N. C., patrol walked a solemn blackamoore, carrying, suspended from a yoke around his neck, two cans of New Bern "milk." The crowd was curious.

Funeral Held for Girl Killed in Auto Crash

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Kitzmiller, Md., June 11.—The funeral of Miss Julia Burton, 21, killed in an auto crash near Tyrone, Pa., early Saturday, while en route to this place to attend the graduation of her sister, Martha, from Kitzmiller High School tomorrow, was held today in the Methodist Episcopal Church. Burial was in Deer Park Cemetery. The Rev. Earl Carlson, pastor, officiated. Members of the graduating class were pallbearers. The girl was a graduate of the Kitzmiller School.

She was with her brother, Earl Burton, en route from Binghamton, N. Y., to Vindex, near here, where their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Burton, live. Their car, crowded to the side of the road by a truck, according to young Burton, struck the abutment of a narrow bridge. Miss Burton, who is believed to have been asleep, was killed instantly. Her brother received severe lacerations on the arm and a deep cut on the forehead. The truck did not stop and it is believed the driver was not aware any accident had occurred.

Rockefeller Board Scans Health System

Baltimore, June 11 (AP).—Two public health students today began a study of Maryland's health methods under the auspices of the Rockefeller Foundation.

Dr. Alexander D. Langmuir, of Massachusetts, a graduate of the Cornell Medical School, and Francis S. Cheever, a third-year medical student at Harvard, have begun their work with the State board of health. They will aso study the Baltimore City health department and the organization in Anne Arundel County.

Receives Appointment.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., June 11.—Harry M. Wallace, jr., son of Mrs. Harry M. Wallace, has received notification of his appointment as alternate to the United States Military Academy at West Point. Wallace, Waynesboro High graduate, was appointed by Representative Harry L. Haines.

Musical Riders Perform Today Before Nobles

A musical ride by 24 crack cavalrymen will mark an exhibition drill and horse show honoring visiting Shriners tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at Fort Myer.

The renowned musical ride event has been the main attraction of countless exhibitions of trained horseflesh. The riders will be the same experts of the Third Cavalry who appeared before 60,000 spectators some time ago in Atlantic City.

Admission to the show ring and parking space will be free. The public as well as Shriners will be admitted.

A parade of entires will be the first event. The order: Officers' chargers, parade equipment; officers' chargers, field equipment; troopers' mounts, parade equipment; troopers' mounts, full field equipment; light machine gun squad, heavy machine gun squad, scout cars, hunters and polo ponies.

Co-ordination and training will be demonstrated by six riders in a polo pony class.

Another event will consist of hunters.

Thrills were promised by a group of specially selected officers who will put on an Olympic jumping show.

Another class will include teams of three hunters.

The show will close with a demonstration drill by the Third Cavalry machine gun troop, commanded by Capt. Herbert L. Earnest. The purpose will be to show the maneuverability of such units and the speed with which they may go from mounted to dismounted action when called on to offer fire support.

Noted Vice Officer Here for Conclave

Among the out-of-town policemen who are here for the Shrine convention is Inspector Frank Schnell, of Detroit, said by local policemen to be one of the most efficient vice-squadmen in the country. He came here on the direct request of Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, chief of detectives.

Schnell has been working here with Detective Sergts. Robert J. Barrett and Ban D. Hughes, of the pick-up squad. They supplied Schnell's professional history. He is the only man in Detroit who ever worked on vice for more than a year, and his is answerable only to the police commissioner there.

Schnell was appointed to head the vice squad in 1926, after the Rockefeller Foundation had issued a report calling Detroit one of the worst cities in the Nation from a standpoint of vice. He was given 48 men to clean up the city, but now needs only 20 to keep it clean. He made a record of 3,400 vice convictions in one year in the Michigan city.

Missionary Baptists Will Meet Tomorrow

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Father Connell Will Be Buried In Cumberland

Pastor of Holy Comforter Church in D. C. Dies of Pneumonia.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 11.—The Rev. James E. Connell, 64, pastor of Holy Comforter Catholic Church, Washington, D. C., a former resident of Cumberland, died yesterday at Providence Hospital, Washington, of pneumonia. He had been in ill health for some weeks.

A son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Connell, he was born in Pittsburgh, but came here in his youth, where he attended school. He was graduated from St. Charles College, Baltimore, and St. Mary's Seminary, Ellicott City, from which he was ordained by the late Cardinal Gibbons. He served a brief period in a parish near Baltimore, and was then sent to Oakland, Md., where he was pastor of St. Peter's Church over 20 years, going from there to Washington. The body will be brought here for burial in St. Patrick's Cemetery.

Father Connell leaves five brothers, C. Leo Connell, postmaster of Westernport, Md.; Desk Sergeant William M. Connell, Eugene A., Arthur P. and L. Victor Connell, and one sister, Mrs. William E. Yarnall, of Cumberland.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Lonaconing, Md., June 11.—Funeral services were held here for Charles Bowden, sr., 81, this afternoon at the home of his son, Frederick T. Bowden, jr. The Rev. Selden Connor Adams, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, officiated. Burial was in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Bowden was born in Cornwall, England. He had been a coal miner and foreman and manager of the Lonaconing ice plant. He was a director of the First National Bank and an organizer of the Oak Hill Cemetery Association. Mr. Bowden died at the home of his other son, Charles S. Bowden, Turtle Creek, Pa. He was the grandfather of Charles W. Bowden, of the editorial staff of the Cumberland Daily News.

Roosevelt Due Tonight to See Shrine Parade

By a Staff Correspondent.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 11.—Refreshed by a five-day visit to his Hyde Park home, President Roosevelt tonight prepared to leave for West Point Military Academy tomorrow, where he will present diplomas to the graduating class and then return immediately to the Capital to review Shrine parades.

The President this morning disposed of the last of the huge pile of correspondence which he brought with him from Washington and then for several hours worked on the address he will deliver tomorrow at West Point.

This done, he climbed into an open automobile and, taking advantage of the first warm, sunny day of his visit, rode about his large estate. He showed especial interest in the new swimming pool at the Cottage, a Roosevelt playhouse, 2 miles distant from the mansion proper. Swimming is the President's chief sport, and he will make full use of the new pool this summer.

The presidential party will leave here early tomorrow by motor for West Point, 33 miles distant, on the other side of the Hudson River. The President's military and naval aids will accompany him and all the official protocol will be observed on his arrival at the Military Academy.

The party will leave West Point by special train shortly before noon, arriving in Washington in time for early dinner. Mr. Roosevelt has invited several friends to join him in reviewing the Shrine parade tomorrow night. He also will witness the Thursday night parade and pageant of the Shriners.

Wedding Gown Review Held in Greencastle

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Greencastle, Pa., June 11.—At a wedding-gown review held in Greencastle last week, a 250-year-old shawl was worn by Miss Jane Walker, whose great-great-great-grandmother had first worn it. A veil, more than 100 years old was worn by Miss Hilda Stull. It was first worn by the mother of Mrs. Alice Wolff, of Waynesboro, in 1828.

Wedding gowns of more recent years, and gowns dating back to 1849, were exhibited in the review, which was witnessed by several hundred people from Waynesboro, Chambersburg, Mercersburg, Hagerstown and many other points in the Cumberland Valley.

Roosevelt's Message to Nobles

I take the very greatest pleasure in extending to you a most hearty welcome on the occasion of this decennial pilgrimage to the Capital of your country—the mecca, not only of the 100 temples of your organization, but of the home of more than one hundred millions of our citizens whose interest, cooperation, and loyalty are vital to the successful functioning of our American democracy.

Every genuine organization has its own merits—its own distinct contribution to make. You Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, in your devotion to the maintenance of hospitals for crippled children and to other enterprises of philanthropic endeavor are daily attaining to the lofty standards implicit in the titular designation of your members. But you do not thus carry, as mere duty, your share of the social load; you appreciate that the problems of life are too serious always to be taken seriously, and you practice the belief that gayety of spirit is a healthful reinforcement to the things that make life sane and sound.

In this spirit Washington receives you; the preparations made throughout the length and breadth of the city are the visible evidences of the warmth of its feeling for you. The Capital of your country invites you to relax in the cordiality of its welcome: that you may be fortified to renew that journey, which—as we all know—will lie through both oasis and desert, but which can never be entirely either the one or the other.

Fellow Nobles, I bid you welcome to Washington.

Cab Operators Flayed on 'Hill' For 'Hijacking'

Nichols, Oklahoma, Calls for Boycott; May Threatens Probe.

rage' 'and "a crying shame." His speech was often interrupted by the yells of members.

"What companies wanted this increase?" Nichols shouted.

"Well, I'll tell you—the Diamond and Union. There were many other companies which did not ask the privilege of hijacking the Shriners."

He pleaded with members to patronize companies still observing the 20, 30, 50 and 70 cent rates, which he listed as: Bell, Blue Light, Premier, City, American, Yellow, Minute, Harlem and General.

Blanton said District authorities should revoke the permits of all drivers who raised their fees.

The strike was deplored by Representative John E. Rankin (Democrat), Mississippi. He said low cab rates were among the inducements which brought the Shriners here and added:

"I understand that two other scheduled conventions already have been canceled because of this outrage."

Cab Halted 3 Times, He Says.

May, obviously angry and determined to get action, told the House how he was forced to take a street car after his cab was halted three times Monday as he rode from the Roosevelt Hotel toward the Capitol.

"My driver," he shouted, "had to protect himself with a hammer both in front of the hotel and at Fourteenth and U streets when striking drivers tried to interfere with him.

"Then, when we got to Thomas Circle about 15 men stepped the cab and started to pull the driver out of a window. I knocked loose the grip of the fellow who tried to pull him out by the neck.

"The first thing I knew, they opened the door from the other side, pulled the driver out, locked his cab and threw the keys away."

Asked whether he summoned aid, May said a policeman witnessed the fight, but refused his request to intervene.

Strikers "Impudent."

"The strikers," he protested, "were impudent and discourteous to me. I told them I had an important committee meeting to attend and wanted to be permitted to go on to the Capitol in the cab.

"They replied they didn't give a damn about committees, Congressmen or Congress. I finally got on a street car."

May said he would introduce a resolution asking for an investigation of the strike by the House District Committee and pointing out the "rights" of a member of Congress had been invaded because he was interrupted as he sought to reach the Capitol.

Hohensee was questioned by the P. U. C. Later Richmond B. Keech, a commission member, said that agency was without authority to take any further action in the situation.

Authority Limited, He Says.

Under existing law, Keech said, the commission has only limited authority. He said the P. U. C. probably would act later, after the President signs the District appropriation bill, approved by both Houses, which contains a provision empowering the commission to promulgate uniform zones and rates.

Indications were such action, unless sped by Congress, would be delayed for 30 days as a hearing, with ten days' notice to the interested parties, and other legal technicalities would have to be conformed with.

Keech said the police and the District Commissioners alone had authority to revoke the licenses of cab drivers.

To further complicate the controversy, lawyers recalled that the District Supreme Court, in a taxi-cab meter case some time ago, held imposition of fares by zones would be illegal.

Artists to Compete on Mural For Hagerstown Post Office

The postoffice at Hagerstown, Md., is to have a large mural panel, under plans announced yesterday by the Treasury Department's procurement division, public works branch.

A competition open to artists of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia calls for submission of designs for the panel, which will be 20 feet wide by 8 feet high, to be placed over the postoffice screen directly opposite the entrance door.

As a part of the competition for the Hagerstown project, the section of painting and sculpture of the procurement division has included three small murals for the postoffice at Hyattsville. The artist who does the best non-winning design for the Hagerstown postoffice will be commissioned to do the smaller murals for the Hyattsville postoffice.

The procurement division has made available $2,700 to cover the complete cost of execution and installation of the Hagerstown mural, and $620 for those to be placed in the Hyattsville postoffice.

The proposed mural for Hagerstown should deal with either the post; local history, past or present; local industry, pursuits or scenery. Designs should be submitted not later than December 1, at Studio House, 1614 Twenty-first street northwest. Artists should apply to the committee supervising the competition for details before beginning their sketches, the announcement said. C. Lewis Watkins, director of Studio House, is chairman of the committee. Other members are Henry S. T. White, architect of the Hagerstown postoffice, and James Carl Medford, director of the Washington County Museum of Fine Arts in Hagerstown.

Church Selects Its Delegates To Lynchburg

Charlottesville Christian Names 7 to Attend Annual Meeting.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 11.—The local Christian Church has elected seven delegates, S. E. Wade, E. L. Cave, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Walker, H. L. Simmons, W. B. Jones and Mrs. Nora Roberts to the 103d annual convention of the Disciples of Christ in Virginia and the sixtieth annual meeting of the Virginia Christian Society, which meets at Lynchburg College, in Lynchburg, next Sunday, and continues through Wednesday.

Sunday in the convention program will be Layman's Day, with Prof. J. T. T. Hundley, of Lynchburg, presiding. The morning sermon will be preached by Howard E. Jensen of Duke University, Durham, N. C., and will be followed by a fellowship dinner on the college campus. The afternoon speaker will be Earl Crawford, of Connersville, Ind., and at 7 p. m. there will be a vesper service, with an address by Dr. Jensen.

Board Meetings.

The first business session Monday will be taken up with board meetings, while the afternoon meeting will be presided over by F. B. Sapp, vice president. Speakers listed are Joseph M. Smith, of Yale University; A. R. Everett, of Indianapolis, Ind.; C. M. Ford, of Pendleton, and R. H. Miller, of Washington.

First Vice President C. B. Reynolds will preside at the night service, when the delegates will be welcomed by J. T. T. Hundley. G. E. Owen, of Winchester, will deliver the response. The speaker will be the president of the convention, Dr. F. W. Burnham, of Richmond.

Missions will be discussed at Tuesday's sessions, and the speakers will be H. G. Haney, of Richmond; C. M. Yocum and Mrs. Ora Leigh Shepherd, of Indianapolis; R. H. Miller, of Washington; C. M. Gordon, of Norfolk, and G. Edwin Osborn, of Richmond.

College Report.

At the business session Wednesday morning, Prof. Hundley will read the report of Lynchburg College, while that on religious education will be made by Percy Thomas, of Richmond. Morning speakers will include M. E. Sadler, of Lynchburg; Clifford H. Jope, of Washington, and A. E. Cory, of Indianapolis.

In the afternoon meeting G. H. Steed, of Miami, Fla., will speak and at 4:30 there will be a memorial service, led by F. W. Long, of Clifton Forge. At the vesper service the sermon will be delivered by R. H. Miller, of Washington. His subject will be "The Spiritual Replacements."

The closing session Wednesday night will open with a song service, and will be followed by a cantata, directed by Arthur Wake. The soloists will include Mrs. Arthur Wake, Mrs. James Beeler, Mrs. George Burke, Mrs. Willet Rohr, Mrs. John Lineberg, and Arthur Wake, jr. The closing address will be by Dr. R. H. Miller, of Washington.

Landlord Pays Fine For Alimony Contempt

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 11.—William A. Spruill, apartment house owner and former chain store manager, was fined $20 and costs yesterday by Judge David A. Robb for contempt of court. Judge Robb said the records showed that Spruill had been haled into court five times for contempt in failing to pay alimony to his wife, Mrs. Mabel Spruill.

He was told if he came back in court on similar charges he would be fined and jailed.

Oldtown High School Gives Diplomas to 13

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Oldtown, Md., June 11.—Thirteen seniors received diplomas at the commencement of Oldtown High School tonight in the school auditorium. They were conferred by W. Russell Brewer, member of the Allegany County Board of Education. James E. Spitznas, State supervisor of high schols, addressed the graduates.

Closing exercises also were held for the Junior High School when 25 boys and girls received diplomas.

W. G. GIBBONS,

Westerner Becomes Shriner Emeritus

The honor of member emeritus of the imperial council of the Shrine was conferred yesterday upon W. G. Gibbons, of Muskogee, Okla.

Since 1911, when the Bedouin Temple applied for its charter at the convention in Rochester, N. Y., Gibbons has been attending the annual conclaves.

Virginia Prefers Common Labor

Most of Road Work Will Employ Pick, Shovel Men.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., June 11.—Most of the road work done in Virginia under rules governing the expenditure of work-relief funds will be confined to the pick and shovel and common labor, State highway officials indicated here today.

The comment was made as officials pondered a set of regulations formulated by the Federal Government to apply an expenditure of the $7,400,000 work-relief funds for highway construction and the elimination of grade crossings. The crossing elimination specifications stipulate that 90 per cent of the labor be obtained from relief rolls, one official said, pointing out that this ignored the fact that bridge construction over railways requires skilled workmen not usually found on relief.

Upturn in Coal Loading Reported by B.&O. Line

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Grafton, W. Va., June 11.—A sharp upward swing in the number of coal cars loaded on the Monongah division in the first week of June was reported by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad officials today. For the first seven days there was a total of 5,431 cars loaded, which is almost double the figure of 2,678 cars for the corresponding period in May.

The corresponding period of June of last year saw 4,522 cars loaded and the like period in May, 1934, recorded 3,979 cars filled.

Allegany County Posts Grave Vandal Reward

Cumberland, Md., June 11 (AP).—The Allegany commissioners today voted to offer a reward for the arrest and conviction of the persons who opened the grave of Gabriel Jacobs, in old Detmold Cemetery near Lonaconing. Bones of the lower part of the skeleton were found in the opened grave and it is thought the vandals believed the grave might yield jewelry.

Jacobs was buried 87 years ago.

Shriners Told Where to Play By Night or Day

Washington and Vicinity Is Replete With Gay Cafes, Dancing Spots.

By Kay Ware.

For the benefit of visiting Shriners who may not have a guide to Washington's night spots and other havens of entertainment, here's a review of the major ones together with their personnel and points of interest.

In the downtown section you'll find all manner of restaurants, lounges and clubs. There are the Willard's Bamboo Room with Johnny Slaughter's band, and around the corner the brown, red and gold of the Washington Tap Room. No music here, but fine Manhattans.

Hotel Harrington's lounge is small, neat and pink—with elephants. That's the name of the place, Pink Elephant. Hotel Raleigh has a nice green and white small dining room.

The Mayfair Cafe of All Nations on Fourteenth and F streets is gay with murals, mirrored walls, black tables and bright turquoise-blue furniture. Macina's on E street serves real spaghetti, or whatever Italian dish you desire. Occidental Restaurant, a step west of the Willard, is famous for sea food, onion soup, steaks and photographs of notables.

Moving Farther Out.

On the Arlington Hotel's roof Moe Baer and his band play for dancing on a hardwood floor.

Connecticut avenue is fringed with fancy restaurants. There are Pierre's for French food and Pierette for cocktails. There are L'Escargot with more French dishes and Napoleon with the same. At Napoleon's you find music and singing. At the Smorgasbord you pick your appetizers from a big tiered table. At Jean, across De Sales street from the Mayflower, Italian spaghetti with anchovies is best for hot weather dinners. Italian wine is served. Ramon's attracts the younger set.

At the Mayflower, look for Sidney, music maestro. Business Manager Morris Kafka will tell you intimate details about Washington night life.

Hi-Hat At Ambassador.

At the Hamilton there's the dignity of the Alexander room, and soft music.

The Carlton cocktail lounge is about the most spectacular; with a horseshoe bar that works like an automat. The gardens are open for late breakfasts.

Still farther out is the Shoreham, biggest of Washington hotels. Here there is dining and dancing under the stars and a floor show.

At Connecticut avenue corner, before you turn to the Shoreham is a novel place called "Kaleidoscope" run by three newsmen, and full of caricatures.

In Chevy Chase vicinity is a charming farmhouse good for luncheons and dinners. It's called Brook Farm. Chevy Chase Lake brings you dancing-at-a-dime. Brook Johns holds a promise of first-rate chicken dinners and dancing. Ha Cha Club is a suburban night spot, run by two veteran show people, Dick Gardner and Josephine Larkin, who furnish entertainment themselves.

Tea Houses Numerous.

Tea house types are Olney Inn, Mrs. K's Toll House Tavern, Normandy Farms, and the Little Tea House in Alexandria.

Maryland Club Gardens, out Marlboro pike, is mammoth and varied. There's a long swimming pool, flanked by tables and umbrellas, where you dine and watch the floor show.

Other out-of-town spots are the Dude Ranch, the Jockey Club and Greater River Bend.

Cotton Club is Washington's Harlem spot.

Sea food specializers are O'Donnell's, on E street; Herzog's, on the water front, and Hall's, also near the water front. The Olmsted Grill features sea food and steaks.

Thinking Out Loud

New York, June 11.

We were discussing embarrassing moments, Conrad Nagel and myself, at the Versailles. Nagel recalled his No. 1 Boner. It happened at Detroit. At a Chamber of Commerce banquet, he spilled a plate of tomato soup on a brand-new evening gown which Mary Nash was wearing.

• • • •

Never saw a seltzer siphon bottle that I didn't want to squirt just as I've never gone to a play or a picture in which the characters did a lot of drinking that I didn't develop a tremendous thirst. Only once, however, have I yielded to the temptation to squirt a seltzer bottle in public. It was the night of the Doris Warner-Mervyn Le Roy wedding and after the ceremonies a group of us went to El Morocco. It was a long table, against the cushioned wall and to accommodate all of our party some sat along both sides, while I sat at one end and Louis Shurr sat at the other. The lights went down as George Metaxa started to sing and the waiter hurriedly distributed the drinks ordered so as to be out of the range of vision while the show was on. He left a seltzer siphon directly in front of me.

• • • •

The conflict between the baser part of my nature and the better part was a terrific brawl. "Go on, squirt it," prompted the Hyde half of my Jekyll make-up. "Think of what people will say," solemnly intoned the respectable Jekyll phase. I tore my fascinated gaze away from the little trigger of the selzer siphon, the little trigger which, pressed ever so gently, would send a stream of carbonated water into the air which was trembling to the passionate accents of Metaxa, singing of love. No one at the table knew the conflict that was raging within me. They were all looking intently at Metaxa, and the girls had lovelight in their eyes. Louis Shurr, Metaxa's manager, was particularly intent on the song and the singer. I'll never forget the raptness of Shurr's gaze in the half-gloom of El Morocco. Somebody at the next table whispered out loud. Shurr turned quickly and said: "Sh-h-h."

• • • •

It was the way that Shurr said "sh-h-h" that decided me to squirt the seltzer siphon. If he had dropped the second "h," of "sh-h-h," it is probable that what happened would not have happened, or perhaps I'm just trying to alibi my conduct. My hand stole to the trigger of the bottle and I pressed it once, but all the years of self-denial were concentrated into that one ecstatic movement. There was a fierce hiss as the imprisoned carbonated water rushed to the bottle-necked exit. A silver stream went sailing through the air and before Shurr could even turn around, the stream hit him directly on the surface of his starched white shirt. That was bad enough, but the water, still intact, caromed off him, flew across his shoulder, and splashed all over the lady sitting directly behind him.

• • • •

For the space of 15 seconds no one knew what had happened. Shurr was absolutely dazed. He felt at his starched bosom with disbelief in his eyes. The lady who had been splashed nudged her escort agitatedly. I couldn't hear what they were saying, but I could follow it in pantomime. She nudged her escort sharply, pointed vaguely to the ceiling, motioned frantically to the beads of water on her head and shoulders. The escort looked thunderstruck, held up his hands to see if there was a drip in the roof. At that moment the song ended. The lights flashed up—as dazed as were the victims—there sat I, with my hand resting on the siphon trigger.

• • • •

Had there been a hole in the floor, I would have gone through it thankfully. I've never felt so embarrassed in all my life. Cold sober. I'd done what even a drunk would hesitate to do in the full zoological flush of delirium tremens. Shurr glared at me. The lady glared at me. Her escort glared at me. The rest of the party looked astounded. Hastily I summoned a captain of waiters and directed him to go at once to the table where sat the wet lady and her escort: "Express my apologies," I muttered, "and ask them if they will have a drink with us?" Hopefully I watched my messenger, as hopefully as ever Napoleon watched couriers carrying his battle orders through the smoke of Waterloo. I saw him bend over, obsequiously, and then to my amazement the man looked up and called to me: "If you want her to dance with you, ask her yourself." The captain, instead of asking them to have a drink, had asked the escort to let me have a dance with the lady to whom I had just given a soaking. Finally, it was all straightened out. The lady was Lady Wilkins, wife of Sir Hubert Wilkins, the explorer and, luckily for me, a good scout.

• • • •

To this day, however, I'm still cursed with the desire to squeeze seltzer siphons, and although I am holding myself in check, it is only a question of time before the impulse overpowers me. I am writing this column as a message to insure the public safety. If you invite me to your homes, don't leave any of these bottles around where I can get 'em. If you own night clubs, which I frequent, don't permit the waiters to bring them to the table. You might think this one experience would have taught me a lesson, but alack and alas, it has done no such thing. And I'm getting that seltzer-siphon feeling again.

Old Typewriter Launches New Publishing Co.

Machine Was Traded for Manuscript on Spain's Ventures in U. S.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 12.—Some years ago in Spain an American scholar, with proper deference to his financial status, swapped his portable typewriter for a manuscript copy of a sixteenth century account of Spain's conquests and explorations in America.

Out of this eager yet obscure trade has grown the Quivira Society, a unique publishing venture, one that is entirely cooperative. It concerns itself only with this strangely neglected phase of our history.

The scholar, Dr. George P. Hammond, of the University of Southern California, trekked back to the United States with his find, only to be rebuffed by publishers who showed little or no interest, quite naturally, in printing a book in which there would be slight chance for profit.

Publishers Rejected Book.

"We were stuck," said Dr. Hammond recently of his efforts and those of Dr. Agapito Rey, of Indiana University.

"Meantime, I moved to the University of Arizona from the University of North Dakota and there for two years I labored over a translation. The manuscript, typewritten, by the way, was that of 'Baltsar de Obregon's History,' written in Mexico in 1584, just after the rediscovery of New Mexico by Rodriguez and Espejo. Rey and I decided to publish the book on our own initiative, and did."

The idea of forming a society really came from Dr. F. V. Hodge, said Hammond, while he and Rey were deciphering the manuscript of the Luxan account of Espejo's expedition into New Mexico.

Sold Out in Two Weeks.

"We mulled over the idea several weeks and finally decided to launch the society," Hammond continued. "When we went to press in the fall of 1929 with the Luxan account we had about 350 members. Thinking we were very bold, we got out an edition of 500 copies, and in two weeks every one was sold."

Each year since the society has published one volume relating to early Spanish conquests in what now are Mexico and the southwestern portion of the United States. The translations are made by various scholars and professors who contribute their work without recompense. Historians from 14 universities and museums now are members of the council.

This year the society's publication dealt with the diary of the Alarcon expedition into Texas in 1718-19, recently found in the Archivo General de la Nacion, Mexico City, after being misplaced for two centuries. Dr. Fritz L. Hoffman, of the University of Texas, made the translation.

Previously, the society has translated and published, besides the Luxan account, a volume on the first expedition of Don Diego de Vargas into New Mexico in 1692, by Dr. Irving A. Leonard, of the University of California.

A history of New Mexico by Gaspar Perez de Villagra, which the author wrote in heroic verse and told of the exploits of Don Juan de Onate in the last years of the sixteenth century, translated by Dr. Aurelio M. Espinosa, of Stanford University.

Air Station to Serve Colored Race Asked

By the Associated Press.

An application for a radio station at Richmond, to be manned by Negroes and to serve the members of that race in the community has been filed with the Federal Communicatoins Commission in the name of the Century Broadcasting Co., a Virginia corporation.

The purpose of the statoin as stated in the application is:

"To furnish broadcasting to a large number of people of this community, especially to colored artists and colored talent who are at present denied the same and to furnish broadcast facilities to Negro business and professional men and women, religious and fraternal societies who are at present denied the same."

The applicatoin has not yet been set for hearing.

Shrine Women Watch Parade, Have Busy Day

Mrs. Garner Joins Ladies of Imperial Divan in Box at White House.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

The 25,000 women—wives, mothers, sisters, daughters, and sweethearts of nobles of the Mystic Shrine who are in Washington for the nobles' conclave, managed to stay in one place yesterday for about two and a half hours. This was when the much-heralded parade of uniformed bodies swung down Pennsylvania avenue. But the minute the last band's blare had begun to fade and the last noble had trudged past the Pavilion of Omar the women plunged again into the whirlpool of activity which has engulfed them from the moment they arrived in the Capital.

During the parade they quietly sat in the grandstands or stood along the line of march, their summery white hats making almost as important a showing as the red fezzes of the nobles. White was by all odds the favorite for feminine headgear yesterday, whether worn by visitors or by Washingtonians.

From comfortable seats in the Presidential box in the Pavilion of Omar before the north entrance of the White House, Mrs. Robert P. Smith, wif of the Illustrious Potentate of Almas Temple and official hostess for the convention, viewed the strutting Shriners with Ladies of the Imperial Divan.

Mrs. Williams Here.

These included Mrs. Dana S. Williams, of Lewiston, Me., wife of the Imperial Potentate; Mrs. Leonard P. Steuart, of Washington, wife of the Imperial Potentate; Mrs. Hugh M. Caldwell, of Seattle, Wash., wife of the Imperial Chief Rabban; Mrs. Walter S. Sugden, of Sisterville, W. Va., wife of the Imperial High Priest and Prophet; Mrs. A. A. D. Rahn, of Minneapolis, wife of the Imperial Oriental Guide;

Mrs. James H. Price, of Richmond, wife of the imperial recorder; Mrs. Walter D. Cline, of Wichita Falls, Tex., wife of the first ceremonial master; Mrs. Thomas C. Law, of Atlanta, wife of the imperial marshal; Mrs. Albert H. Fiebach, of Cleveland, wife of the imperial captain of the guard; Mrs. Morley E. Mackenzie, of Toronto, wife of the imperial outer guard.

Mrs. Mackenzie was the "baby" of the group in point of convention experience. This is the first year she has attended a Shriners' conclave as the wife of a member of the imperial divan. The Mackenzies arrived only yesterday morning, but already Mrs. Mackenzie has caught up with the other women in their convention stride and declares the whole thing is "simply wonderful."

Two Water Companies Seek to Double Rates

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, June 11.—Public hearings on proposed rate increases by two water companies in Maryland were ordered for June 24 by the State public service commission today.

Seeking increases of more than 100 per cent for service to Willoughby Beach, the Bel Air Water & Light Co. has filed a new schedule of rates with the commission. The Ellicott City Water Co. filed a new schedule which carries increased charges ranging from 33.3 to 100 per cent. Both companies have been investigated by commission experts to ascertain need for the increases.

Morgantown Teacher Weds School Principal

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Morefield, W. Va., June 11.—John Thomas St. Claire, of Morgantown, W. Va., and Miss Lucy Lee Kuykendall, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Nathaaniel White Kuykendall, were married last Wednesday in Mars Hill Presbyterian Church, Athens, Tenn. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father. For the past four years she has taught at Moorefield High School.

St. Claire, who has been principal of junior high school at Mathias, will receive his M. A. degree at West Virginia University, this summer.

Senate Passes Bill to Limit Holding Units

Measure, Tightened, Kills All Companies More Than 'Once Removed.'

economic recovery so nearly within their grasp."

A statement issued by this organization read:

"The debate in the Senate attending the passage of the bill is probably unprecedented in the frankness with which the sponsors of the bill declared that their intention was not to regulate the industry or to prevent whatever abuses may have occurred in it, but to 'strike down' the utility holding company and ultimately to extend that policy to all holding companies in any industry.

"The bill as passed by the Senate will dissolve or dismember the great majority of utility holding companies throughout the country, and will place the 2,000 local operating utilities under the domination of a Federal bureaucracy."

The final vote on passage of the bill shattered party lines, with nine Republicans, one Progressive and one Farmer-Laborite joining 45 Democrats in the chorus of "ayes." Voting "no" were 18 Democrats and 14 Republicans.

Balloting on the Dieterich amendment to modify the holding company "death" sentence was so close that only the hasty last-minute arrival of Senator Peter Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota, broke the tie in favor of the Administration draft. Twenty-nine Democrats voted with 15 Republicans for the amendment, while 35 Democrats, eight Republicans, one Progressive and one Farmer-Laborite voted "no."

Rolls Almost Identical.

The Senate line-up on the Lonergan amendment, requiring the Securities and Exchange Commission to show on complaint, and after hearing, that a utility holding company is engaged in practices detrimental to the public interest, was identical, vote for vote, with the Dieterich roll call, with but one exception. Senator Henry F. Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, did not vote on the Lonergan proposal.

One of the broadening amendments inserted before the bill went to passage was sponsored by Senator Bennett Champ Clark (Democrat), Missouri, and brought holding companies controlling interstate gas pipe lines definitely within the scope of the bill. Senator Clark said the amendment removed exemptions from two concerns in particular—the Koppers Co. and the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

The major fight, however, centered around the Dieterich amendment to permit the Securities and Exchange Commission to remove only "unnecessary complexities which are detrimental to the interests of investors, consumers and the general public."

Dieterich, battling with but little outspoken support on his side of the aisle, declared the bill "instead of being a regulatory measure, instead of correcting the evils of the holding company system, is an effort toward public control of all of the utilities in the United States."

Wheeler Hits Back.

Wheeler struck back with the assertion that "a vote for the Dieterich amendment is a vote to kill the bill, and a vote for those power lobbyists there in the galleries."

Among the day's surprises was a bitter attack on the bill by Senator Matthew M. Neely (Democrat), West Virginia, who had been thought to be a member of the Wheeler camp. Neely declared the bill failed to make any distinction between holding companies, good or bad, and struck at thousands of small investors who put their savings in securities of holding companies they considered sound.

Exemptions under the measure are sharply limited and will carry only a few holding companies outside the pale of the bill. These exemptions may apply where the Federal Power Commission certifies a company is "necessary under the applicable State or foreign law" for the operation of a single geographically and economically integrated public utility system. Where a holding company's public utility system is predominantly intrastate in character and operates substantially in a single State, in which all companies in the system are organized, it also may be exempted.

Under the dissolution procedure outlined in the bill, the Securities and Exchange Commission, after January 1, 1938, must require each holding company be reduced to a single geographically and economically integrated public utility system, which in the Commission's judgment is not unduly complicated or detrimental to the proper functioning of the system, or which does not unfairly distribute voting power among the security holders.

Action by 1940.

Promptly after January 1, 1940, each registered holding company would be required "to take such steps (either by divesting itself of control, securities, or other assets, or by reorganization or dissolution, or otherwise) as the Commission finds necessary or appropriate to make such company cease to be a holding company.

Wheeler argued such companies need not go wholly out of existence, but could alter their structure by two alternatives. First, he said, they could turn themselves into "investment trusts" by making legal arrangements which would deprive them of their control over electric and gas companies. Second, he said, they could rearrange or reduce their holdings in operating companies, so that each holding company will control the management of only a single system, not involved in extraneous business, but "geographically or economically integrated in contiguous States."

Philip H. Gadsden, chairman of the committee of public utility executives, in his statement last night said passage of the bill will "force the utility industry to seek justice in the courts, while in the interim millions of investors are left in a condition of uncertainty and fear, and an industry with hundreds of thousands of employes is forced to stand still."

Characterizing the Senate's action as a "blow to business revival," Gadsden said the bill "represents today the major menace threatening the national welfare."

"If the Government is thus able to place 2,000 local operating utilities in the hands of a Federal bureau in Washington, there is no business enterprise, however, small, that can expect to be free from domination by the Federal Government," he said. "If the Government is thus able to set aside the rights of the States to regulate the utility business within its borders, then there is no field of State jurisdiction that is immune from Federal invasion."

Drive on Snakes Protested By Natural History Society

Slaying of 40 Copperheads Stirs Complaint to Forester.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, June 11.—A forester, said F. W. Besley, who is one, can never tell where his next trouble is coming from.

A Civilian Conservation Corps camp on State land along the Patapsco River near Avalon had been cleaning out the undergrowth and arranging trails, the State forester stated. In the course of the work they discovered snakes.

Besley advised the company commander to have his men protect skunks, blacksnakes, frogs and such wild life, but to kill off the copperhead snakes. In a short time 40 of them were slain.

Then a natural history society heard about the slaughter. They protested loudly. Besley pointed out that the snakes were poisonous and a danger, but the society members said:

"We study poisonous snakes as well as others, and we want them let alone."

The State forester hesitates now to tell of the 100 rattlesnakes killed at another camp at Swallow Falls, in Garrett County.

Smith Holds Silence On 'Rigging" in Cotton

By the Associated Press.

Chairman Smith of the Agricultural Committee refused yesterday to discuss reports circulated in cotton circles that his committee had uncovered evidence involving a prominent trader in its inquiry into recent cotton price drops.

'All I can say" Smith said "is that progress is being made in the investigation which is satisfactory to me in clearing up and correcting the evils."

'Big Jump' Canceled As Bottle Prove Lure

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., June 11. Joseph Buddenhagen developed high ideas here today after imbibing a little too freely.

Climbing to the top of Charles Town's 90-foot watertower he exclaimed to a gathering crowd, "stand back for the big dive, I'm going to jump." Officer Dewey Ambrose, with the assistance of an onlooker who had filled a whisky bottle with coffee, finally coaxed the man down. He was placed in jail.

Miss Doherty Palace Guest In Nicaragua

Flies South for Visit With Daughter of Head of Republic.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Friendships made in Washington are lasting ones and persons who meet here see each other again and again in various parts of the world, and many who have been here return for permanent residence, for visits or for further duties.

Among these friendships was one made by two popular Capital debutantes several seasons ago, Miss Helen Lee Doherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Doherty, and Senorita Maria Sacasa, daughter of the one-time Minister of Nicaragua and Senora de Sacasa. During the last few years, the two girls have seldom met, but have remained close friends, and now Miss Doherty has gone to Nicaragua to visit Senorita Sacasa in the presidential palace at Managua. For Senor Juan B. Sacasa is now president of the neighboring republic. Miss Doherty arrived there by plane Sunday and extensive entertainments have been planned for her during her stay.

Sacasas' Visit Recalled.

Senorita Sacasa, her mother and younger sister, Gloria, spent several months in Washington last year, their first visit since Senor Sacasa left his post here to become president. They were welcomed royally by their many friends and entertained both here and in New York during their visit when they were guests of the Charge d'Affaires of Nicaragua and Senora de DeBayle.

After attending the graduating of their young son from Georgetown University they went to New York to spend a short time, and after placing young Gloria on a trans-Atlantic liner, bound for school in Europe, Senora de Sacasa and her other daughter sailed for Central America.

Miss Doherty spent most of last winter in Washington with Mrs. Lawrence Townsend and then joined her parents, who had been wintering in Florida. Miss Doherty was presented to society several years ago at a brilliant ball given in the Mayflower. Although she took an active part in debutante doings she pursued the more serious things and became proficient in several languages.

Mastered Danish Language.

When Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen was appointed United States Minister to Denmark Miss Doherty went to Copenhagen as Mrs. Owen's secretary and within a few months had mastered Danish so that she was able to converse freely in that language. Last summer Miss Doherty spent several weeks in London with Mrs. Townsend and was presented at the Court of St. James at one of the drawing rooms at Buckingham Palace.

After her visit in Nicaragua Miss Doherty again will rejoin her parents, probably in Washington.

Bride-Elect to Be Maid of Honor This Month

Underwood & Underwood.

MISS CHARLOTTE MAYO,

daughter of Mrs. Pendleton Mayo, of Georgetown, whose marriage to Mr. Samuel J. Henry, jr., will take place early in September. The engagement was recently announced. Miss Mayo will be maid of honor at the wedding of Miss Mary Elizabeth MacArthur and Mr. John Edgar Reyburn 2d, which will take place June 25.

Mr. Vanderbilt, Miss Parsons To Be Married

Golfer to Become Bride of Leader of Recent Hunting Expedition in Africa.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. J. Lester Parsons, of Broadacre, Llewellyn Park, West Orange, N. J., of the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Lucille M. Parsons, to Mr. George Vanderbilt, son of Mrs. Margaret Emerson and the late Mr. Alfred G. Vanderbilt. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Parsons, a former student of Miss Porter's School at Farmington, Conn., made her debut two years ago. She is an excellent horsewoman and a tournament golfer. Early this year she went on a voyage with Mrs. Emerson and Mrs. Emerson's daughter, Miss Gloria Baker, to Italy and Egypt. During the trip they joined the party of Mr. George Vanderbilt, who had returned from a hunting expedition in Africa, which he financed and led for the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Science.

Mr. Vanderbilt is a former student of St. Paul's School and since leaving there has devoted most of his time to hunting and fishing expeditions. He is a brother of Mr. Alfred G. Vanderbilt and a half brother of Mr. William H. Vanderbilt. He is a grandson of the late Col. Isaac E. Emerson, of Baltimore, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, a nephew of Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the Countess Laszlo Szechenyi and the late Mr. Reginald C. Vanderbilt.

Kasehagens Attend Carnegie Exercises

Back From Pittsburgh After Seeing Son Get Degree.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kasehagen have returned from a week-end trip to Pittsburgh, where they attended the graduation exercises at the Carnegie Institute of Technology on Monday, at which their son, Mr. Leo Kasehagen, 3d, received the degree of doctor of science.

Mr. Kasehagen received his degree of bachelor of science from the Carnegie Institute in 1930, and two years later resigned as a chemical engineer in Charleston, W. Va., to study for his master of science degree, which he received in 1933 from the same university.

The ceremony was performed June 10 at the Emmanuel Church, Greenwood, Va., with the Rev. John Scott Meredith officiating. Mrs. Watson has been residing at her country place, Gray Rock, Crozet, Va., for three years, and has been prominent in county and community affairs. Mr. Watson is a member of an old Virginia family.

Mr. and Mrs. Watson will make their home at Crozet.

J. H. Heinz 2d And Joan Diehl To Wed in N. Y.

Plans Made for Nuptials; Bride-Elect a Recent Visitor in Capital.

Miss Joan Diehl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, of San Francisco, and Mr. John Henry Heinz, 2d, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Heinz, of Pittsburgh, will be married in the Chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church in New York next Tuesday. A reception will follow the ceremony at the River Club.

The engagement was announced last month while Miss Diehl was visiting in Washington. The news was made known at a cocktail party given by Mrs. Evelyn Walker at the 1935 F Street Club.

Miss Diehl will have as her maid of honor, Miss Jane Sloan, of Pittsburgh, and the bridesmaids will be Miss Peggy Brown, of Los Angeles, and Miss Harriet Fickes and Miss Frances Forsythe, of Pittsburgh.

The best man will be Mr. William L. Peltz, of Albany. The ushers will include Mr. Joseph C. Rathborne, of Westbury, Long Island; Mr. Donald R. McLennan, of Lake Forest, Ill.; Mr. Hughart R. Laughlin and Mr. Rust Heinz, of Pittsburgh, and Mr. Gordon Page Williams, Mr. Laurence B. Rand, Mr. Reginald A. F. Williams and Mr. Troybridge vom Baur, of New York.

The young couple will leave June 22 to spend their wedding trip abroad.

Freshen-Up Kit Eases Summer Beauty Worry

Odorcide Aids Daintiness; New Eye Shadows Alluring.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

FOR EVERYTHING from a picnic to a sojourn at a smart resort you'll need one of the Freshen-up kits. They live up to their name in keeping your skin fresh and cool looking the long, hot summer through.

Although a great many women don't know it, the real secret to skin beauty in the next few months is keeping the skin clean and the pores free from extraneous matter; keeping the skin properly lubricated and stimulated and protecting it from the full blast of the sun.

Not an easy matter, to be sure, unless you have the means at hand. The Freshen-up kit includes all you'll need for cleansing, toning, stimulating, nourishing and protecting. And what's more it's such an attractive little affair you'll actually enjoy carrying it with you wherever you go.

The kit itself has a red, black or white suede finish with silver trimming. Inside there's a generous-sized jar of cleansing cream with such a soft, silky texture you'll literally adore using it; a skin stimulant; a rich nourishing cream that is fine for seeing a dry skin through a trying summer; an astringent that is particularly gentle in its action and two types of powder foundation. One of these is a lotion, quick in action and easy to use. The other is a liquid finishing cream which is extremely flattering to the skin. Besides all these, there's a box of powder—a powder that's so fine it's almost misty.

Ordinarily the kits sell for $2.50 (for dry skins); $2.75 (for oily skins). Now they're a uniform price of $1.75 for the next two weeks.

Odorcide Easy to Use.

Just in the nick of time comes "Odorcide"—a new deodorant which insures daintiness in the summer months. It's clear liquid with a delicate violet fragrance which makes using it a real pleasure.

Odorcide not only nullifies unpleasant odors, it suppresses excessive perspiration, too. There are many women who feel that anything which reacts at all on the perspiratory glands is not safe. That is an erroneous idea. While there are preparations which aren't reliable, there are many that are. Odorcide is one of these. It contains no acids and no corrosive salts. It will not injure your skin or your clothing.

It's one of the easiest of all deodorants to use. You simply sprinkle a few drops on the palm of your hand and apply in this fashion. After using it a while you will notice that your hands do not become sticky and feel clammy from too much perspiration, as they used to.

Eye Shadow Fascinating.

Come spring, summer, fall or winter, eye make-up never ceases to fascinate. It is one thing which may be depended on to enhance the beauty of the eyes and make them doubly alluring. One of the first steps in making up the eyes lies in selecting a becoming eye shadow.

Some time ago when eye shodows first came into popular use it was the general opinion that each type had her particular eye shadow. For instance it was thought blondes with blue eyes should use blue shadow, with green eyes, green shadow; brunettes, brown shadow, etc. That is an old theory which has been discarded. Now it has been definitely proved that when you select your eye shadow it must blend with your skin tone. You might be an olive brunette, but blue shadow might prove most becoming and with certain colors, violet. The only way to tell, of course, is to try several. No woman should just use one color. She should use at least two and if her wardrobe is particularly colorful, three or four.

At a local store you'll find the representative of a certain beauty house, an expert on make-up. Not only can she help you to just the right shade of powder and rouge but rye shadow as well. She'll show you several exquisite shades and point out to you just why such and such a one is better for you than another. These shadows have an iridescent quality that makes them extremely lovely for evening.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

ORDINARILY we consider ourselves safe from diseases that are not local in character. For example, we know that yellow fever, which is spread through the agency of a certain species of mosquito, can not exist unless the mosquito thrives in the locality. However, with increased movements of population from one part of the world to another certain disease hitherto confined to a given area are now known to have spread rather widely.

Other Types of Parasite.

One such disease—bilharziasis—that has heretofore been found in Egypt particularly and in certain parts of the Orient, has found its way to America, and a number of case reports are now included in our medical literature. It is caused by a parasite—the schistosoma hematobium—which is a worm with a body about half an inch in length.

There are other types of the parasite that occur in great numbers in the intestine, leading to ulceration and the formation of polyplike masses attached to the intestinal wall. These may also occur in the rectum.

Only recently has a remedy been found. The injection of tartar emetic into a vein kills both the worms and the eggs and leads to rapid improvement. The injections are given every other day until the eggs show signs of destruction. As a rule 20 to 30 grains of the drug in all will be required.

Remedy Recently Found.

It is doubtful if the disease will ever reach sizable proportions in the United States, as our sources of drinking water are relatively pure. Furthermore, snails in water supplies may be destroyed by the use of copper or ammonium sulphate in the proportion of 1 part to 5,000,000 of water.

Would-be weight controllers should not deprive themselves of the foods shown in the upper picture—fresh vegetables, fruits, milk and cereal. They should, however, go easy on the fattening foods pictured below—candies, cream, pastries, jellies, potatoes, molasses, mayonnaise, etc.

Too Sudden Weight Loss Held Chief Peril

Reducers Advised Against Exclusion of Milk From Menus.

Summer offers a new challenge to would-be sylphs. Costumes of beach and playground are revealing and seldom flattering to the woman of excess poundage. What are the latest and safest methods of reducing? The following article, the first in a series, discusses the diet method.

By Frances Mangum.

SINCE the hourglass figure went the way of all flesh and sylphlike slimness took the feminine fancy, dieting has spread like wildfire to every corner of the country.

From Greater Manhattan to Buggy Wheel Gap there are dieters who strive to starve themselves streamline. Dieting has become the rage, the mode, the fashion. And, what's more it has become a danger which threatens every woman who attempts it without scientific or practical insight into what she's doing.

Dr. Hazel E. Munsell, in charge of nutrition studies in the Bureau of Home Economics, did not mince words when she spoke of "ignorant" dieting.

"Harmful? Of course it's harmful," she declared. "It's a short cut to ill health."

Dangers Enumerated.

"This inevitably reduces body resistance," she explained. "Women become sickly, neurotic and subject to many ailments which in good health they might overcome."

Dr. Munsell stressed three points essential for every would-be weight controller to understand.

1. Weight reduction of more than two pounds a week should never be undertaken.

2. Use of a diet that does not contain adequate amounts of all nutritive essentials is directly conducive to ill health.

3. The surest way to know whether you are reducing in an approved manner is to weigh yourself every day at the same time. During the day the weight may vary one to two pounds, even three sometimes.

Milk Needed for Calcium.

"If a woman were to ask me what sensible diet I'd recommend," Dr. Munsell said, "I'd tell her this: 'Cut down on your total intake but not'—here the nutrition expert waxed emphatic—'not on fruits, vegetables, milk and eggs!'"

She pointed out that nine out of ten women who diet begin by shying away from milk. "Absurd!" she declared. "They need milk for its calcium content. They should not exclude it from their meals! They should skim it and drink it without the slightest misgiving that it's going to add an ounce to their weight."

Mrs. Rowena Schmidt Carpenter, associate home economist in the Bureau of Home Economics, emphasized that it isn't so much what one eats as diet faddists insist, but largely how much is eaten. She also stressed the importance of a diet that is well rounded.

"There must be adequate proteins, minerals and vitamins," she said. "And of course there must be some energy-giving foods, some sources of calories.

Bulky Foods Suggested.

"In fact, there's the rub. Those calories! They've got to be cut down—but not out. Dieting becomes ridiculous if a woman is going to sit up between meals and munch a plate of nuts or bonbons!"

Women who are trying to throw the balance of the scales down, Mrs. Carpenter pointed out, must be careful that any exercises they take do not tend more to increase the appetite than to burn up excess body fat. She suggests bulky foods and cold showers to counteract this tendency.

Several practical suggestions she makes for Mrs. Average dieter are:

1. If you are reducing and the bread allowance for the day seems low, several thin slices, sparingly buttered, may satisfy you more than a reduced number of medium thick slices.

2. It's better to avoid hot breads because they tempt you to use butter freely. Stale bread will help keep a low total.

3. Overweights should accept nuts (which are a concentrated food containing protein and a varying amount of fat) only as a substitute for some meat, fish, egg or cheese dish.

Dishes Recommended.

4. Some vegetables and fruits especially recommended for reducers are 'asparagus, string beans, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, collards, cucumbers, eggplant, green leaves (spinach, kale, cress and turnip tops), green peppers, lettuce, okra, onions, potatoes, radishes, squash, soybean sprouts, tomatoes, turnips, apples, grapefruit, lemons, muskmelons, oranges, strawberries and watermelons.

5. On a reducing diet go lightly on butter, cream, salad dressings, meat drippings and on foods containing a good deal of fat, like olives, avocado pears, and dishes prepared with fat such as pastry and rich gravies.

The disadvantages of overweight increase with age, Mrs. Carpenter believes.

"Five per cent more than average weight is considered normal and may be due to body build," she said. "If, however, your age is 45 or more and you are 10 to 15 per cent above average for your height and age, it's high time you were resisting the urge to overeat," she warned.

Beware Faddist Diets.

Both Mrs. Carpenter and Dr. Munsell agree that faddist diets should be regarded with a wary eye. They had several advertising pamphlets for what they termed "these malicious diets" and pointed out the drastic promises which were made.

One read, "Two weeks, 10 pounds off! From stout to slim in no time with no trouble!" Another milder one boasted, "This diet replaces one to two fat-forming meals without lowering your resistance or your vitality." Still another, "Feel good and look good by dieting in this healthful manner." This diet was composed chiefly of crushed soy beans.

Both these food experts wished to admonish women to beware of faddist diets or any radical form of dieting without consulting a physician first.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: Thank you for your kind and courteous response of last Friday to my letter advocating evening hours for Government clerks. This supplemental letter may not be worthy of publication, but I should like to have it brought to the attention of "Mary B. Harris," whose interesting letter you printed Monday.

First: However short may be the annual leave of the Government clerk (15 days, I believe she said) my reference was based on the fact that Federal employes can and sometimes do take some of their leave for shopping.

• • • •

Second: Miss Harris evidently overlooked entirely what you quoted Monday from "Mary Jones'" letter of May 28, as well as my own proviso, that any extension of shopping time allowed by stores be worked out without hardship to the regular staff of clerks.

• • • •

Unless I am entirely misinformed, some clerks are now obliged to get along on part-time work, and they, with many others who have no work at all, would welcome increased employment. If I am mistaken in this, I should be glad to hear from someone who has first-hand knowledge of that side of it.

ELEANOR ADAMS.

• • • •

DEAR ELEANOR: I am taking this means of calling your "supplemental letter" to the attention of "Mary B. Harris." Like you, I should welcome first-hand information from anyone in a position to throw more light on the practicability of this proposal to make evening shopping possible. M. H.

"Mary Jones" Again.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: This is "Mary Jones" again. Na ma'am. I beg to be excused from shouldering the task of getting the shops open at night. Let some one else do the work and I'll root for them, for I have a full-time job of my own.

• • • •

I think the predicament of the average business woman is pretty well reflected in something I read in the newspapers recently concerning Secretary of Labor Perkins, of whom it was told she frequently buys her dresses by mail, making her selections from things she has seen and liked in newspaper advertisements and having them delivered parcel post, all because she has no time to do personal shopping.

• • • •

Incidentally, I am wondering if you had any response to my suggestion of a valet service for women; or was that too much of a real job to interest those who write you they are willing to do any kind of work? I do not mean to be unkind, but sometimes I fear your correspondents are looking for sympathy, rather than work.

• • • •

MARY JONES.

• • • •

DEAR MARY JONES: I have had several responses to your suggestion that someone inaugurate a valet service for women, all requiring personal answer. I should say it was guidance, rather than sympathy, that most of my correspondents, unemployed and otherwise, are seeking. Your average disappointed "seeker after work" is handicapped not so much by laziness or self-pity as he is by a lack of that imagination and resourcefulness so necessary for creating or ferreting out occupational opportunities in these strenuously competitive days. Bananas Have a Place on All Menus

Excellent With Steak, Ham or Chops When Fried in Deep Fat.

By Dorothea Duncan.

FOR YEARS the fate of the banana was weighed in the balance. Children cried for just a bite of this delicious fruit, but it was carefully excluded from their diet, and even grown-ups indulged ever so cautiously and very infrequently, for wasn't a banana a most indigestible fruit? Then just as life was looking its darkest for this neat little yellow bundle of South American fruit, someone decided to investigate the merits of the banana. After all, why should a fruit of so delectable a flavor be made to keep its light forever hidden under a bushel? It is known that the natives of Central and South America eat diligently and heartily of the banana and suffer no ill effects.

First of all, that old superstition of indigestibility was dispelled. In fact, the banana was found to be one of the most readily digested foods if eaten when thoroughly ripe. And a banana is thoroughly ripe when the skin is a golden yellow generously flecked with brown.

The next discovery was a surprise to everyone. Scientific research uncovered all the nutritive merits of the banana. Hidden beneath that golden skin we find a trio of vitamins, A, B and C, a fair source of iron, calcium, magnesium, and a little phosphorus and carbohydrate, which gives energy, of course.

You know the result of all this investigation. The banana has risen from an obscure and infrequent breakfast fruit to a place of all-round importance. We eat it in combination with other fruits, we fry it or bake it, serve it as a vegetable or fruit. Breakfast, dinner, or luncheon—there is always a place for the banana. If you are still of the opinion that bananas belong only to the breakfast table try the following recipes to convince yourself that you are wrong.

DINNER MENU FOR TODAY

Fried Bananas.

Peel bananas, cut in halves crosswise or in quarters and roll in sifted dry bread crumbs or in rolled cornflake crumbs. Fry in very hot deep fat (395 degrees Fahrenheit) until light brown. Drain on soft paper and serve with broiled chops, steak or ham.

A simpler method is to split bananas, roll in flour and saute on both sides, using a small amount of butter in a hot frying pan. Bananas may also be broiled in three or four minutes. Peel and place under broiler during the last few minutes that meat is broiling.

Try glazed bananas with pineapple the next time you serve ham.

Glazed Bananas with Pineapple.

3 bananas
3 slices canned pineapple
Granulated sugar

Cut bananas and pineapple slices in halves. Arrange in a shallow baking dish and sprinkle with sugar. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about ten minutes or until sugar is melted. Serve with baked or broiled ham.

When you feel duty bound to serve meat, but you can't quite make up your mind as to kind, fall back on bananas wrapped in bacon.

They Also Go Well With Bacon and in Frozen Fruit Salad.

Bananas with Bacon.

6 bananas
¼ pound bacon

Roll half lengths of peeled bananas in strips of bacon. Secure with toothpick, if necessary. Broil under flame; or bake in oven-proof dish in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) about 15 minutes, or until bananas are tender and bacon is crisp. Baste at least once during the baking. Whole bananas may be wrapped in bacon and cooked in the same manner.

For your swankiest bridge party serve banana frozen fruit salad.

Banana Frozen Fruit Salad.

1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
½ pound cream cheese
2 tablespoons crushed pineapple
½ cup cut cherries
½ cup cut walnut meats
1 cup cream, whipped
3 well ripened bananas, cut in cubes
Lettuce

Add lemon juice and salt to mayonnaise and stir into cheese. Mix with pineapple, cherries, nuts and fold in cream. Last, add the bananas cut in cubes. Turn into trays in automatic refrigerator, or place in a mold and pack in salt and ice, and freeze about three hours. Serve in cubes in nests of crisp lettuce.

For culinary assistance, call Dorothea Duncan, National 4200, or write to her, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope, in care of The Washington Post.

What TODAY Means

"Gemini."

IF JUNE 12 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. until noon, from 2 to 4 p. m. and from 7 to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 to 10 a. m., from 4 to 6 p. m. and from 9 to 11 p. m.

It might be a mistake to let your better judgment be swayed by a feeling of sympathy, if you are convinced your change of mind will accomplish no good. You should find this a favorable day for any form of social activity. It should prove a good day for negotiations, as well as the closing of business deals. People with quick tempers will have to be handled diplomatically, for they may be easily aroused to anger, if rubbed the wrong way. A friendly spirit will probably be apparent in both business and social contacts, if you maintain a peaceful state of mind. Married and engaged couples, as well as those passing through the sentimental stages of early love, can make this a very happy day if they are good humored and refuse to argue.

If a woman, and June 12 is your birthday, you will be displaying wisdom if you value sincerity more than flattering praise. Never sacrifice home duties on the altar of social aspirations, if you wish for real happiness. Too much self-complacency is a very dangerous possession, so guard against it.

The child born on June 12 will probably, when it reaches high-school age, show evidence of possessing a decidedly artistic temperament.

If a man, and June 12 is your natal day, you must be careful not to develop, if you wish to be popular, an egotistic sense of self-sufficiency. If you will be considerate of the feelings of others, you are likely to attain a position of leadership, in the profession or business in which you are engaged. Army or Navy life, acting, teaching, law, dentistry, medicine or selling, may furnish the means for rapid advancement.

Six Playfields Open Monday In Alexandria

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Six Alexandria playgrounds will be opened Monday at 9 a. m., Mrs. Virginia Ryder, city supervisor of playgrounds, has announced. They are: George Mason, on Mount Vernon avenue, Mrs. Elmer Smith, director; Maury, on Russell road, Mrs. Ruth Roseberry; Washington street, Mrs. Padgett; Lee street (replacing Windmill Hill), Mrs. Roberts; Avalon, Miss Pattie Craver, and Parker-Gray (colored), and the field at the new school building on Wilkes street, Mrs. Pritchard.

The hours will be from 9 a. m. to noon and 1 to 5 p. m. each week-day except Saturday, when only the morning hours will be observed. There will be athletic badge contests, safety contests, handicraft classes, competitive checkers and marbles, hikes, exhibitions, evenings for parents, and sports, consisting of baseball, horseshoes, tennis, swimming, track and croquet on each playground. Tournaments will be held during the summer.

Dramatic training will be offered for the first time in Alexandria. Each playground will give a play.

The city health report, made public yesterday by Dr. W. Lewis Schafer, health officer, shows reports of cases of chickenpox, 1 of scarlet fever, 8 of measles and 12 of mumps. There were 39 births and 37 deaths. Vaccinations numbered 104. Three toxoid treatments and 3 typhoid inoculations were given.

The office reports 1,178 office visits, 96 outside visits and 204 treatments.

These officers of Alexandria Lodge, No. 758, Elks, were installed Monday night by Elliott F. Hoffman, past exalted ruler: Paul L. Delaney, exalted ruler; Leonard McKenney, esteemed leading knight; Earl J. Treger, esteemed loyal knight; Joseph D. Cook, esteemed lecturing knight; Harry A. Shockley, esquire; Herman Friedlander, treasurer; George H. Railing, secretary; Howard D. Carter, trustee; H. B. Lemon, inside guard; Leroy Whitehouse, chaplain; Paul L. Delaney and H. P. Kelly, representatives to the grand lodge.

Damage estimated at $1,200 was caused by fire at the home of Raymond Jones, 121 North Payne street, Monday. It was reported a candle carried by a member of the family set fire to clothing in the closet.

Bernard H. Cook, manager of the National R-employment Service, in the city hall, asks that all experienced cooks and mess sergeants discharged from the Army register at his office at once to fill openings in the vicinity of Alexandria.

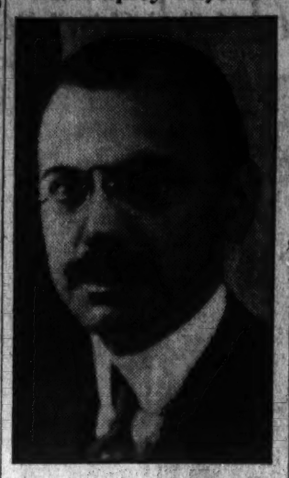
Bankruptcy Referee



James P. Curley, Laurel (Md.), attorney, who was yesterday appointed referee in bankruptcy for Howard, Anne Arundel and Prince Georges Counties. The appointment was made by United States Judge William T. Coleman, of Baltimore.

Curley Appointed Bankruptcy Chief

Laurel Man Named Referee for 3 Counties.

James P. Curley, Laurel (Md.) attorney and United States conciliation commissioner for Prince Georges County, yesterday was appointed referee in bankruptcy for Howard, Anne Arundel and Prince Georges Counties.

Mr. Curley, who was appointed by Judge William T. Coleman, of the United States District Court in Baltimore, will succeed the late Daniel Murray, of Ellicott City, Md.

An attorney with offices in Laurel and Baltimore, the appointee has been active in the Republican Party both in the county and State. He was former Mayor of Laurel, and is the present owner of the Laurel Leader, a weekly newspaper.

Tax Rate Is Cut By Five Cents At Hyattsville

Council Sets Rate of 45 Cents on Each $100 of Real Estate.

Reducing the municipal tax by five cents, the Hyattsville town council Monday night set the rate for the coming fiscal year, beginning July 1, at 45 cents on each $100 of real estate.

It was decided the 45 cents tax would be divided into two main classes: 40 cents for the general town fund and five cents for the fire department upkeep. It is expected receipts from the levy will net $24,856 and a working cash balance for emergencies of $1,717.

Reduction of the tax this year was made possible by addition of $135,000 real estate to the town's assessable basis, counterbalanced by almost no change in municipal expenses.

It is estimated the principal expenditures in the budget will be $5,125 for street lighting; $2,734 for the fire department; $2,500 for garbage and trash collections; $2,020 for the treasurer's and commissioners' bond; $1,500 for the library; $2,495 for salaries; and $2,800 for road maintenance.

The council created the new post of "utility man" and named S. S. Kea to fill this position. Salary was fixed at $1,500. Appointment of Lyle H. Hester as night policeman to succeed Roland T. Reed was confirmed.

The town library appropriation was increased from $1,250 to $1,500. Victor K. Chesnut and Mrs. J. M. Edlavitch were named to serve on the library board until 1939.

Other business included a decision to wire firemen's homes so a fire alarm will be sounded in each home; and the awarding of a contract for the painting of part of the municipal building to Alex Hasson for $144.35.

Montgomery County Issues Taxing Anticipation Notes

Banks to Be Asked to Bid for 90-Day Certificates.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post,
1111 Oak Ave., Silver Spring, Md.
Telephone Shepherd 2363.

Adoption of a new policy in issuance of tax anticipation certificates was decided upon yesterday by the Montgomery County commissioners. The commissioners authorized issuance of tax anticipation certificates totaling $200,000 for 90-day terms and will ask the county banks to bid at par for the certificates on the basis of the rate of interest to be paid by the bank.

The bank offering to accept the issue at the lowest rate of interest will be awarded the lot. There is no bar against several banks joining together in making the bids.

The commissioners also authorized Ira C. Whitacre, clerk to the board, to arrange with the Baltimore law firm of Niles, Barton, Morrow & Yost to prepare the resolutions and forms in accordance with a recent refunding act of the Legislature for the issuance of $692,000 in refunding bonds. Whitacre was instructed to confer with several financial experts, including Karl W. Corby, on the proper rate of interest to be paid which would bring the county the greatest revenue from the sale of the bonds and at the same time would offer a tempting buy to financial houses.

Hear Appeals June 20.

The commissioners set June 20 at 10 a. m. as the hearing date for appeals on new assessments.

The Republican State central committee for the county conferred for an hour at the opening of the commissioners' meeting in an effort to swing County Commissioner Paul M. Coughlan to the appointment of James P. B. Viers as general manager of the county liquor control board but Coughlan remained adamant in his refusal to vote for Viers.

Commissioner Robert D. Hagner, Democrat, objected strenuously to the delay at the start of the meeting and his fellow Democrat, Richard H. Lansdale, offered a motion that John C. Walker be continued as manager. This was voted down, with Frank H. Karn, Charles E. King and Coughlan voting nay, and Hagner and Lansdale voting yes.

Police Exam June 22.

The commissioners announced that June 22 at 10 a. m. in Rockville has been set for the county police examinations for an eligible list. The newly appointed board of election supervisors was ordered placed on the county pay roll.

Extension of Sixteenth street to near Highland drive and Georgia avenue extended, where it would connect with Georgia avenue, was indorsed as a preferred project to the State Roads Commission's provided Federal funds are obtained for the work. The project has the indorsement of the Montgomery County Civic Federation and all of the civic and business groups of the Woodside-Montgomery Hills area.

Elimination of the spur on Wisconsin avenue south of M street in Washington will require passengers on the Capital Transit Co. trolley line between Washington, Bethesda and Rockville to transfer to other downtown-bound cars at the District line, members of the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce were told at a meeting in the Bethesda County Building.

The spur to be abandoned formerly was used by cars on the Rockville line to transfer from south to north bound tracks at the end of the line for the return trip. With this spur eliminated, there will be no facilities for changing the direction of the car without a lengthy trip to Peace Monument.

Officials of the chamber will be represented at a public hearing before the Maryland Public Service Commission June 25 relative to the transit company's petition for permision to abandon the Rockville trolley line in favor of buses. The chamber also voted to send representatives to confer with Gov. Nice and the board of county commissioners in an effort to secure paving of the center of Wisconsin avenue along the trolley tracks of the line to be abandoned if sanction of the Public Service Commission is secured.

The complete paving of Wisconsin avenue is the first of several projects the chamber is advocating. The organization also went on record favoring paving the center of Connecticut avenue from Chevy Chase Circle to Chevy Chase Lake, widening of the Old Georgetown road from Wisconsin avenue to Alta Vista, and paving River road from Potomac to Whites Ferry.

Details of the proposed bus system to be inaugurated by the Capital Transit Co. to supplant the trolley service will be explained at a meeting in the near future by officials of the company, the chamber was advised.

Impetus was given yesterday to plans for the country fair which will be held at the National Guard Armory in Silver Spring, Md., June 17 and 18, under the auspices of the Woodside-Silver Spring public health lay committee with the announcement by County Commissioner Paul M. Capitol Heights Puts $100 Levy Upon Barroom Council Overrides Mayor's Veto; Some of Places Hit by Organizations.

Barrooms in Capitol Heights, Md., some the objects of bitter protests from civic organizations, will be required to pay a tax of $100 a year.

The town council, overriding a veto placed by Mayor Thomas J. Luckett on a similar measure several weeks ago, levied the tax Monday night. The vote was two-thirds in favor of the ordinance, Councilmen Roland Thompson and Wallace W. Rollins voting in the negative.

Mayor Luckett said in his veto message to council that he favored a tax on the liquor dealers, but did not think they should be taxed to the maximum.

The council at the Monday night meeting also instructed municipal police to apprehend and send to their homes all children loitering on the streets after dark.

A general improvement in sanitary conditions around some business places also was ordered. Some concerns already had been warned to eliminate the conditions.

Bids will be asked by Councilman William J. Sweeney for construction of three concrete culverts to replace wooden bridges, Sweeney, chairman of the roads committee, was asked to have the bids ready for the next meeting.

Students Cite Schools' Trend During Slump

Montgomery Blair High Holds Commencement in Silver Spring.

Various phases of educational trends in the country, particularly as they are being applied in Montgomery County, Md., was the theme of talks delivered by student speakers at the commencement exercises of the Montgomery Blair High School last night in the auditorium of Takoma-Silver Spring Junior High School, Silver Spring, Md.

The salutatorian, Miss Barbara McClenon, pointed out the educational outlook of today and the setbacks the general school system throughout the Nation has suffered through the depression. Changes that are taking place in the high schools with their varied curricula and in the personnel were described by the class orator, Miss Irene Bodle. Completing the discussion the valedictorian, Miss Valerie Willis, gave highlights of the life of Montgomery Blair, Postmaster General in Lincoln's Cabinet, for whom the school was named. She urged her classmates to live up to the ideals for which he stood.

Diplomas Awarded.

Presentation of diplomas to the graduates was made by Mrs. Daniel C. Walser, of the Montgomery County board of education. The Rev. Ralph D. Smith, pastor of the Woodside Methodist Episcopal Church, gave the invocation, and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. J. Wesley Loftis, pastor of the Silver Spring Baptist Church.

The program also included selections by the glee clubs and the processional by the junior high school orchestra.

Awards were announced by the principal, Prof. E. Merritt Douglass, as follows: American Legion Good Citizenship medal, Staten Alden; scholarship and citizenship medallions, Irene Bodle and William Taylor; boy's outstanding athlete, Clyde Linkins; honorable mention, Sam Wolfe and Warren Turner; girl's outstanding athlete, Lillian Goodwin, honorable mention, Hilda Cruitt and Irene Bodle.

Citizens Urge Prince Georges To Fix Roads

Improvements in Vicinity of Riverdale and Lanham Sought.

Presenting a petition bearing approximately 90 signatures, members of the Wildercroft Citizens Association yesterday asked the Prince Georges County Board of Commissioners to improve roads in the vicinity of Riverdale and Lanham, Md.

The delegation asked Auburn avenue and Good Luck road east to the Riverdale-Lanham line, ond Jefferson road as far as the Defense highway, be tarred. They declared that since they have not asked for improvements for the last four or five years, they were due a consideration.

The petition pointed out that "when Auburn avenue and Good Luck road were graded and graveled, the citizens association went 50-50 with the county in sharing the expense."

All roads graveled, they said, have stood up "remarkably well." Last winter the roads started to break through, so the citizens warned the commissioners that if they are not fixed now the roads will be impassable next winter.

They also asked that the one-way bridge on Auburn avenue near Jefferson road be widened. In its present condition it constitutes a serious danger to traffic, they said. The commissioners took the petitions under advisement, but announced they would be able to do nothing until the distribution of Federal road funds was completed.

D. C. Pair Hurt As Auto Upsets

Driver Held Under Bond in Maryland Mishap.

Florence A. Fields, 24, who told Prince Georges County police she lived on D street northwest, and John Purdy, 34, 1600 Gales street northeast, were injured seriously in an auto accident yesterday near Upper Marlboro.

Policeman William Gray said Frank Dent, 24, of 484 Maryland avenue southwest, was the driver of the auto that skidded from the Crain highway and overturned on an embankment. He held Dent, who suffered only minor injuries, under $500 bond pending the outcome of the injuries of the other two.

Miss Fields was taken to Casualty Hospital by the Marlboro rescue squad. She is said to have a fractured skull. Purdy was taken home after he and Dent had been treated by Dr. Paul C. Van Netta, of Suitland, Md.

Kirk Elected Mayor By Herndon Voters

Allen H. Kirk was elected mayor of Herndon, Va., yesterday at the town elections. He was unopposed. Kirk, with the other officials chosen yesterday, will take office on September 1 for a two-year term.

Class of 390 Is Graduated At Virginia U.

Diplomas to Students From 35 States, 4 Other Nations.

Famed Doctor Delivers Address on Social Security.

By the Associated Press.

University, Va., June 11. — The University of Virginia conferred degrees this afternoon upon 390 graduates in a colorful open air ceremony witnessed by several thousand people. President John L. Newcomb presented diplomas to men and women from 35 States and 4 foreign countries.

The graduates were told in a commencement address by Dr. David Russell Lyman, tuberculosis specialist of Wallingford, Conn., that one of the greatest social needs lies in making the advantages of modern medicine available for the general public at a cost within their means.

Graduates who "want to leave their imprints on the future of the country" were urged "to do what we older citizens have failed to do —go and get others to go with you and start a movement to select public officials for their fitness to serve their community, not for the voters they control."

Hits Medical Costs.

The speaker observed that "the three chief causes of want against which the man of limited means is unable to protect himself are unemployment, old age and sickness. These are the social problems for which our present generation must provide a solution if it would survive. With their drain removed the average wage earner can, if he is thrifty, provide decent living conditions for his family."

"As to the cost of sickness," the speaker continued, "medical science, while saving untold lives, has at the same time made it on occasions almost a luxury to survive. One severe illness may take the entire savings of some families and often leave them hopelessly in debt.

"It is apparent that one of our great social needs is that of making the advantages of modern medicine —including nursing, hospitalization and dental care—available for our general population and at a cost within their means. This can only be done through wide distribution of its cost by some insurance method."

Fears Political Control.

Speaking of the opposition of doctors to compulsory insurance under State or Federal control, Dr. Lyman said "we know that under governmental control the men in charge of the administration of the medical care would be chosen not for their knowledge of medicine but because they were 'deserving Democrats' or 'good Republicans.'"

The spoils system, he said, is the cause of "our public distrust of all things political."

"Just so long as efficient public servants are removed from office because the other party has come into power," he said, "just so long will our Government remain inefficient and it will be fatal to put our industries and our professions under its management."

President Newcomb spoke a brief farewell to the graduates before conferring degrees. The invocation was delivered by the Rev. Kingman Arthur Handy, of Baltimore.

Following the exercises there was a reception for graduates, their families and friends in Madison Hall. The final ball this evening brought the program to a close.

Degrees were awarded to the following:

Newcomb Accepts Senior Class Gift

The University of Virginia graduating class, which met yesterday for final exercises and the presentation of the class gift, a portrait of the late Prof. William H. Echols. The gift was presented to the university by Bernard C. Baldwin, jr., of Lynchburg, Va., and accepted by President John Lloyd Newcomb.

1,503 Seniors Are Graduated In Va. Colleges

One of Largest Groups in State's History Get Diplomas.

By the Associated Press.

Schools of the Old Dominion which trace their educational endeavors back to the early days of America today will hand diplomas to more seniors who will join the ranks of those sent out by other institutions in the State yesterday.

The Virginia Military Institute will graduate 129 cadets who have made their academic conquest. Today, also, historic Hampden-Sydney College, with the largest graduating class in its 159 years, will confer degrees on 62 seniors.

The University of Virginia awarded sheepskins yesterday to the largest class in Virginia when 390 were graduated in colorful outdoor exercises. At the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, far across the mountains from Charlottesville, 264 bachelors of arts and sciences and 33 masters received their reward for years in the classrooms.

Last night, at the University of Richmond, where Dr. F. W. Boatwright has completed 40 years as president, 145 seniors were graduated after hearing an address by Dean Carl Ackerman, of the Columbia School of Journalism.

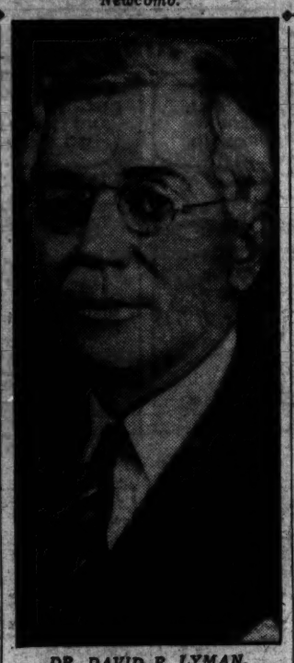
Washington and Lee University last Friday graduated 122 young men, and the College of William and Mary Monday conferred degrees on 226 graduates.



DR. DAVID R. LYMAN, who delivered the commencement address at the University of Virginia.

Eagles Stage Annual Session At Frostburg

Three - Day Convention Attracts Members From Over Maryland.

By the Associated Press.

Frostburg, Md., June 11. — The three day thirtieth annual convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles of Maryland opened here today with members from all parts of the State attending.

Heading the business for the convention is the election of officers for the coming year. Officers will be nominated tomorrow and elected and installed Thursday.

R. H. Hartjan, Frederick, is State president, and Edward Fahey, Cumberland; Donald C. Cook, Brunswick, and August H. May, Chesapeake, are in a three-cornered race to succeed him.

Mayor Horace G. Evans delivered the address of welcome after the convention had been called to order by Frank T. Powers, Frostburg, general chairman of the convention committee. The invocation was spoken by the Rev. Harry Yaggi, pastor of Zion Evangelical Church.

Charles G. Guenther, Pittsburgh, past grand worthy president, responded to the address of welcome. The afternoon session was given to reports of officers and various committees and a resolution on the death of J. H. Fleetwood, Brunswick, was adopted. Fleetwood had attended 27 State conventions.

Church Exercises In St. Marys City

Nice Asked to Speak in Founders Day Progam.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leonardtown, Md., June 11.—Founders Day will be celebrated Sunday at Trinity P. E. Church, St. Marys City.

Gov. Harry W. Nice has been invited to deliver the principal address, and has signified his intention to be present if a meeting of Governors at Biloxi, Miss., ends in time.

The afternoon program will include an address by the Rev. Warfield Hobbs, executive secretary of the publicity department of the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church. The Rev. Nelson McConomy is rectors.

William and Mary Parish, of which Trinity Church is a part, was established in 1642. The present church building was erected in 1829 of bricks from the first Statehouse of Maryland.

Open-Air Services Start.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., June 11.—Religious services in Baker Park under auspices of the City Ministerial Union each Sunday evening through the summer will begin Sunday in charge of the Lutheran Church, of which the Rev. Dr. Amos John Traver is pastor.

200 Retaining NRA Criteria, Study Shows

Labor Leader Charges Some 'Chiseling;' 3 Clerks Protest.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, June 11.—The Internal Revenue Bureau here took part in a general survey to determine what changes have been made by commercial concerns as a result of the collapse of the NRA.

Approximately 24 deputy collectors under Lewis W. Milbourne visited business men with the request that they answer a brief questionnaire. About 200 answered the questions, said Milbourne, who is acting collector of internal revenue.

"The results have been sent to Washington," he added. "The survey showed there had been no changes made by the employers we contacted."

Arthur Hungerford, head of the NRA bureau in Maryland, and Joseph P. McCurdy, president of the Maryland and District of Columbia Federation of Labor, are making other investigations of their own accord. Hungerford said he has found evidence of some "chiseling," while McCurdy asserted "there is plenty of chiseling going on."

Work-Day Lengthened, 3 Store Clerks Strike

By the Associated Press.

Bel Air, Md., June 11.—Protesting against what they said was a return to the longer hours of work in effect prior to the NRA, three clerks employed by a chain grocery store here went on strike today.

The three men, Johnny Bedford, David Hoops and Edward Higginbothan, said they were notified this morning that in the future they would work 9½ hours on weekdays and 15 hours on Saturday for $12 a week. Under the NRA, they said, they worked 48 hours a week for $12.

One extra clerk was called in to work, it was said, after the three declined to go to work. The company maintains two stores here.

Hagerstown Cuts Tax Rate 5 Cents

Reduction Approved Despite Decrease in Basis.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 11.—Despite a decrease in the taxable basis of Hagerstown, the mayor and council last night reduced the rate 5 cents on the $100. The new rate is 95 cents.

The taxable basis of the city is $37,526,000 compared with $38,282,000 last year.

The reduction was made possible by an anticipated reduction of $50,000 in expenditures and the municipal electric light plant's profit in excess of $100,000 during the last fiscal year. An average of 5 per cent reduction in appropriations for all city departments was made.

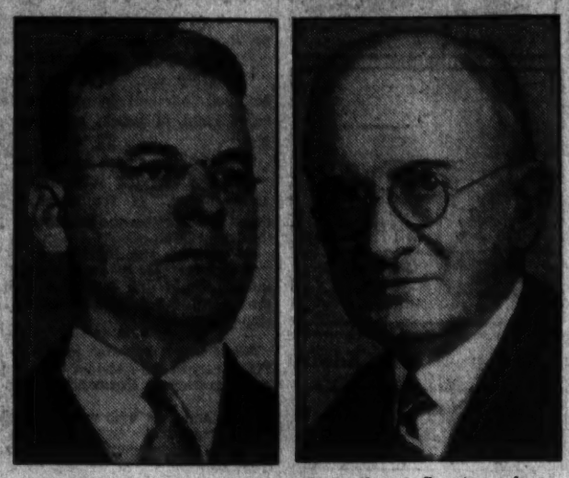
The reduction in the city rate came after an increase in the county rate from 88 cents to 97 cents, due to the restoration of half the school teachers' pay reduction and the road debt service which the State has refused to meet any longer.

D. C. Man Imprisoned For Income Tax Evasion

Baltimore, June 11 (AP).—Frank C. A. Val Dalsum, veteran of the Dutch army and of the United States Marine Corps, today was sentenced to a year and a day in the Federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., for failure to pay income taxes on profits from bootlegging activities in 1929 and 1930.

Val Dalsum, a resident of Washington, had entered a plea of guilty. His attorney, Morton P. Fisher, told Federal Judge W. C. Coleman that Val Dalsum was afraid to file an income tax return because of possible incrimination on liquor charges. The amount of taxes due was approximately $1,300.

President and Predecessor



Dr. Isaiah Bowman, left, who succeeds Dr. Joseph Sweetman Ames, right, as president of Johns Hopkins University.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 11.—President Joseph Sweetman Ames, of Johns Hopkins University, severed his connection with the university at the fifty-ninth commencement exercises this afternoon, after 51 years as a member of the faculty, the last six as head of the institution. Isaiah Bowman was announced as Dr. Ames' successor.

Six Washingtonians and a resident of Chevy Chase, Md., received degrees among 422 graduates. They are Walter Schlesinger, bachelor of art; Anna Skrivan, bachelor of science; Paul Myron Anthony Linebarger and Mayer Baruch Stone, master of arts; George Swope Mirick, doctor of medicine, and Carl Scharf and Roger William Curtis, the latter of Chevy Chase, doctor of philosophy.

Dr. Ames, in his farewell, warned the graduates of the present-day "menace" to freedom of thought, which he characterized as "real and pressing." He added:

Orthodoxy Held Foe.

"Do not underestimate the forces against you. At the present time in this country they are fighting under the banner of patriotism or Americanism. But who defines the words for you? Look at them! Who gives them this right? Back of all this talk of Americanism lies the worship of that demigod of the lower world, orthodoxy, and back of orthodoxy lurk the so-called vested interests. It is absurd to think that the possession of money or the attainment of success in any way means that proof of right thinking or of right doing is secured."

Among the degrees conferred were one of doctor of education, three of doctor of engineering, six of doctor of public health, six of doctor of science in hygiene, 69 of doctor of medicine, and 51 of doctor of philosophy.

Other faculty appointments announced were Henry Scott Baker as treasurer, Dr. Leo Spitzer as professor of romance philosophy and old French literature, and Dr. James Franck as professor of physics.

Termed Great Teacher.

Former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, chairman of a committee of the board of trustees to prepare resolutions on the retirement of Dr. Ames, presented a report describing Dr. Ames as "one of the really great teachers of physics of his generation."

Dr. Bowman, a native of Waterloo, Iowa, was born in 1878. He is a graduate of State Normal College of Ypsilanti, Mich., and Yale and Howard universities. He received an honorary degree from Bowdoin College in 1931.

In 1905 he took a post as an assistant in physiography at Harvard. Later he went to Ypsilanti as a member of the faculty. He became an associate professor at Yale in 1909. In 1915 he accepted a post as director of the American Geographical Society of New York.

Dr. Bowman is the author of numerous books on geographical adventures, one of the best known being "Desert Trails of Atacama."

2 New Charges Now Are Faced By Col. Owens

New Warrants Filed by Sheriff, Charging Arrest Resisted.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., June 11.—Two additional charges were filed today against Col. Robert Bowie Owens, of Harwood, who is being held in the hospital of the Anne Arundel County jail on a warrant charging him with assaulting a Negro with a shotgun with intent to kill.

Owens, a scientist and former director of the Maryland Academy of Sciences, was taken into custody at pistol point yesterday by Sheriff Joseph W. Alton and his chief deputy, Michael F. Carter.

Sheriff Alton said that Owens reached for and had his hand on a revolver when he was arrested. He said that when Deputy Sheriff Frank Marshall, of Churchton, and County Officer Albert Ward went to the Owens house Wednesday to serve the warrant charging assault, Owens ordered them off his property at pistol point.

The sheriff late today appeared before Police Magistrate Joseph M. Armstrong, at local police headquarters, and swore out two additional warrants. One charges Owens with carrying a concealed weapon—a revolver—and attempting to use it when he was arrested by the sheriff, the second charges him with resisting an officer and threatening to shoot Deputy Sheriff Marshall and Officer Ward.

State's Attorney Roscoe C. Rowe said Owens would be given a hearing before Magistrate Armstrong at 2 p. m. tomorrow on all three charges. William J. McWilliams, city counselor, of Annapolis, has been retained as Owen's attorney.

Dr. J. J. Murphy, jail physician, ordered Owens removed to the jail hospital last night.

W. M. Sturgis Reelected Mayor of Marshall

Warrenton, Va., June 11.—W. M. Sturgis, was re-elected mayor, at the Marshall town election today and T. H. Maddux, C. F. Ramey, Henry Fishback, P. W. Anderson, J. Nachman, and O. M. Pine reelected councilmen. The ticket was elected in March following incorporation of the town in February. The election today was a matter of routine. Walter L. Payne was registrar, and Jesse W. Richards, R. F. Woodward and L. O. Gold, judges. A small vote was polled.

Injury Probe Delayed By Condition of Girl

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 11.—Police are awaiting improvement in the condition of Catherine Palmer, who was found unconscious Sunday on a side road here, suffering from a skull fracture, brush burns and a broken collar bone, before starting their investigation.

From remarks said to have been made to hospital attendants during brief rational periods, police believe she jumped from a moving automobile.

Farm 'Clinic' Case Results In a Mistrial

Second Prosecution of Lancaster Surgeon Gets Under Way.

By the Associated Press.

Lancaster, Pa., June 11.—A tale of horror, picturing the death agony of Mrs. Gladys Lawson, of Calvert, Md., and the dismembering and burning of her body, was unfolded for the second time today by District Attorney Paul A. Mueller as the second trial of Dr. H. C. Zimmerly, on charges of performing improper operations, got under way.

Mueller's first outline of the case this morning sickened a woman juror and resulted in a mistrial. A new jury, on which there are three women, was chosen immediately.

Zimmerly, coatless and muttering about "the terrible heat in the courtroom," scribbled rapidly in his notebook.

Gruesome Details Promised.

"All the gruesome details of the disposition of this body" were promised the jury by Mueller after he had recited that Zimmerly, his hired man, Richard Parker; and his "nurse," Blance Stone, sat in a dim downstairs room the night of March 15, while Mrs. Lawson shrieked and moaned on the second floor of the Zimmerly house at Mechanics Grove.

"We will show you," Mueller said in the crowded courtroom, "how Dr. Zimmerly removed the body from the death bed into the corner room over the garage.

"We will show you how the butcher knife was taken from the Zimmerly kitchen and sharpened. We will show you how the body was cut up.

"The Commonwealth will tell you how the fragments of a female skeleton were uncovered in the ash heaps, the human blood and flesh put into a lard can and then destroyed by bacteria."

Juror Suddenly Taken Ill.

Mrs. Hettie Grassel, Lancaster housewife, suddenly grew ill in the jury box this morning as clothes identified as those of the missing woman were brought into court.

Arthur Smith testified that Zimmerly drove to his farm near Rising Sun, Md., and told him Mrs. Lawson was dead.

"He said he had the body on his hands and would have to cut it up or have it cut up," Smith related.

Sergt. Ray Simmons, of the State police, told of the April 3 raid on Zimmerly's slovenly-kept home.

Elsie Miller, 17, of Rising Sun, upon whom Zimmerly also is accused of performing an improper operation, fumbled a handkerchief as Simmons testified she was found in an upstairs bed by the raiders.

Zimmerly, the trooper said, was lying on a couch "apparently under the influence of drugs."

Menhaden Fish Season Will Open Next Monday

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Heathsville, Va., June 11.—The menhaden fishing season will begin in this section Monday by agreement of the factorymen of Lancaster and Northumberland counties. This industry, which is one of the largest enterprises in the Northern Neck, operates about 15 plants and 30 steamers and gives employment to about 1,500 people.

The Garble Sisters.

"Well, I see where Alabama Parks, jr., will not be allowed to enter Sing Sing."

"Why not?"

"They say he was once a left-handed pitcher in professional baseball."

"That don't seem fair, does it?"

"Certainly not. I think a professional baseball player has as much right in prison as anybody else."

"What're they gonna do about it?"

"They're carrying it to the Supreme Court. If it's unconstitutional it will mean the overthrow of the Dizzy Dean case."

"What case was that?"

"That's the case where it was held nobody could fine a pitcher more than a million dollars except as a stop-gap."

• • • •

"That was a surprise to see Sam Pitts, jr., win the national open golf championship at Normandie, wasn't it?"

"Yes, and look who was second."

"Who was it?"

• • • •

"What do you think of the situation with regard to the NRA now?"

"I'm glad Roosevelt is going to appeal that Supreme Court decision to the League of Nations."

"How can he appeal it to the League of Nations?"

"Under a voluntary agreement, I think the papers said. The League won't be compelled to give a decision, but it can volunteer one if it wants to."

"I see where there is a lot of criticism of the Supreme Court and some talk of adding more members."

"Yeah, but I still don't think they'll let Hoover join in this season."

"What Hoover is that?"

"Al Hoover. He ran for President once against Herb Smith or somebody."

"It looks like more trouble over in China, don't it?"

"Yes. Those Japs are looking for trouble again. They've ordered Laval out of Yu-Hsueh-Hong and notified China that they won't abide by the sick chicken decision in Manchukuo."

"What started all the trouble this time?"

Didn't Know It Was Hard.

Sam Parks, jr., who is the new open golf champion, never won a tournament before in his life. It is just possible he was too inexperienced to read the newspapers telling how difficult the Oakmont course was.

Nats Take Opener From Chisox, 9-8, But Bow in Second, 9-3

This Morning...

With Shirley Povich

ON second thought, I don't think that the Canzoneri-Klick show was a financial flop. The $40,000 gate that the folks anticipated didn't materialize, but that $24,167 the fight did draw is a pretty healthy amount. Canzoneri and Klick fought for less in New York the last time they met.

POVICH.

If it was the Washington fight-minded who were on trial with respect to their response to a national attraction, they met the test nicely. It was their money that boosted the gate to its respectable figures. Certainly the Shriners didn't help it. If the estimated 100,000 Shriners in town had supported their own show even half-heartedly, it would have been a rousing financial success.

But they didn't. To this appraising eye, there appeared to be more red fezzes in the band that entertained before the bouts than there were in the stands. And the band got in free. It was a fearful let-down that the Shriners gave the promoters, and, as I was saying, it was the Washington fight public that put the show over.

Both Canzoneri and Klick left Washington satisfied with their ends of the purse. And to Eastern promoters and matchmakers who had Washington under scrutiny Monday night, that $24,000 gate, locally contributed, loomed large. Washington is in line for bigger and better attractions and fighters who formerly sniffed disdainfully at offers to show here on a percentage basis will be, I dare say, rather interested in the future.

BUT whenever Canzoneri and Klick stage a return match in Washington it will be too soon. Washington fans don't like that kind of match. It's sock, not science, that they want and neither Canzoneri or Klick can punch his way out of a cellophane wrapper, particularly Klick. When you toss them in there together you might as well turn your back on 'em unless you're a student of boxing.

Twice, now, Promoter Joe Turner had had a swell opportunity to impress a big crowd with the entertainment to be gleaned from his fight cards, and twice he has failed. For his opening show, he threw Natie Brown in against Johnny Risko, a pair of plodders who created no more excitement than a fez on Pennsylvania avenue. The Canzoneri-Klick affair was the second.

Paradoxically, the success of the preliminaries reacted against Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn. So furious was the action in the preceding bouts that the fans anticipated, at least, a swell fight when the pair of world champions met. But it was a terrific let-down, particularly when Klick refused to take a frontward step.

Despite the lack of action and the fond embrace of the two fighters after the finish, there was considerable rancor evident during the bout. Klick was cursing Canzoneri through his mouthpiece from the start and it was then that Canzoneri tried to show him up by sticking his unprotected chin in front of Klick's feeble punches. He made a sucker out of Klick, and, together, they made suckers out of the folks who weren't close enough to the ringside to see the skill they used.

I SEE by the papers that Judge Landis has asked for a transcript of the Alabama Pitts case as presented by the Albany Club and as ruled upon by the minor league chiefs. In due time, Landis will make the decision from which there will be no appeal, and here and now this department begs to go on record as prophesying action by Landis that will be unfavorable to Pitts.

Landis is the man commissioned by baseball to protect its investments. The baseball industry is still quaking at the fright of 1920 when the Black Sox scandal of 1919 was exposed. Then it was that the millions invested in the game, in stadiums and players' contracts, was threatened by the reflection on its honesty. The business of baseball still shudders at the prospect of developments that might sweep away public confidence in its honesty.

Thus Alabama Pitts will have to take the rap for the baseball owners' fear. The business of baseball, in this case, will be choosing between what it considers the lesser of two evils—taking a former convict into its ranks, or facing what is likely to be hostile public reaction to any official ban on Pitts.

Baseball doubtless will prefer to let public reaction simmer and die in the face of what it believes will be two furious pennant races. It doesn't seem right. The public gave baseball a chance to come back after 1919. Baseball isn't giving Pitts that chance.

All Who Pick Braddock Over Baer Are Dopes, Gallico Says

By Paul Gallico.

A Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The problem that faces the fight expert as the fight for the heavyweight championship of the world approaches is a simple one. There are only two parties engaged—Baer and Braddock, champion and challenger. Then the only thing he must decide is how long and fuzzy his ears are to become when the thing is over and they are picking up the loser and ferrying him back to safety.

He must say to himself: "How long from head to tip will my ears grow and how much fur will they yield if I pick Baer to win and he loses? And how much more or less fuzzy and long will they wax if I select Braddock to win and he is quickly annihilated?" Once he makes up his mind to that there is nothing to the actual selecting. He simply picks the name, writes it down and sends it to the printers. He then goes and sits tremblingly through the prize fight, urging on his selection and wishing down maledictions upon the head of the opponent.

For my own part, I believe that it would be a swell sensation the morning after Braddock had disposed of Baer to walk around the town one of the brave minority that had the temerity and the foresight to play the long shot. But in this fight, I turn from that tempting spot and prefer to listen to the dictates of logic and reason. And, besides, if Baer wins, as he should, those who picked Braddock are going to look like veritable dopes indeed.

Veritably I believe their ears will be longer, thicker and furrier than mine will be if through some strange trick of fate, Baer should be deprived of his championship Thursday between the hours of 10 and 11 p. m., Eastern daylight saving time.

There is, I believe, too much fuss and worry over whether Baer can go 15 rounds, if necessary. Baer has done something that Braddock never has. He has fought two 20-round bouts. I doubt whether he was taking as good care of himself at that time as he is today. He was younger, wilder and more foolish. He fought them under the broiling Reno sun and was still there at the finish. If this is to be a 15-round hug-me-tight, I am still picking Momma Baer's little boy Maxie to be the fresh, bedewed daisy in that fifteenth round.

Right or wrong, I find it more interesting and personally entertaining to follow my own beliefs and convictions in a fight between two men than to try to board a lucky winner. When this match was made, it was my conviction that it was one of the worst heavyweight mismatches ever, and nothing has occurred in the interim to change that conviction particularly.

It is, I believe, even worse than the Tunney-Heeney fight. I think that Baer outclasses Braddock even more than Tunney did Heeney on the night that Gene methodically cut him down. By-the-bye, it is interesting to remember that Braddock was one of Heeney's sparring partners in his preparation for that fight and was about the only one of his crew that Heeney could lick in a rehearsal match.

Grant and Other Net Choices Win

Atlantan Routs Parsons in Southern Amateur.

Nashville, Tenn., June 11.—Bryan M. Grant, of Atlanta, defending champion and seeded No. 2, began his March to a seventh Southern amateur tennis championship this afternoon with a 6—0, 6—0 victory over Pollard Parsons, Nashville veteran.

Berkeley Bell, of New York City, also survived early competition, defeating Frank Corrigan, Atlanta, 6—3, 6—2.

Other seeded stars, including J. Gilbert Hall, of Orange, N. J.; John McDiarmid, of Chicago, and Lefty Bryan, of Chattanoga, Tenn., survived second-round matches.

Ambers Bout Delayed.

New York, June 11 (AP).—The Coney Island Velodrome boxing card, featuring a ten-rounder between Lou Ambers, of Herkimer, N. Y., and Fritzi Zivic, of Pittsburgh, was postponed today until next Tuesday night because of inclement weather.

Referee Plea Of Hoffman Squelched

Tunney and Kenworthy, Latter of District, on List of Five.

By Edward J. Neil.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The inevitable holler about referees broke out today to spice the preliminary maneuvering—and incidentally keep interest alive—in Max Baer's heavyweight title defense against Jimmy Braddock on Madison Square Garden's Bowl on Long Island Thursday night.

An old situation in a new setting, Ancil Hoffman, manager of the champion, tore into the New York State Athletic Commission today and demanded that one of his list of five eligibles be named.

With equal speed and no little uproar the commission promptly sat him down.

There was a very definite tongue-in-the-cheek aspect to Hoffman's nominees, for his first choice was George Blake, of Los Angeles, who happens to be several thousand miles away in Honolulu at the moment, considerable of a hurdle to overcome in 48 hours.

Proposes Tunney.

The second was Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, who has no referee's license. Another was Lieut. Jack Kennedy, another Pacific Coast arbiter who is with the Navy's Pacific battle fleet, and likewise might have trouble getting here. The other pair were Ed Dickerson, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Lieut. Comdr. Jess Kenworthy, naval officer stationed at Washington.

Sternly the commission told Hoffman that a New Yorker would referee and that if he had any specific objections to any man, the complaints should be filed after the weighing-in at the commission offices Thursday afternoon. Hoffman is certain to bar Arthur Donovan, who refereed the night Baer won the title on an 11-round technical knockout of Primo Carnera a year ago.

Forgets He Aided Baer.

While Hoffman has forgotten that Donovan twice stopped Baer from hitting Carnera while the Italian was down—thus keeping Max from losing automatically on a foul—the referee's score card had five rounds scored for each man at the end of the tenth. Hoffman insists Baer won every round.

"If Donovan is in the ring," Baer said as he rested at Asbury Park, taking only the lightest exercises, "I'll walk right out of there. There will be no fight."

Hoffman, more composed, said he didn't know what he would do if Donovan was named.

Joe Gould, manager of Braddock, whose workout consisted only of a rubdown, said anybody who could count ten would suit him as referee.

Ask About Forfeits.

The commissioners asked today where the $2,500 forfeits were that the fighters were supposed to post with them several weeks ago. Hoffman was ready to write them a

Inquiry in Pitts Case Is Begun By Landis

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, the one-man supreme court of organized baseball, today opened an investigation into the case of Edwin "Alabama" Pitts, former Sing Sing Prison athlete, who has been barred from the game by a minor league ruling.

Literally besieged by protests, denials and appeals in the case that already has developed into a national sports controversy, the commissioner, confined to his bed with a bad cold and high blood pressure, ordered all facts brought before him so he could study the appeal made to him by Pitts. When he will make his decision is not known.

The commissioner started his action in the case today by wiring to Warren Giles, of Rochester, N. Y., chairman of the executive committee of the minor leagues, which turned down Pitts' plea for admission yesterday, asking for all records in the case.

Evers' and Lawes' Pleas.

Statements from Pitts' sponsors, notably Johnny Evers, general manager of the Albany Club, of the International League, and Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing, also are expected to be placed before the commissioner.

Although Pitts' plea to be allowed to enter the organized baseball ranks with Albany was rejected by the minor league executive committee because he is an ex-convict, one man tonight offered to furnish Commissioner Landis with proof that at least two paroled convicts have been allowed to compete in organized baseball ranks. The man

Middle Atlantic Aces Open Golf Play Today

By the Associated Press.

Riegel, seeking to become the eighth campaigner to win twice the prize in the 30-year-old tournament, was hitting his shots remarkably well as he set the pace for the stars who brought out their clubs for a practice round.

The entries will qualify in two divisions, devoting tomorrow and Thursday to the business of determining the 16 who will compete for the crown. Match play starts Friday and will be concluded with an 18-hole final on Saturday afternoon.

The pay-off for Bobby Riegel came on putts, the youthful star dropping them sensationally—just as they did when he won at Hot Springs a year ago. He got home with a 20-footer on the eighteenth green for a birdie 3. He elected to qualify after 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Billy Howell, of Richmond, at 23 a veteran of the golfing wars, will renew his comeback attempt in an effort to scale again the heights that brought him national attention. He was hitting the ball well today, but the putts would not fall. As it was he scored a creditable 73.

Official Says Browns Not For Sale

By the Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—The St. Louis Browns, who are decidedly down if you consider the American League standings, lifted a voice up the cellar stairs today to tell the baseball world they are not "out," financially or otherwise.

Sticking in a finger to stop the steadily increasing flow of "sale" gossip, L. C. McEvoy, club vice president, told the fans, "It is the intention of the present ownership to continue the operation of the Browns."

Hemsley to Stay.

Almost with the same breath he snuffed out persistent rumors that "Rollicking Rollie" Hemsley, ace catcher and one of the few valuable veterans left on the club roster, would be traded to Cleveland. The vice president ended that business with "the player will remain with the Browns."

Talk of sales, liquidation and even abandonment of the club franchise, has been thick since Manager Rogers Hornsby went on a David Harum spree during a recent road trip and traded a majority of the seasoned timber out of the organization while he was trading $100,000 cash into the club coffers.

Change to Cheers.

Cries of anguish that first greeted the deals simmered to nothing, then changed to scattered cheers as Trader Hornsby pointed to a few results of his dickerings. Example No. 1 is that since "Sugar" Cain, Coleman and Solters came to the team, 18 games ago, the club had gained 100 points in percentage.

Discussing finances today, McEvoy said, "the club is in excellent financial condition and the ownership is prepared and willing to buy any player that, in the judgment of the club management, will improve the standing of the team, and it is the intention of the present ownership to continue the operation of the Browns and to make every effort to give the fans of St. Louis a penant contender."

Rockingham Race To Swashbuckler

Bright and Early, 8-5 Shot, Finishes Second.

By the Associated Press.

Salem, N. H., June 11.—Mrs. J. Fisher, jr.'s, chestnut colt, Swashbuckler, paraded to victory in the feature race at Rockingham Park today.

The race brought out a field of five two-year-olds, and Swashbuckler led the 8-5 favorite, Bright and Early, from the starting gate to the finish line.

They fought it out head to head for four of the five furlongs, but in the race for home, Swashbuckler, ridden by J. Pollard, stepped out to win by two and a half lengths.

Piccolo was third, a length behind Bright and Early.

Cliff, Glenn Spencer Will Team in Match

An old golf feud will flare up anew at 3 p. m. Sunday at Beaver Dam Country Club when the Spencer brothers, Cliff, of Beaver Dam, and Glenn, of Maryland Country Club, will meet At Houghton, of Kenwood, and Bob Barnett, of Chevy Chase, in an 18-hole exhibition match. The public is invited.

The match will be held in celebration of the club's anniversary.

Each Allows Five Blows; Sullivan, Crowder Are Victims.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, June 11.—The Detroit Tigers lost both ends of a double bill with the Boston Red Sox today when they dropped the nightcap, 5-2, after losing the first game, 3-1. Wesley Ferrell duplicated in the second game Lefty Grove's first game performance of five-hit pitching.

It was in a southpaw duel with young Ed Sullivan that Grove added another brilliant chapter to his come-back efforts.

Gen. Alvin Crowder failed to last in the second game when he was pitted against Ferrell. The Boston right-hander aided his own cause when he lifted a home run over the left field wall in the second inning with a mate on base to boost his lead to 3-0.

The Red Sox played without the services of Manager Joe Cronin at shortstop. Dib Williams performed acceptably in the role of Cronin, who was confined to the bench by a stone bruise on his heel.

6-Run Rally Wins First; Holbrook Banished in Dispute.

Simmons, Radcliff Slam Homers in Nightcap; Coppola Fails.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

A Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Washington plunged into the laborious task of extricating itself from sixth place in the American League this afternoon but met with only half-hearted success as the patched-up White Sox captured the last half of a twin bill, 9 to 3, after dropping the first, 9 to 8.

A throng of 15,000 fans were draped around Comiskey Park to welcome the Nats, or it may be that they came to cheer the Sox who are regarded as the American League's entry in the October classic and consequently regarded as something akin to sacred cows here in Chicago.

It was a wild afternoon, fraught with hits, runs, errors and a couple of bum umpires' decisions. It is only reasonable to presume that after death returns from its holiday the official scorer here, usually a placid and patient chap, will take one himself.

Holbrook Is Banished.

Sammy Holbrook, the rookie catcher who was behind the plate for Washington part of the first game, talked himself into retirement in the seventh inning when he disputed Umpire "Brick" Owens' decision on a foul ball knocked into the field pavilion by one Al Simmons. Holbrook disputed his point well, but entirely too vigorously for Owens, who dislikes scenes.

The hit was the turning point of an otherwise safe game for the Nats. It tied the score at 8-all and made it necessary for Herr Heine Manush to bring Johnny Stone home with the winning run in the eighth inning. Stone singled and Herr Heine went him one better with a double.

Neither of the Washington starting pitchers survived the afternoon. The broad expanse of Ed Linke was on the mound at the start of the first skirmish, but it was followed in turn by the not-so-broad Bob Burke, who later was supplanted by Bel Bean. Credit for the victory was thrust upon Burke's sagging shoulders, although it was one of his offerings that Mr. Simmons so unceremoniously slapped high into the left field stands.

Coppola Loses Second.

Young Henry Coppola was commissioned for duty in the final game and lasted five innings, or just long enough to lose the game. Again it was Burke to the rescue, but there wasn't much he could do about it.

Carl Fischer opened for the Sox in the first game, giving way to Les Tietje after Washington's sixth run had been chalked up in the third inning. But in the finale Manager Jimmy Dykes showed the visiting firemen a real man.

His name is Ray Phelps, a 200-odd pounder direct from St. Paul, by way of Pittsburgh and Brooklyn. Phelps looks like a semi-deflated baby blimp. When pitching he wobbles like a person trying to regain his balance. But he had just what it takes this afternoon and the Nats went down like paper dolls before an electric fan.

Kuhel scored Washington's first run of the second game in the opening inning on his single, a wild pitch by Phelps and an infield out. Bolton came over with the second in the eighth after punching a single to center. He made the rest of the way on Myer's walk, Burke's sacrifice and Kuhel's long fly to right. Myer scored the third and last after opening with a single. He reached third on Travis' sacrifice and scored on Powell's fly to center.

Chicago's big inning was the fifth, when the home town club ganged Coppola for five runs and what

Nats Take Opener From Chisox, 9-8, But Bow in Second, 9-3

This Morning...

With Shirley Povich

ON second thought, I don't think that the Canzoneri-Klick show was a financial flop. The $40,000 gate that the folks anticipated didn't materialize, but that $24,167 the fight did draw is a pretty healthy amount. Canzoneri and Klick fought for less in New York the last time they met.

POVICH.

If it was the Washington fight-minded who were on trial with respect to their response to a national attraction, they met the test nicely. It was their money that boosted the gate to its respectable figures. Certainly the Shriners didn't help it. If the estimated 100,000 Shriners in town had supported their own show even half-heartedly, it would have been a rousing financial success.

But they didn't. To this appraising eye, there appeared to be more red fezzes in the band that entertained before the bouts than there were in the stands. And the band got in free. It was a fearful let-down that the Shriners gave the promoters, and, as I was saying, it was the Washington fight public that put the show over.

Both Canzoneri and Klick left Washington satisfied with their ends of the purse. And to Eastern promoters and matchmakers who had Washington under scrutiny Monday night, that $24,000 gate, locally contributed, loomed large. Washington is in line for bigger and better attractions and fighters who formerly sniffed disdainfully at offers to show here on a percentage basis will be, I dare say, rather interested in the future.

BUT whenever Canzoneri and Klick stage a return match in Washington it will be too soon. Washington fans don't like that kind of match. It's sock, not science, that they want and neither Canzoneri or Klick can punch his way out of a cellophane wrapper, particularly Klick. When you toss them in there together you might as well turn your back on 'em unless you're a student of boxing.

Twice, now, Promoter Joe Turner had had a swell opportunity to impress a big crowd with the entertainment to be gleaned from his fight cards, and twice he has failed. For his opening show, he threw Natie Brown in against Johnny Risko, a pair of plodders who created no more excitement than a fez on Pennsylvania avenue. The Canzoneri-Klick affair was the second.

Paradoxically, the success of the preliminaries reacted against Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn. So furious was the action in the preceding bouts that the fans anticipated, at least, a swell fight when the pair of world champions met. But it was a terrific let-down, particularly when Klick refused to take a frontward step.

Despite the lack of action and the fond embrace of the two fighters after the finish, there was considerable rancor evident during the bout. Klick was cursing Canzoneri through his mouthpiece from the start and it was then that Canzoneri tried to show him up by sticking his unprotected chin in front of Klick's feeble punches. He made a sucker out of Klick, and, together, they made suckers out of the folks who weren't close enough to the ringside to see the skill they used.

I SEE by the papers that Judge Landis has asked for a transcript of the Alabama Pitts case as presented by the Albany Club and as ruled upon by the minor league chiefs. In due time, Landis will make the decision from which there will be no appeal, and here and now this department begs to go on record as prophesying action by Landis that will be unfavorable to Pitts.

Landis is the man commissioned by baseball to protect its investments. The baseball industry is still quaking at the fright of 1920 when the Black Sox scandal of 1919 was exposed. Then it was that millions invested in the game, in stadiums and players' contracts, was threatened by the reflection on its honesty. The business of baseball still shudders at the prospect of developments that might sweep away public confidence in its honesty.

Thus Alabama Pitts will have to take the rap for the baseball owners' fear. The business of baseball, in this case, will be choosing between what it considers the lesser of two evils—taking a former convict into its ranks, or facing what is likely to be hostile public reaction to any official ban on Pitts.

Baseball doubtless will prefer to let public reaction simmer and die in the face of what it believes will be two furious pennant races. It doesn't seem right. The public gave baseball a chance to come back after 1919. Baseball isn't giving Pitts that chance.

All Who Pick Braddock Over Baer Are Dopes, Gallico Says

By Paul Gallico.

A Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The problem that faces the fight expert as the fight for the heavyweight championship of the world approaches is a simple one. There are only two parties engaged—Baer and Braddock, champion and challenger. Then the only thing he must decide is how long and fuzzy his ears are to become when the thing is over and they are picking up the loser and ferrying him back to safety.

He must say to himself: "How long from head to tip will my ears grow and how much fur will they yield if I pick Baer to win and he loses? And how much more or less fuzzy and long will they wax if I select Braddock to win and he is quickly annihilated?" Once he makes up his mind to that there is nothing to the actual selecting. He simply picks the name, writes it down and sends it to the printers. He then goes and sits tremblingly through the prize fight, urging on his selection and wishing down maledictions upon the head of the opponent.

For my own part, I believe that it would be a swell sensation the morning after Braddock had disposed of Baer to walk around the town one of the brave minority that had the temerity and the foresight to play the long shot. But in this fight, I turn from that tempting spot and prefer to listen to the dictates of logic and reason. And, besides, if Baer wins, as he should, those who picked Braddock are going to look like veritable dopes indeed.

Veritably I believe their ears will be longer, thicker and furrier than mine will be if through some strange trick of fate, Baer should be deprived of his championship Thursday between the hours of 10 and 11 p. m., Eastern daylight saving time.

There is, I believe, too much fuss and worry over whether Baer can go 15 rounds, if necessary. Baer has done something that Braddock never has. He has fought two 20-round bouts. I doubt whether he was taking as good care of himself at that time as he is today. He was younger, wilder and more foolish. He fought them under the broiling Reno sun and was still there at the finish. If this is to be a 15-round hug-me-tight, I am still picking Momma Baer's little boy Maxie to be the fresh, bedewed daisy in that fifteenth round.

Right or wrong, I find it more interesting and personally entertaining to follow my own beliefs and convictions in a fight between two men than to try to board a lucky winner. When this match was made, it was my conviction that it was one of the worst heavyweight mismatches ever, and nothing has occurred in the interim to change that conviction particularly.

It is, I believe, even worse than the Tunney-Heeney fight. I think that Baer outclasses Braddock even more than Tunney did Heeney on the night that Gune methodically cut him down. By-the-bye, it is interesting to remember that Braddock was one of Heeney's sparring partners in his preparation for that fight and was about the only one of his crew that Heeney could lick in a rehearsal match.

Grant and Other Net Choices Win

Atlantan Routs Parsons in Southern Amateur.

Nashville, Tenn., June 11.—Bryan M. Grant, of Atlanta, defending champion and seeded No. 2, began his March to a seventh Southern amateur tennis championship this afternoon with a 6—0, 6—0 victory over Pollard Parsons, Nashville veteran.

Berkeley Bell, of New York City, also survived early competition, defeating Frank Corrigan, Atlanta, 6—3, 6—2.

Other seeded stars, including J. Gilbert Hall, of Orange, N. J.; John McDiarmid, of Chicago, and Lefty Bryan, of Chattanoga, Tenn., survived second-round matches.

Ambers Bout Delayed.

New York, June 11 (AP).—The Coney Island Veldrome boxing card, featuring a ten-rounder between Lou Ambers, of Herkimer, N. Y., and Fritzi Zivic, of Pittsburgh, was postponed today until next Tuesday night because of inclement weather.

Referee Plea Of Hoffman Squelched

Tunney and Kenworthy, Latter of District, on List of Five.

By Edward J. Neil.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The inevitable holler about referees broke out today to spice the preliminary maneuvering—and incidentally keep interest alive—in Max Baer's heavyweight title defense against Jimmy Braddock on Madison Square Garden's Bowl on Long Island Thursday night.

An old situation in a new setting, Ancil Hoffman, manager of the champion, tore into the New York State Athletic Commission today and demanded that one of his list of five eligibles be named.

With equal speed and no little uproar the commission promptly sat him down.

There was a very definite tongue-in-the-cheek aspect to Hoffman's nominees, for his first choice was George Blake, of Los Angeles, who happens to be several thousand miles away in Honolulu at the moment, considerable of a hurdle to overcome in 48 hours.

Proposes Tunney.

The second was Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, who has no referee's license. Another was Lieut. Jack Kennedy, another Pacific Coast arbiter who is with the Navy's Pacific battle fleet, and likewise might have trouble getting here. The other pair were Ed Dickerson, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Lieut. Comdr. Jess Kenworthy, naval officer stationed at Washington.

Sternly the commission told Hoffman that a New Yorker would referee and that if he had any specific objections to any man, the complaints should be filed after the weighing-in at the commission offices Thursday afternoon. Hoffman is certain to bar Arthur Donovan, who refereed the night Baer won the title on an 11-round technical knockout of Primo Carnera a year ago.

Forgets He Aided Baer.

While Hoffman has forgotten that Donovan twice stopped Baer from hitting Carnera while the Italian was down—thus keeping Max from losing automatically on a foul—the referee's score card had five rounds scored for each man at the end of the tenth. Hoffman insists Baer won every round.

"If Donovan is in the ring," Baer said as he rested at Asbury Park, taking only the lightest exercises, "I'll walk right out of there. There will be no fight."

Hoffman, more composed, said he didn't know what he would do if Donovan was named.

Joe Gould, manager of Braddock, whose workout consisted only of a rubdown, said anybody who could count ten would suit him as referee.

Ask About Forfeits.

The commissioners asked today where the $2,500 forfeits were that the fighters were supposed to post with them several weeks ago. Hoffman was ready to write them a

Inquiry in Pitts Case Is Begun By Landis

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, the one-man supreme court of organized baseball, today opened an investigation into the case of Edwin "Alabama" Pitts, former Sing Sing Prison athlete, who has been barred from the game by a minor league ruling.

Literally besieged by protests, denials and appeals in the case that already has developed into a national sports controversy, the commissioner, confined to his bed with a bad cold and high blood pressure, ordered all facts brought before him so he could study the appeal made to him by Pitts. When he will make his decision is not known.

The commissioner started his action in the case today by wiring to Warren Giles, of Rochester, N. Y., chairman of the executive committee of the minor leagues, which turned down Pitts' plea for admission yesterday, asking for all records in the case.

Evers' and Lawes' Pleas.

Statements from Pitts' sponsors, notably Johnny Evers, general manager of the Albany Club, of the International League, and Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing, also are expected to be placed before the commissioner.

Although Pitts' plea to be allowed to enter the organized baseball ranks with Albany was rejected by the minor league executive committee because he is an ex-convict, one man tonight offered to furnish Commissioner Landis with proof that at least two paroled convicts have been allowed to compete in organized baseball ranks. The man

Pro-Amateur Tourney Is Set at Indian Spring

A pro-amateur tournament will be sponsored by the Middle Atlantic P. G. A. Monday at Indian Spring Country Club. Some 30 teams from Washington and Baltimore are expected to participate. An 18-hole pro tournament will be held in the morning.

Middle Atlantic Aces Open Golf Play Today

By the Associated Press.

Riegel, seeking to become the eighth campaigner to win twice the prize in the 30-year-old tournament, was hitting his shots remarkably well as he set the pace for the stars who brought out their clubs for a practice round.

The entries will qualify in two divisions, devoting tomorrow and Thursday to the business of determining the 16 who will compete for the crown. Match play starts Friday and will be concluded with an 18-hole final on Saturday afternoon.

The pay-off for Bobby Riegel came on putts, the youthful star dropping them sensationally—just as they did when he won at Hot Springs a year ago. He got home with a 20-footer on the eighteenth green for a birdie 3. He elected to qualify after 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Billy Howell, of Richmond, at 23 a veteran of the golfing wars, will renew his comeback attempt in an effort to scale again the heights that brought him national attention. He was hitting the ball well today, but the putts would not fall. As it was he scored a creditable 73.

Official Says Browns Not For Sale

By the Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—The St. Louis Browns, who are decidedly down if you consider the American League standings, lifted a voice up the cellar stairs today to tell the baseball world they are not "out," financially or otherwise.

Sticking in a finger to stop the steadily increasing flow of "sale" gossip, L. C. McEvoy, club vice president, told the fans, "It is the intention of the present ownership to continue the operation of the Browns."

Hemsley to Stay.

Almost with the same breath he snuffed out persistent rumors that "Rollicking Rollie" Hemsley, ace catcher and one of the few valuable veterans left on the club roster, would be traded to Cleveland. The vice president ended that business with "the player will remain with the Browns."

Talk of sales, liquidation and even abandonment of the club franchise, has been thick since Manager Rogers Hornsby went on a David Harum spree during a recent road trip and traded a majority of the seasoned timber out of the organization while he was trading $100,000 cash into the club coffers.

Change to Cheers.

Cries of anguish that first greeted the deals simmered to nothing, then changed to scattered cheers as Trader Hornsby pointed to a few results of his dickerings. Example No. 1 is that since "Sugar" Cain, Coleman and Solters came to the team, 18 games ago, the club had gained 100 points in percentage.

Discussing finances today, McEvoy said, "the club is in excellent financial condition and the ownership is prepared and willing to buy any player that, in the judgment of the club management, will improve the standing of the team, and it is the intention of the present ownership to continue the operation of the Browns and to make every effort to give the fans of St. Louis a penant contender."

Rockingham Race To Swashbuckler

Bright and Early, 8-5 Shot, Finishes Second.

By the Associated Press.

Salem, N. H., June 11.—Mrs. J. Fisher, jr.'s, chestnut colt, Swashbuckler, paraded to victory in the feature race at Rockingham Park today.

The race brought out a field of five two-year-olds, and Swashbuckler led the 8-5 favorite, Bright and Early, from the starting gate to the finish line.

They fought it out head to head for four of the five furlongs, but in the race for home, Swashbuckler, ridden by J. Pollard, stepped out to win by two and a half lengths.

Piccolo was third, a length behind Bright and Early.

Cliff, Glenn Spencer Will Team in Match

An old golf feud will flare up anew at 3 p. m. Sunday at Beaver Dam Country Club when the Spencer brothers, Cliff, of Beaver Dam, and Glenn, of Maryland Country Club, will meet At Houghton, of Kenwood, and Bob Barnett, of Chevy Chase, in an 18-hole exhibition match. The public is invited.

The match will be held in celebration of the club's anniversary.

Each Allows Five Blows; Sullivan, Crowder Are Victims.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, June 11.—The Detroit Tigers lost both ends of a double bill with the Boston Red Sox today when they dropped the nightcap, 5-2, after losing the first game, 3-1. Wesley Ferrell duplicated in the second game Lefty Grove's first game performance of five-hit pitching.

It was in a southpaw duel with young Ed Sullivan that Grove added another brilliant chapter to his come-back efforts.

Gen. Alvin Crowder failed to last in the second game when he was pitted against Ferrell. The Boston right-hander aided his own cause when he lifted a home run over the left field wall in the second inning with a mate on base to boost his lead to 3-0.

The Red Sox played without the services of Manager Joe Cronin at shortstop. Dib Williams performed acceptably in the role of Cronin, who was confined to the bench by a stone bruise on his heel.

6-Run Rally Wins First; Holbrook Banished in Dispute.

Simmons, Radcliff Slam Homers in Nightcap; Coppola Fails.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

A Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Washington plunged into the laborious task of extricating itself from sixth place in the American League this afternoon but met with only half-hearted success as the patched-up White Sox captured the last half of a twin bill, 9 to 3, after dropping the first, 9 to 8.

A throng of 15,000 fans were draped around Comiskey Park to welcome the Nats, or it may be that they came to cheer the Sox who are regarded as the American League's entry in the October classic and consequently regarded as something akin to sacred cows here in Chicago.

It was a wild afternoon, fraught with hits, runs, errors and a couple of bum umpires' decisions. It is only reasonable to presume that after death returns from its holiday, the official scorer here, usually a placid and patient chap, will take one himself.

Holbrook Is Banished.

Sammy Holbrook, the rookie catcher who was behind the plate for Washington part of the first game, talked himself into retirement in the seventh inning when he disputed Umpire "Brick" Owens' decision on a foul ball knocked into the field pavilion by one Al Simmons. Holbrook disputed his point well, but entirely too vigorously for Owens, who dislikes scenes.

The hit was the turning point of an otherwise safe game for the Nats. It tied the score at 8-all and made it necessary for Herr Heine Manush to bring Johnny Stone home with the winning run in the eighth inning. Stone singled and Herr. Heine went him one better with a double.

Neither of the Washington starting pitchers survived the afternoon. The broad expanse of Ed Linke was on the mound at the start of the first skirmish, but it was followed in turn by the not-so-broad Bob Burke, who later was supplanted by Bel Bean. Credit for the victory was thrust upon Burke's sagging shoulders, although it was one of his offerings that Mr. Simmons so unceremoniously slapped high into the left field stands.

Coppola Loses Second.

Young Henry Coppola was commissioned for duty in the final game and lasted five innings, or just long enough to lose the game. Again it was Burke to the rescue, but there wasn't much he could do about it.

Carl Fischer opened for the Sox in the first game, giving way to Les Tietje after Washington's sixth run had been chalked up in the third inning. But in the finale Manager Jimmy Dykes showed the visiting firemen a real man.

His name is Ray Phelps, a 200-odd pounder direct from St. Paul by way of Pittsburgh and Brooklyn. Phelps looks like a semi-deflated baby blimp. When pitching he wobbles like a person trying to regain his balance. But he had just what it takes this afternoon and the Nats went down like paper dolls before an electric fan.

Kuhel scored Washington's first run of the second game in the opening inning on his single, a wild pitch by Phelps and an infield out. Bolton came over with the second in the eighth after punching a single to center. He made the rest of the way on Myer's walk, Burke's sacrifice and Kuhel's long fly to right. Myer scored the third and last after opening with a single. He reached third on Travis' sacrifice and scored on Powell's fly to center.

Chicago's big inning was the fifth, when the home town club ganged Coppola for five runs and what

Iwintoo Runs Second by 2 Lengths

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., June 11.—You have to take your riders as you find them here. Jockey V. Wisner, who tried to ride a little filly named Lady Spy over and through horses in the fourth race, came back with a masterful performance to win the next race, the feature, with Inscription.

Inscription's victory was a popular one, the daughter of Messenger having been the medium of a parade to the mutuel windows which resulted in a $3.80 mutuel.

Wisner, who seemed to be looking for switches in the Lady Spy race, kept Inscription out of all trouble in the feature, and he sailed through the stretch to collar Iwintoo by two lengths. Sandfalon was third, three lengths away from the place horse.

Iwintoo, handled by Eddie Smith, set the pace virtually from the break and opened up a nice lead on Sandfalon on the swing for the stretch. At this point, Inscription moved up from third position, and slowly but surely cut down Iwintoo to win going away.

Obert Rides Winner.

Willie Obert, the oldest active jockey in this country, scored one of his few victories aboard Parade On in the sixth race. He hustled the 3-year-old away from the barrier and made every post a winning one. Khelaboo made a closing rush that barely missed being successful.

The second smallest daily double pay-off of the meeting followed on the heels of yesterday's $1,873.80 record reward. Those who were lucky enough to play the combination of Tuleyries Wand and Harmoak were unlucky enough to collect $22.20, which did not cover the amount that a $2 parlay on the pair would have netted.

One of the best week-day crowds of the meeting witnessed the program, run over a drying-out track that was nearing the "fast" point before the sun set.

Pitts Case Inquiry Opened by Landis

was Howard Millard, of Decatur, sports editor of the Decatur Herald-Review and former president of the Dayton, Ohio, club of the Central League.

"While I do not care to mention names out of respect for a couple of fellows who may be happily married and have youngsters, I would gladly furnish Commissioner Landis with the information if he desires it," said Millard.

Albany, N. Y., June 11 (AP).—Alabama Pitts, erstwhile Sing Sing prison athlete, barred from organized baseball because he is an ex-convict, was visibly encouraged tonight by hundreds of telegrams and letters wishing him "good luck."

Throughout a dreary, sunless day, the 24-year-old Southerner sat in his hotel room and in the offices of the Albany Club of the International League, thumbing messages in support of his case, prompted by the Minor Baseball League Association's ruling denying him the right to join the Senators.

Victim Sympathizes.

"If the parole commissioner thinks it safe for society to send Pitts out," said John Costello, manager of a New York City chain grocery which Pitts and a companion held up in 1930, "it ought to be safe for baseball players. My sympathies are entirely with Alabama in this controversy."

Pitts reiterated he wants to play ball in preference to anything else.

"It's the thing I can do best," he repeated. "I only ask for the chance to prove I can. If I did not think I could play well enough for Albany I wouldn't be here now."

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JUBILEE JIM, $8.30, $2.90, $3.10; SEABISCUIT, $2.30, $2.40; SKY PIRATE, $6.80.

JUBILEE JIM, away fast and under steadying restraint from the first until the last five-sixteenths, went to the front with a rush when called upon and drew out fast in the stretch run. SEABISCUIT displayed good speed from the start, but was no match for the winner though continuing gamely to the end. SKY PIRATE, under urging, moved up on the outside until reaching the stretch and finished with good energy. KRONA was never able to reach the leaders. KNIGHT WARRIOR gained a prominent position soon after the start, but was unable to keep up under pressure. PROFESSOR PAUL was never prominent.

SECOND RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $800. For maiden 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:52. Off at 2:54. Winner, Mrs. E. Trueman's b. c. (2), by Teddy—Sea Mona. Trained by E. Trueman. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth $25. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:49 3-5, 1:02 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SEA TED, $9.00, $4.40, $3.60; MADAM ZERO, $4.70, $3.90; HERONDAS, $5.90.

SEA TED, moved up fast after swinging from the back stretch, assumed a slight lead and, fighting it out courageously all the entire last quarter-mile, outlasted MADAM ZERO at the end. MADAM ZERO went into contention on the outside, responded gamely to brisk pressure and continued gamely to the end. HERONDAS, forced to lose ground while gaining a prominent position in time, responded determinedly and finished in resolute fashion. PRINCESS ALICE displayed good speed for the opening three furlongs. RONFALON, slow to settle in his best stride, was never able to reach the leaders.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:20. Off at 3:24. Winner, J. U. Gratton's ch. c. (3), by Dunlin—Parade. Trained by W. Irvine. Value to winner, $730; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:13 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PARADUN, $6.50, $4.10, $3.00; HIGH HAND II, $7.10, $4.30; WITAN, $3.10.

PARADUN, quickest to begin, assumed a slight lead and, rated along under slight restraint, held away to the end. HIGH HAND II, under slight reserve for the first half-mile, came through on the inside in the stretch and, responding gamely to pressure, was cutting down the winner's advantage at every stride near the finish. WITAN, outpaced early, was greatly benefited by saving ground at the stretch turn and closed willingly. MOANE KEALA, well placed early and under urging, faltered in the last quarter-mile. GLYNDON BELLE, in nearest attendance of the leader for the first half-mile, weakened.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:41½. Winner, J. U. Gratton's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH TORQUE, $3.40, $2.80, $2.60; AMERICAN EMBLEM, $5.40, $4.00; GIFTED LAD, $6.10.

HIGH TORQUE, away well, went into the lead when called upon, drew clear in the first quarter-mile and, steadied along in front, won with speed in reserve. AMERICAN EMBLEM, under steadying reserve early, made his bid in the last five-sixteenths, saved ground at the stretch turn and closed stoutly. GIFTED LAD ran prominently placed all the way. ATMOSPHERE closed some ground. STAROGAN, hard ridden in an effort to reach the pacemaker, stopped in the last quarter-mile.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 5:16. Off at 5:17½. Winner, M. Pike's b. m. (5), by Dunlin—Bassinet. Trained by T. Horning. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:49, 1:14 3-5, 1:41, 1:54 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SAND BABY, $9.30, $4.90, $3.00; MORALIST, $7.50, $3.60; LONMEG, $2.60.

SAND BABY, away well, was permitted to drop back during the first quarter-mile, began working his way forward approaching the far turn, moved up steadily, saved a deal of ground at the stretch turn, and drew clear at the end. MORALIST, in nearest pursuit, continued gamely to the end, just failing to get up. LONMEG, lead at the first turn, was rated along in front and, placed under punishment, weakened in the stretch run. CHRYSMUTE moved up on the outside midway of the turn, but weakened thereafter.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:47. Off at 5:48. Winner, Miss A. WITAN, outpaced early, was greatly benefited by saving ground at the stretch turn and closed willingly. MOANE KEALA, well placed early and under urging, faltered in the last quarter-mile. GLYNDON BELLE, in nearest attendance of the leader for the first half-mile, weakened.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:46. Off at 4:47½. Winner, J. U. Gratton's b. c. (4), by High Cloud—Torque. Trained by W. Irvine. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:14 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH TORQUE, $3.40, $2.80, $2.60; AMERICAN EMBLEM, $5.40, $4.00; GIFTED LAD, $6.10.

HIGH TORQUE, away well, went into the lead when called upon, drew clear in the first quarter-mile and, steadied along in front, won with speed in reserve. AMERICAN EMBLEM, under steadying reserve early, made his bid in the last five-sixteenths, saved ground at the stretch turn and closed stoutly. GIFTED LAD ran prominently placed all the way. ATMOSPHERE closed some ground. STAROGAN, hard ridden in an effort to reach the pacemaker, stopped in the last quarter-mile.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 5:16. Off at 5:17½. Winner, M. Pike's b. m. (5), by Dunlin—Bassinet. Trained by T. Horning. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:49, 1:14 3-5, 1:41, 1:54 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SAND BABY, $9.30, $4.90, $3.00; MORALIST, $7.50, $3.60; LONMEG, $2.60.

SAND BABY, away well, was permitted to drop back during the first quarter-mile, began working his way forward approaching the far turn, moved up steadily, saved a deal of ground at the stretch turn, and drew clear at the end. MORALIST, in nearest pursuit, continued gamely to the end, just failing to get up. LONMEG, lead at the first turn, was rated along in front and, placed under punishment, weakened in the stretch run. CHRYSMUTE moved up on the outside midway of the turn, but weakened thereafter.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:47. Off at 5:48. Winner, Miss A. Doris' b. h. (6), by Axenstein—Dunce Cap. Trained by H. L. Campbell. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:14, 1:41 2-5, 1:48 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOOCAP, $7.60, $4.50, $3.00 RAMUS $8.10, $4.90; MY BOSS, $3.40.

BOOCAP, under steadying restraint while following the pace, closed with a rush through the stretch and was up in the concluding stride. RAMUS went to the front in the run to the first turn, opened up a good lead, was placed under punishment in the stretch, and fought it out gamely to the end. MY BOSS, in closest pursuit of the pace, moved up menacingly nearing the stretch and, despite hard urging the last furlong, was unable to wear down the leader. TRIOLET came with a belated rush through position. MILD was never a threat.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., June 11.—You have to take your riders as you find them here. Jockey V. Wisner, who tried to ride a little filly named Lady Spy over and through horses in the fourth race, came back with a masterful performance to win the next race, the feature, with Inscription.

Inscription's victory was a popular one, the daughter of Messenger having been the medium of a parade to the mutuel windows which resulted in a $3.80 mutuel.

Wisner, who seemed to be looking for switches in the Lady Spy race, kept Inscription out of all trouble in the feature, and he sailed through the stretch to collar Iwintoo by two lengths. Sandfalon was third, three lengths away from the place horse.

Iwintoo, handled by Eddie Smith, set the pace virtually from the break and opened up a nice lead on Sandfalon on the swing for the stretch. At this point, Inscription moved up from third position and slowly but surely cut down Iwintoo to win going away.

Obert Rides Winner.

Willie Obert, the oldest active jockey in this country, scored one of his few victories aboard Parade On in the sixth race. He hustled the 3-year-old away from the barrier and made every post a winning one. Khelaboo made a closing rush that barely missed being successful.

The second smallest daily double pay-off of the meeting followed on the heels of yesterday's $1,873.80 record reward. Those who were lucky enough to play the combination of Tuleyries Wand and Harmoak were unlucky enough to collect $22.20, which did not cover the amount that a $2 parlay on the pair would have netted.

One of the best week-day crowds of the meeting witnessed the program, run over a drying-out track that was nearing the "fast" point before the sun set.

Pitts Case Inquiry Opened by Landis

was Howard Millard, of Decatur, sports editor of the Decatur Herald-Review and former president of the Dayton, Ohio, club of the Central League.

"While I do not care to mention names out of respect for a couple of fellows who may be happily married and have youngsters, I would gladly furnish Commissioner Landis with the information if he desires it," said Millard.

Albany, N. Y., June 11 (AP).—Alabama Pitts, erstwhile Sing Sing prison athlete, barred from organized baseball because he is an ex-convict, was visibly encouraged tonight by hundreds of telegrams and letters wishing him "good luck."

A complete review of his case was speedily drafted for the consideration of Judge Landis.

Throughout a dreary, sunless day, the 24-year-old Southerner sat in his hotel room and in the offices of the Albany Club of the International League, thumbing messages in support of his case, prompted by the Minor Baseball League Association's ruling denying him the right to join the Senators.

Victim Sympathizes.

"If the parole commissioner thinks it safe for society to send Pitts out," said John Costello, manager of a New York City chain grocery which Pitts and a companion held up in 1930, "it ought to be safe for baseball players. My sympathies are entirely with Alabama in this controversy."

Pitts reiterated he wants to play ball in preference to anything else.

"It's the thing I can do best," he repeated. "I only ask for the chance to prove I can. If I did not think I could play well enough for Albany I wouldn't be here now."

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JUBILEE JIM, $8.30, $2.90, $3.10; SEABISCUIT, $2.30, $2.40; SKY PIRATE, $6.80.

JUBILEE JIM away fast and under steadying restraint from the first until the last five-sixteenths, went to the front with a rush when called upon and drew out fast in the stretch run. SEABISCUIT displayed good speed from the start, but was no match for the winner though continuing gamely to the end. SKY PIRATE, under urging, moved up on the outside until reaching the stretch and finished with good energy. KRONA was never able to reach the leaders. KNIGHT WARRIOR gained a prominent position soon after the start, but was unable to keep up under pressure. PROFESSOR PAUL was never prominent.

SECOND RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $800. For maiden 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:52. Off at 2:54. Winner, Mrs. E. Trueman's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SEA TED, $9.00, $4.40, $3.80; MADAM ZERO, $4.70, $3.90; HERONDAS, $5.90.

SEA TED moved up fast after swinging from the back stretch, assumed a slight lead and, fighting it out courageously all the entire last quarter-mile, outlasted MADAM ZERO at the end. MADAM ZERO went into contention on the outside, responded gamely to brisk pressure and continued gamely to the end, just failing to get up in time. HERONDAS, forced to lose ground while gaining a prominent position responded determinedly and finished in resolute fashion. PRINCESS ALICE displayed good speed for the opening three furlongs. RONFALON, slow to settle in his best stride, was never able to reach the leaders.

THIRD RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:20. Off at 3:24½. Winner, Mrs. P. D. Watts' ch. c. (4), by Golden Spire—Daisy Vein. Trained by H. Hausner. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:08 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GOLDEN VEIN, $5.70, $4.10, $3.20; CHEWAWA, $5.90, $4.40; CHEROKEE SAL, $7.70.

GOLDEN VEIN, hard hustled from the start, went to the front before reaching the far turn and drew out steadily and was in hand at the end. CHEWAWA improved her position gradually and closed determinedly on the outside through the last three-sixteenths. CHEROKEE SAL, under pressure throughout, held on willingly to the finish. JIRASOL II moved up threateningly at the turn for home, but was unable to keep pace in the drive. GENERAL A, forced back in the first three-sixteenths, was unable to gain clear sailing until nearing the stretch. BELIEVER tired. CHIRAC was outrun throughout.

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $1,500; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:50. Off at 3:50½. Winner, Mrs. J. Fisher, jr.'s ch. c. (2), by Canter—Binnacle. Trained by C. J. Meister. Value to winner $1,000; second, $300; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:00 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SWASHBUCKLER, $11.50, $4.90, $3.00; BRIGHT AND EARLY, $3.30, $2.70; PICCOLO, $2.50.

SWASHBUCKLER displayed good speed from the start, drew clear rounding the far turn and, rated along under slight restraint, was being taken in hand in the closing strides. BRIGHT AND EARLY, hustled to the outside in the first sixteenth, was placed under punishment approaching the stretch in an effort to reach the leader, but was not good enough though continuing gamely to the end. PICCOLO, outrun early came with good speed in the last three-sixteenths. SQUAWKER forced the early pace, dropping back after leaving the back stretch. DELIBERATE was forced to take up in the first furlong.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:16. Off at 4:18. Winner, J. U. Gratton's ch. f. (3), by Dunlin—Parade. Trained by W. Irvine. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:13 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PARADUN, $6.50, $4.10, $3.00; HIGH HAND II, $7.10, $4.30; WITAN, $3.10.

PARADUN, quickest to begin, assumed a slight lead and, rated along under slight restraint through the stretch and was up in the concluding stride. HIGH HAND II, under slight reserve for the first half-mile, came through on the inside at the stretch and, responding gamely to pressure, was cutting down the winner's advantage at every stride near the end. WITAN, outpaced early, was greatly benefited by saving ground at the stretch turn and was finishing fast at the end. MOANE KEALA, well placed early and under urging, faltered in the last quarter-mile. GLYNDON BELLE, in nearest attendance of the leader for the first half-mile weakened.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:46. Off at 4:47½. Winner, J. H. Gratton's b. f. (4), by High Cloud—Torque. Trained by W. Irvine. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:14 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH TORQUE, $3.40, $2.80, $2.60; AMERICAN EMBLEM, $5.40, $4.00; GIFTED LADY, $6.10.

HIGH TORQUE, away well, went into the lead when called upon, drew clear in the last quarter-mile and, steadied along in front, won with speed in reserve. AMERICAN EMBLEM, under steadying reserve early, made his bid in the last five-sixteenths, saved ground at the stretch turn, and closed stoutly. GIFTED LADY ran prominently placed all the way. ATMOSPHERE closed some ground. STAROGAN, hard ridden to reach the leaders, stopped in the last quarter-mile.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 5:16. Off at 5:17½. Winner P. M. Pike's b. g. (5), by Dunlin—Bassinet. Trained by T. Horning. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:49, 1:14 2-5, 1:41, 1:54 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SAND BABY, $9.30, $4.90, $3.00; MORALIST, $7.50, $3.60; LONMEG $2.60.

SAND BABY, away well, was permitted to drop back during the first quarter-mile, began to work his way forward approaching the far turn, moved up steadily, saved a great deal of ground at the stretch turn, and drew clear at the end. MORALIST, in nearest pursuit, continued gamely to take second place. LONMEG assumed the lead at the first turn, was rated along in front and, placed under punishment, weakened in the stretch run. CHRYSMUTE moved up on the outside midway of the turn, but weakened thereafter.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gate. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:47. Off at 5:48. Winner, Miss A. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOOCAP, $7.60, $4.50, $3.00 RAMUS $8.10, $4.90; MY BOSS, $3.40.

BOOCAP, under steadying restraint while following the pace, closed with a rush through the stretch and was up in the concluding stride. RAMUS went to the front in the run to the first turn, opened up a good lead, was placed under punishment in the stretch, and fought it out gamely to the end. MY BOSS, in closest pursuit of the pace, moved up menacingly nearing the stretch and, despite hard urging, was unable to wear down the leader. TRIOLET came with a belated rush through the last furlong. SOUND MONEY, well placed early, was unable to improve her position. MILD was never a threat.

Belshe Shoots 149 to Win Inter-Departmental Golf Tourney

Second Place To Miller, With 153

Burton Low Net Victor; Treasury Team Takes Mellon Trophy.

AN in-and-out player for the last two years, watching championships elude him because he couldn't sink his putts at crucial moments, Tom Belshe, Indian Spring's popular "Old Warhorse," came back yesterday to win the Inter-Departmental golf championship over his home course with a 36-hole total of 149, seven over par.

It was Belshe's first important victory since he captured his own club championship a few years ago.

Representing the War Department, Belshe shot a brilliant 72, one over par, in his morning round, and safely protected his lead with a 77 in the afternoon. Johnny Miller, of Treasury, pulled up in second place with 76-77—153, and Hickman Greene, of Public Works Administration, first day pacesetter, was third with 154. Capt. Kendall J. Fielder, of War Department, had a brace of 78's, and Bobby Burton, of Navy, shot a 76, and then folded up for an 81 in the afternoon. Jack Lynch, of Treasury, also did well in the morning with his 75, but he lost his putting touch in the second round, and took an 82.

Shoots Two Birdies.

Belshe's game clicked beautifully for the first 18. He was two under fours for the first nine, clipping a stroke off par, thanks to birdies on the eighth and ninth holes.

Treasury won the famous Mellon Team Trophy with a total of 639. Miller with 153; Lynch, with 157; J. M. Palmer, with 83-81—167, and Paul Carey, with 81-81—163, were members of the winning team.

The low net winner in Class A was Bobby Burton, well known public links player. Burton had a 157 gross, an 18 handicap for the 36 holes, a net of 139.

Wins Class B Medal.

Nats and Chicago Divide Double Bill

proved to be the ball game. The youngster finished out the inning, but Burke was out there chucking at the start of the sixth.

The Nats sliced off a large hunk of Chicago's enthusiasm in the third inning of the first game with a rain of hits that produced six runs and forced Fischer into retirement. Briefly, Powell doubled after Travis flied out. Schulte singled to right scoring Powell, and Holbrook followed with another hit that moved the Dutchman over to third.

Fischer walked Kuhel to get at Linke, but regretted the move when the chubby one lined a single to center scoring Schulte and Holbrook. Kuhel continued on to third while Simmons played with the ball and scored when Bluege forced Linke at second. Manush doubled and Fischer pitched a single to Myer, enabling Bluege and Manush to score before Tietje assumed the Sox pitching duties.

Appling's error on Powell's grounder paved the way for Washington's seventh run. He moved around to third on Schulte's single to right and came home when Holbrook hit into a double play.

Three Singles Help.

Successive singles by Manush, Myer and Travis were responsible for the Nats' eighth run, and Joe Kuhel almost brought in four more, but the foul line was a trifle too far to the left for his drive. Holbrook had walked filling the bases before Kuhel hooked his drive into the right field stands.

It was almost as tough on the scorer in Chicago's half of the seventh when, after the first two batters had been retired, the South Side boys pushed five runs over and tied it up at 8-all. Radcliff's single, coupled with passes to Hopkins, Haas and Bonura and followed by Simmons' devastating blow to left did the damage. Linke was granted a leave of absence, with Burke coming in.

Chicago's first run crossed the plate in the fourth which Zeke Bonura opened with a single. Appling's single, Schulte's error on the hit, and an infield out brought Bonura the rest of the way. The next two Sox runs came in the sixth on singles by Haas and Simmons, a walk to Bonura and a double play.

Quantico Polo Team Bows at Hagerstown

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 11.—The Washington County Polo Club opened its season today at Fenton Field with an 8-to-6 victory over the Marine team of Quantico, Va. The visitors were given a 2-goal handicap.

With the score 7 to 6 near the end of the game, Mason clinched victory with a 100-yard shot for goal.

Dingle Netmen Score.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 11.—Capturing six out of the seven matches that were played, the Dingle tennis team inaugurated its 1935 campaign against out-of-town opponents by defeating Davis, W. Va., on local courts.

Women's Golf Entries Close On Friday

ENTRIES for the Ditrict women's golf chmpionship—the most important tournament of the year for the feminine swingers—will close Friday, and the Indian Spring Country Club, scene of the battle scheduled to open next Monday, will be open for practice rounds Friday and Saturday morning, it was announced yesterday.

The entry fee of $1.50 should be sent to Mrs. F. J. Kennedy, 3625 Sixteenth street northwest. She may be reached by telephone at Adams 7987.

Miss Winifred Faunce, of Manor, the young miss who made a successful return to her golfing wars by winning the District championship at Columbia last June after capturing the medal prize, will defend her crown against the strongest field in history. Mrs. Betty Meckley, of the host club, twice former title holder and more recently winner of the Maryland championship; Mrs. Jack Scott, Miss Helen Dettweiler and Mrs. Elsie Hayes, 1933 champion, all of Congressional; Mrs. Leo Walper and Miss Virginia Pope, of Kenwood, and Miss Ellen Kincaid, of Beaver Dam, will be among the stars entered.

Mrs. Clark Out.

Illness will prevent Mrs. David Clark, of Army and Navy, Middle Atlantic champion, from participating.

Of particular interest to women this week is the field day which Mrs. Charles K. Wing, president of the District Women's Golf Association, will sponsor Friday morning at Army and Navy, her home club. More than 100 are expected to compete. There is no entrance fee.

The Tschiffely Cup tournament scheduled today and tomorrow at Washington Golf and Country Club has been posptoned until June 27-28.

Monday, June 17, is the last day to enter the Maryland State Amateur championship, which opens next Wednesday at Five Farms, with Roger Peacock seeking his third straight crown. Meanwhile, local junior golfers are girding themselves for the Maryland State junior title, an 18-hole medal play event, scheduled Monday at Rolling Road. Billy Dettweiler, of Congressional, is the defending champion.

Mrs. A. E. Dedicke, Army and Navy champion, shot a 44—42—86 yesterday at her home club. She has had four such rounds in the last two weeks.

Army Poloists Avenge Loss, Tie Series

Beat Marshall-Middleburg in Fast Battle by 11-to-8 Score.

By John R. Vosburgh.

POLO and the Noble Order of the Mystic Shrine, both of which were born and raised as traditions of the East, got together yesterday at the West Potomac Park polo field. A couple of hundred Shriners and about 1,000 Washington polo fans gathered to watch a grizzled War Department team turn in an 11-to-8 victory to even its series with the Marshall-Middleburg Cavaliers of Virginia.

The numerous red fezzes spattering crimson generously among the green scenery of the picturesque field harkened back to more than 2,000 years ago when Nobles of the courts of Persia and Arabia battled in the new game of polo. According to Omar Khayyam or other writers of the ancient East, fez-bedecked galleries of nobles watched these frays when young princes of the royal families raced their thoroughbred steeds upon one another.

Hard-Riding Battle.

At any rate, the nobles who saw yesterday's performance probably were provided with as genuine a spectacle of hard riding as the actual nobles of the old East saw at any time or place. The young society figures of Virginia's horse country were riding fast and furiously in order to prove that their 10-9 victory Saturday was no upset. The handicap of four goals given them, however, was not enough.

Old Joe Swing, the veteran major with the graying hair, and the hard-bitten Maj. C. C. ("C-Square") Smith were riding as if they were 20 years younger. On one occasion Swing and John Rawlins, suave young Virginian, came together with a resounding thud near the sideboard, only a few feet from the spectators, both riders all but falling as their horses momentarily bucked and reared from the impact.

Swing, the officer who gave up the No. 4 position on the American Army team which played the Mexican army last year, in order to give young Lieut. Eddie Walker the experience of international play, was riding in his customary rough-and-tumble form at back, slamming in six goals to lead the individual scoring by a wide margin.

Arnold Scores Three.

Maj. A. A. Arnold, taking time off from his duties at the War College, tallied three times, but the riding of Smith, who scored once, was as prominent a factor in the winners' triumph. Rawlins scored twice for the Virginians.

A third match will be played shortly.

Maj. Arnold	No. 2	Rawlins
Maj. Smith	No. 3	Fair

check immediately, but Gould paled, like his fighter, a recent fugitive from the relief rolls. Gould is a little short of money.

"I guess I'll have to bring Braddock down here and leave him in hock with you," he told the commission.

The commission waived the point. Bright weather aided the situation somewhat today, but there was no great rush for the box offices and it seems unlikely now that more than 30,000, paying, perhaps, less than $200,000, will see the match. There was little betting, with odds varying widely. Quotations averaged about 5 to 1 on Baer to win somehow. Both appear to be in excellent condition, but Baer's edge in punching power, and Braddock's inability to avoid right-hand smashes to the head, swayed most of the experts.

There is considerable feeling, though, that if Braddock can stand off the champion's early rushes he stands an even chance of methodically poking Baer around for 15 rounds to win the decision.

Navy Oarsmen Leave Today For Races

Begin Final Preparations Tomorrow for Tests at Poughkeepsie.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 11.—Navy's varsity, junior varsity and freshman eight-oared crews completed their training on the Severn River today, and are ready to move to the banks of the Hudson tomorrow for final preparations for the intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie June 18.

The crews worked out both morning and afternoon, varsity sweepsters covering the four-mile grind, the regatta course, in each instance. When his charges returned to the boat house, Coach Charles (Buck) Walsh expressed satisfaction with their work. He is particularly pleased with the season's showing of his varsity group. He said it is the fastest crew in sprint races he has handled in his several years coaching at Navy, and though lighter than most Navy senior eights of recent years, he believes it will make a fine showing in the longer pull.

Lost In Cup Event.

In senior competition this year, the Middies won handily from Columbia and Cornell, but lost the Adams Cup event to Pennsylvania by a bare margin of 2 feet in the most sensational dash ever staged on the Severn. The Jayvee and freshmen eights completed their season without defeat. All early races were over the Henley distance of a mile and five-sixteenths, or the one and three-quarter miles courses. Except for a few minor shifts, all of the crews are intact as they rowed in previous brushes.

Thirty-two men will comprise the party leaving here at 8:10 a. m. tomorrow. Lieut. Comdr. John H. Brown, jr., graduate manager of athletics, will be in charge. All equipment was shipped today, and it is planned for the crews to have their first workout on the Hudson Thursday morning.

Two Games Set Today In Shenandoah League

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Woodstock, Va., June 11.—The Shenandoah County League will offer two revenge battles tomorrow when Woodstock will seek to defeat Edinburg and avenge a 14-2 trouncing and Mount Jackson will meet Strasburg at Mount Jackson where it hopes to regain the league lead snatched from them by Strasburg Sunday.

Jim Buck Coffman will go on the hill for Woodstock to oppose "Lefty" Dinges, while Tim Artz will probably battle it out with Jim Shannon in the Mount Jackson-Strasburg game.

North Mountain Wins.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 11.—The North Mountain Baseball Club won its third straight game by defeating the Snyders All-Stars, 14-3, at North Mountain.

He started on the exhibition trip last April. The team disbanded at Parkersburg, W. Va.

Culpeper Nine Smothers Orange

Lefty McIntyre Gives Up Only Three Hits in 8-to-0 Triumph.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

CULPEPER, Va., June 11.—Approximately 1,000 fans today saw last year's champion Culpeper A. C. defeat Orange in the first home game of the Valley League, 8 to 0.

Lefty McIntyre was on the mound for Culpeper and let the visitors down with three hits, while Lefty White, W. and M. hurler, now managing Orange, was touched for 12 hits, seven for extra bases.

McIntyre, in rare form, was seldom in danger, and aided the cause with a double.

Culpeper's victory today was its second of the season in the league; the locals shut out Waynesboro Sunday in their opening game, 8 to 0.

Boosts Hits to 27.

In their two games the champions have garnered 27 hits.

Culpeper plays Harrisonburg away on Saturday night, and will be hosts to Heurich Brewers here on Sunday.

Cumberland Golf Title Annexed by Catherman

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 11.—Charles S. "Bill" Catherman, jr., defeated James W. Beacham by the score of 10 and 9 in the 36-hole final for the spring golf championship of the Cumberland Country Club.

R. E. Murray won the second flight title by defeating H. E. Martin one up, while Albert B. Carlson took the third flight, winning over John Manley, 5 and 4. Charles L. Kopp won the fifth flight by default, while P. D. Collins copped the fourth from Edward F. Hanlon, 6 and 5. G. W. Seymour won the sixth flight, defeating Charles M. Stump, 4 and 3.

Show Will Open At Upperville Tomorrow

700 Entries Are Listed for 45th Two-Day Event; Grounds in Shape.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

UPPERVILLE, Va., June 11.—Everything is ready for the Upperville Horse and Colt Show, reputed to be the oldest show of its kind in America which will open Thursday morning for its forty-fifth annual exhibition and continue for two days.

The grounds have been placed in excellent condition.

Judging by the large number of prize winners included in the 700 entries listed for the event, the program will be filled with interesting numbers from start to finish. Here will be seen all of the champion hunters from the large Eastern stables. The competition is expected to be keen an dwell-filled classes are scheduled to perform on both days. Money prizes will total $2,600 and valuable cups will be given.

Enters 65 Horses.

Leading in the entries is Mrs. John Hay Whitney, with 65 listed. These will include not only her famous hunters but her gray drafts which she will bring from her Llangollen Farms. Dr. L. M. Allen has listed 35 entries. Probably the most noted Washington entry is Mrs. Margo Couzens Chewning's Repulsion, entered in a number of the hunter classes. The Beach Brothers have all of their well-known string.

The leading class on the first day's program is the registered half-bred 3-year-olds, which will be called at 12:40 p. m. A challenge bowl is offered for the best in this class.

Classes Are Listed.

The first class is called for 10 a. m., and is for heavy draft mares and foals; 10:10 a. m., heavy draft yearlings; 10:15 a. m., heavy draft 2-year-olds; 10:20 a. m., heavy draft 3-year-olds; 10:30 a. m., heavy draft 4-year-olds and over; 10:40 a. m., pure-bred stallions; 10:45 a. m., hunter improvement class yearlings; 11 a. m., heavy draft pairs, 4-year-olds and under; 11:10 a. m., remount class for yearlings; 11:20 a. m., hunter improvement class, 2-year-olds; 11:30 a. m., heavy draft pairs, 5-year-olds and over; 11:40 a. m., half-bred mares and foals; 11:50 a. m., four-horse teams; 12 m., 3-year-old lightweights, suitable to become hunters; 12:30 p. m., 3-year-olds, middle and heavy weights, suitable to become hunters; 12:40 a. m., registered half-bred 3-year-olds.

The afternoon program will start with the 3-year-old hunters at 2 p. m.; 2:30 p. m., lightweight green hunters; 3 p. m., road hacks, half-bred; 3:15 p. m., hunters, 4-year-olds and under; 3:45 p. m., the Founder's Cup class; 4:15 p. m., middle and heavy weight green hunters; 4:45 p. m., heavy-weight hunters; 5 p. m., handicap hunters.

Only One D. C. Tennis Player Survives

Mary Cootes Advances to Second Round Doubles at Baltimore.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

BALTIMORE, June 11.—After offering stubborn resistance, all but one of the players from the Washington area passed out of the annual Maryland State Women's tennis championships here today. Mary Cootes, of Alexandria, sixth ranking player of the District, went into the second round of the doubles play.

Paired with Margaret Anderson, of Richmond, Miss Cootes advanced at the expense of Mrs. Dorette Miller and Sara Moore, No. 1 ranking team of Washington, 6—3, 2—6, 7—5.

Reba Kirson, new resident of Washington and No. 1 ranking player of the Middle Atlantic section, was eliminated by Charlotte Darling, of Philadelphia, third seeded player, 5—7, 6—0, 6—4. Mrs. Miller fought a game but losing battle against Anna Dayette, of Baltimore, finally being eliminated by scores of 4—6, 11—9, 7—5.

Miss Moore fell before Theodosia Smith, of Pasadena, Calif., No. 1 seeded player, 6—3, 6—1, and Miss Cootes was eliminated by her doubles partner, Miss Anderson, another seeded player, 6—4, 7—5. All were third-round matches.

Jockey Coucci Up, Cheshire Scores

Exhibit Runs Second to Whitney Entry.

By the Associated Press.

Aqueduct Race Track, N. Y., June 11.—Mrs. Payne Whitney's popular Greentree silks were flaunted to a galloping victory when Cheshire, second in his last two starts at Belmont Park, won the Fire Island purse by five lengths over a good track here this afternoon.

The chestnut son of St. Germans, with Silvio Coucci aboard, was a split choice with G. I. Bostwick's Ariel Cross and proved far superior to six other 3-year-olds.

Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin's Exhibit, recently second in the Swift Stakes, was an easy second, three lengths before Brown Twig, representing Mrs. R. H. Heighe. Ariel Cross was fourth. Dasher wheeled at the start and was left. The time for the mile was 1:38 4-5.

Bulls Sweep Stocks Upward To a New High

Rails Take Lead Near Close With Spirited Advances.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 11.—The bull team today swept the stock market bears aside and crossed the goal line to new high territory for 1935 for the second successive session.

Rail shares, laggards in early dealings when industrials were the leaders, came up toward the close to head the advance. Gains of major fractions to 2 points or more were common enough in both these divisions.

Utilities, too, got ahead, but on a more conservative scale, as traders and investors awaited the Senate vote on the Dieterich amendment to the utility bill. Defeat of the amendment, which its opponents charged would have emasculated the holding-company abolition feature of the Wheeler-Rayburn bill was not announced until after the end of trading, and then by the narrow vote of 45 to 44.

The Associated Press average for 60 stocks, rising .7 of a point to 43.6, was accompanied to new high ground by the 30 industrials included in the compilation, up .7 of a cent at 59.9, and by the 15 utilities at 31.3, up .5 of a point. The 15 rails used in the calculation, despite a lift of .8 of a point at 23.3, were still well below the year's best of 27.6. The industrials, however, are within striking distance of the peak for 1934, at 61.4.

Federal Land Banks Call $269,000,000

4½ Per Cent Bonds Will Be Replaced at a Lower Rate.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 11.—The 12 Federal Land Banks today called for retirement on July 1, $269,000,000 of their 4½ per cent bonds. These securities, variously callable in 1933, 1934 and 1935, were due in 1943, 1953, 1954 and 1955.

In connection with the redemption, W. I. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit Administration, said:

"The 4½ per cent bonds have been selling at substantial premiums, indicating that the callable bonds can be replaced by consolidated bonds bearing a lower rate of interest."

Arrangements are being made, he added, for a new issue of consolidated bonds, which will be offered soon to provide funds for redemption of the 4½ per cent bonds. Similar financing was undertaken a year ago, when $131,400,000 in 4 per cent securities were sold to retire a like amount of 4¾ per cent bonds of the individual banks, and again last April, when $162,000,000 of 3¼ per cent obligations were marketed to refund their $162,500,000 5 per cent bonds redeemed on May 1.

Holders of the bonds affected by the present call will be given preference in allotment of this new issue.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

Renewed weakness in French francs featured foreign exchange trading yesterday. A new low under the French currency dropped 0.90 of a cent to 6.6015 cents after the dollar had made slight gains earlier in the day to equivalents of 6.6055 cents.

Sentiment in the dollar was a trifle lower at 4.93¼ to the pound sterling, and in terms of sterling the French franc declined 3 cents to 74.75.

Other bear currencies, including Dutch guilders and Swiss francs were from 12 to 15 cents lower as extensive switching operations from gold bloc francs to sterling got under way in leading centers.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 11.—May shipments of finished steel products by the U. S. Steel Corporation were 598,915 tons, compared with 591,728 in April, an increase of 7,187 tons. For five months ended May 31 shipments totaled 2,975,691 tons, compared with 2,693,558 in the first five months of 1934.

Cotton Higher; Market Quiet

December Is 3 Points Lower but Other Months Gain.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 11.—Cotton closed irregularly higher today after fluctuations over a range of 11 to 15 points in a relatively quiet market. At the close December was 3 points lower and other months unchanged to 5 points net higher.

Initial quotations showed gains of 2 to 4 points in sympathy with relatively steady Liverpool cables but demand otherwse was restricted and prices soon eased under light scattered selling. More favorable weather, increased fertilizer sales and continued Washington uncertainities were mentioned as market factors. Moderate continental selling appeared in the afternoon as the French franc weakened, but final prices were steadier on trade buying and covering.

Municipal Bond Prices Tend to Recede From Recent Peak Levels; Rivalry of New Corporate Issues, Concern Over Adverse Legislation, Causes.

By a Special Correspondent.

New York, June 11.—Municipal bond prices, which had advanced to extremely high levels in recent months, appear now to have rounded a peak. Yields on new issues have averaged somewhat higher, while the volume of new municipal offerings has declined.

Three major causes are suggested by municipal bond dealers to explain the recent halt in the spectacular rise in municipal bond prices, apart from factors affecting bond quotations in general. In the first place, the moderate revival in new corporate financing that has taken place has taken the edge off the scarcity of gilt-edge bonds to some extent, even though the offerings have been almost entirely refunding in character. Until recently, the bulk of new financing, apart from Federal Government issues, has been for municipal account. In the month of May, new corporate issues were almost twice as large as municipal offerings.

Rise in Indebtedness Causes Some Concern.

A second factor has been concern felt among institutional and well-informed private investors as to the financial status of municipalities which are increasing their indebtedness at the present time. Last year witnessed a marked improvement in tax collections all over the country, a natural response to general business improvement. However, Federal Government aid continues an important factor in maintaining the financial soundness of many a municipal government. If a change should occur in Federal budgetary policy it is recognized that the effect on municipal credit may be far from happy in a number of instances.

Of the $533,000,000 of new municipal financing announced for the first five months of this year, it it true that fully $200,000,000 was for refunding purposes. However, the other $333,000,000 constituted a increase in indebtedness, and will cause a corresponding rise in future debt service charges.

A third factor that has tended to hold back municipal bond prices, following an advance into new high territory for many such obligations, has been the introduction or enactment of laws affecting bondholders by many State legislatures. If upheld in the courts, many of these measures would impair the position of holders of affected municipal obligations. In some States such measures take the form of refunding statutes, which permit municipalities to sell new bonds to refund at maturity obligations that were originally issued for a stated duration. Especially in the case of bonds issued to finance a specific improvement or public work, such refunding tends to undermine one of the cardinal principles of sound municipal financing—that bonds to finance improvements of limited life be repaid as the improvements wear out.

The recent ruling of the attorney general of Missouri indicates, on the other hand, a tendency for administrative officials to interpret old laws in a manner less favorable to bondholders. This ruling was that bonds issued by the State and its subdivisions are callable at any time for refunding, into lower coupon obligations, even though they contain no redemption provision. As a result, trading in Missouri bonds has been virtually suspended lately, and St. Louis failed to obtain a bid when it offered $1,800,000 of its obligations for sale last week. This provision would make it impossible for Missouri obligations to rise above par to any extent, since they would be callable at that price at the will of the issuer.

Tax and Readjustment Laws Passed Also.

In other cases unfavorable legislative developments affecting municipal bonds take the form of laws relaxing tax collections or broadening tax exemptions. One type of statute particularly disturbing to bondholders proposes to facilitate readjustment of indebtedness of States, cities and other public borrowing units, such as the Florida two-year moratorium law passed twice by the State Legislature, but each time vetoed by the Governor.

Stronger municipal borrowers with good debt records are not expected to resort to debt readjustment or repudiation because of new lax State statutes. However, the trend toward relaxing legislative safeguards for holders of municipal bonds makes for increased caution and a more selective attitude on the part of larger investors in municipal bonds.

Apart from prevailing extremely easy money conditions, the chief factor of strength supporting municipal bond quotations is the tax exemption feature. As the Federal Government has now called in its long-term bonds that enjoy substantial tax exemption, and as Federal short-term issues have been bid up by banks and other institutional buyers so that they return almost nominal yields, a shortage of tax-exempt securities has been created. Hence, investors subject to the higher income tax brackets are attracted to municipal bonds so long as yields on good issues remain within reason.

However, when they tend to fall to very low and even nominal levels, as has been the case latterly, then the benefits of tax exemption disappear. There is not enough income for the investor then to make it worth while for him to buy municipal bonds rather than equally good corporate obligations which give a substantially larger yield.

Cotton Loans Program Is Hit By MacFadden

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

Government cotton loans are destroying the cotton growing industry of this country, John H. McFadden, jr., of George H. McFadden & Bro., international cotton merchants, and president of the New York Cotton Exchange, charged yesterday.

In a sweeping recommendation for modification of the present system of helping the cotton farmer, McFadden urged that either the growers be given additional land rental payments or that a domestic allotment plan of cotton control be adopted.

Unless the present Federal policy of supporting prices by loans is discontinued, McFadden declared, American cotton growers will lose for all time their world markets for the staple.

Foreign Production 35 Per Cent.

"Ignoring the fact that foreign countries have produced 35 to 40 per cent of the world cotton crops for over a century," McFadden said, "and have acreage available for cotton growing equal to many times the cotton acreage in this country, the United States is undertaking to raise the world price of cotton by cutting down its own production and by withholding millions of bales under price-supporting loans.

"Normally, this country should make an average of about 15,000,000 bales of cotton per year," he said. "Two years ago, under the crop reduction program, we made about 12,700,000 bales, thereby curtailing our output by about 2,300,000 as compared with normal. Last year, we went much further in restricting our production, and made only about 9,500,00 bales, thereby cutting our output by about 5,500,000 bales.

"The derogatory effects on our cotton trade were increased by the loan of 10 cents a pound on the 1933 crop, and of 12 cents a pound on the 1934 crop. In consequence close to 6,000,000 bales of our cotton was virtually impounded as collateral under those loans, or otherwise held for growers' account.

"Thus by crop reduction and by the loan system the offerings of American cotton in world markets this season were reduced by around 10,000,000 or 11,000,000 bales as compared to normal. This tremendous curtailment of offerings of American cotton in world markets has had the inevitable effect of pricing American cotton out of line with foreign growths."

Local Firm Adds Partners.

Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath, members of the New York Stock Exchange, announced yesterday that Paul D. Howe had been admitted to the firm as a general partner and that Eckley B. Coxe 3rd had been admitted as a limited partner. Both are resident in Philadelphia and will be affiliated with the office in that city.

Other partners of the firm, which opened its main office here in 1931, are Hugh D. Auchincloss, Chauncey G. Parker, jr., Albert G. Redpath, Richard P. Dunn, Harold C. Patterson and Alfred Putnam. The firm has offices also in Baltimore, Wilkes-Barre and New York.

Both of the new partners have had long experience in the investment and brokerage business. Mr. Howe has been associated with the firm since the establishment of the Philadelphia office. He is a graduate of St. Paul's School and Brown University. Mr. Coxe has been engaged in the investment business both in Philadelphia and Chicago. He is a graduate of Yale University.

California Oil Flow Highest Since 1931

Los Angeles, June 11.—California's oil production for the week ended June 8, with restrictions removed, climbed to a four-year high, estimated at 356,000 barrels daily, based on a six-day official report. This was an increase of 91,500 barrels daily over the preceding week's estimate.

Wheat Report Ignored by Pit

Declines Despite the Bullish Forecast by the Government.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 11.—The bullish Government forecast as to winter wheat production fell flat as a grain market influence today and prices declined fractionally in a light trade.

The Federal statisticians' estimate that the 1935 domestic winter wheat crop would reach 441,000,000 bushels, compared with 405,000,000 produced last year, was a failure marketwise because many traders refused to believe the result would be that small. Although 10,000,000 bushels above the May 1 official figure, indicating improved crop prospects as a result of rains, the estimate was 28,000,000 below the average of five private authorities' forecasts for June 1. Some observers commented that actual production is usually above the June 1 figure.

After an opening display of firmness, wheat closed unchanged to ⅝ cents below the previous finish, July, 83½@83⅝, and corn was unchanged to ⅜ off, July, 81⅞@82. Oats lost ¼ to ¾; rye ⅝ of ⅞, and barley was unchanged.

Bond Market In Brisk Rise, Rails Leading

Declines Fractionally Advances of From 1 to 4 Points.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 11.—The corporate bond market moved up impressively today under the spur of a rush of buying among low-priced railroad issues.

Attempted explanations of the rapid rise in the carriers, which embraced practically all of those that have shared in each major upturn of the past two years, varies greatly, but the 6.8 per cent increase in net operating income of class one roads in April and indications of substantially larger crops as well as improvement in general business conditions calculated to add to traffic, received prominent mention.

Advances ranging from 1 to 4 points were turned in by Nickel Plate 6s at 63½, Cotton Belt 4s at 82½, Baltimore & Ohio 4½s at 50¼, Central Pacific 5s at 81½ and Southern Railway 4s at 40⅞. There were many others improving a point or so. The Associated Press averages for 20 rail bonds advanced .8 of a point to 80.7, the largest gain in about a month.

Trading in Government bonds was extremely dull and final prices were a mixture of small gains and losses. The largest volume was in Treasury 3s of 1951 which ended 2-32nds lower at 103.22. Transfers aggregated $15,094,000, par value, compared with $9,304,000 on Monday.

Philco Makes Contract With Com. Credit Co.

Baltimore, June 11.—An exclusive wholesale and retail contract providing time-payment financing for the radio instruments of Philco Radio & Television Corporation was announced today by H. L. Wynegar, president of Commercial Credit Co. of Baltimore.

This new Philco-Commercial credit contract, in the opinion of Philco officials, will meet a definite need of the public at the present time for a sound and low cost deferred payment plan.

Indians Beaten In Twin Bill By Macks

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, June 11. — The Philadelphia Athletics walked off with both games of a double-header with the Indians today, winning the first, 4 to 2, and the second, 5 to 1.

The Mackmen pushed over three runs in the ninth inning of the opener for their vistr victory, and piled up five runs in the first inning of the second game.

Willis Hudlin and George Blaeholder engaged in a pitching duel for eight innings of th einitial battle. In the ninth inning Cramer beat the bal lto home plate on Higgins' bounder, Johnson scored after the ball hit him on the back as he dashed home and Warstler's fly brought in the third run.

Mahaffey, Philadelphia pitcher, held the Tribe to seven hits in the nightcap. Johnson's homer scored three of the five Philadelphia runs in the second game.

Reds Trim Giants In Double-Header

Rookie Wins Opener, 4-1; Score of Second, 3-1.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 11.—For the first time this year, the New York Giants lost both ends of a double-header today when they fell before the Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 1, in the opening contest and, 3 to 1, in the second.

After Tony Freitas had set the league leaders down with seven scattered blows in the first game while the Reds were handing Clydell Castleman his second defeat of the season, Leroy Herrmann, making his first big league start, limited the Giants to five hits in the nightcap.

The Reds picked up their runs singly in the first game, the last coming in the eighth when Ernie Lombardi found one of the offerings of Al Smith, who had relieved Castleman in the seventh, for a home run.

All of the Reds' runs in the second came in the fifth, when Adam Comorosky landed on one of Fred Fitzsimmons' pitches for a circuit drive with two mates on bases.

Keyser Nine Wins 6th; Wilson Grants 5 Hits

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Keyser, W. Va., June 11.—Arthur Scalli's fifth homer of the season with Corbacio on base in the fifth, and the five-hit pitching of Russell Wilson, who fanned 11 and increased his season's total to 46 victims, were the predominating features as the Keyser Golden Knights chalked up their sixth consecutive victory over the Lonaconing Athletics in a Cumberland and Georges Creek League contest here. The score was 7 to 1.

THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers,
1451 Eye Street Northwest.

Trustee's Sale of the Valuable Eight-Story and Basement Brick and Stucco Apartment House Known as "Corcoran Courts Apartments," Located at the Northeast Corner of 23rd and D Streets Northwest.

Because of default in the terms and conditions of, and by virtue of a certain deed of trust executed by Corcoran Courts Corporation, a Delaware corporation, dated July 1, 1925, recorded among the land records of the District of Columbia in Liber 5372, folio 63 et seq., and by leave of court in said Equity Cause No. 53,025, will 53025 in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, the undersigned substituted trustee, by appointment of said court in Equity Cause No. 53,025, will offer for sale at public auction in front of the premises on WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1935, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia: Lots numbered two (2) to ten (10), inclusive, in Emily Fuller's subdivision of lots in square numbered sixty (60), as per plat recorded in the office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber H. D. C. at folio 40, being known as premises situate at the northeast corner of Twenty-third and D streets northwest, Washington, D. C. Together with all and singular the screens, curtains, fixtures, window shades, ice boxes, ranges, stoves, furnaces, boilers, engines, dynamos, machinery, elevators and electric equipment, vacuum cleaners, mail chutes, refrigerating, heating, ventilating, telephone, gas and electric fixtures and fittings, and other fittings, fixtures and personal property thereon which said trustee is authorized by said deed of trust to sell and convey.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase price to be paid in cash on or before the 10th day of August, 1935, balance in two equal instalments, payable on or before one and two years from date of sale, respectively, with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from day of sale, said interest payable semiannually, and to be secured by first deed of trust on the property sold, or all cash at the option of the purchaser. The said trustee will receive no bid from anyone offering to bid who shall not at or before the hour of sale, or any adjournment thereof deposit, with said trustee, as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, a deposit of $15,000, either in cash or certified check on a local bank or trust company, made or indorsed payable to the undersigned trustee, or in lieu thereof bonds of the par value of $30,000, in form transferable by delivery, secured by said deed of trust, said bonds to have all unpaid coupons attached thereto. The deposit of any unsuccessful bidder will be returned to him immediately after the sale. In case any successful bidder shall fail to comply with his purchase by August 10, 1935, in accordance with the said terms of sale, said deposit may be forfeited at the option of the said trustee, or without forfeiting the same said trustee may avail itself of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser. The said trustee reserves the right to reject any and all bids and withdraw the property from sale. Adjustments with respect to taxes, assessments, insurance, rentals, income from operation of property, interest, and all other adjustments shall be made as of the date of sale. Said property is now in possession of and is being operated by Morris Cafritz, as receiver, appointed in said Equity Cause No. 50,717, but by order of court entered in said cause on or about June 10, 1935, said receiver has been directed to deliver possession of said property to the purchaser at said sale upon transfer of title from said trustee to said purchaser, and from date of sale to date of transfer, said receiver will manage and operate said property as agent of the purchaser. The trustee will not be responsible for any bills or expenses incurred in the management or operation of said property. All expense of conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., is to be at the cost of the purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with on or before August 10, 1935; otherwise the said trustee reserves the right to forfeit said deposit or to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser upon the foregoing terms, after seven days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C. AMERICAN SECURITY AND TRUST COMPANY, By WM. L. WILLIS, Vice President, Substituted Trustee under said deed of trust from Corcoran Courts Corporation, appointed in Equity Cause No. 53,025, Supreme Court, D. C. Attest: A. H. Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

THE strange, natural pavement—a mosaic of smooth, level blocks, cemented together—at Eaglehawk Neck, in Tasmania, is a riddle of natural science. It has even been suggested that some vanished prehistoric race of builders constructed the pavement—so even and wellfitted are the cemented slabs.

The blocks are of silicious clay composition, with the cracks between filled in smoothly with a mixture of sand and a cement-like material that approximates concrete. The natural pavement stretches along the coast for about 400 yards.

Hack Wilson was catching for Martinsburg, W. Va., in the Blue Ridge League, when he broke his leg 14 years ago. The injury made it impossible for him to return to catcher's position—so he became an outfielder. In this position he became a major league star—a home run king whose 1930 record of 56 homers has never been bettered in the National League.

Of all clawed animals, only the members of the cat family have the ability to retract their claws so that they do not touch the ground in ordinary walking. A special set of muscles gives them this ability.

Tomorrow: The lucky landslide.

jibed in several instances with that told yesterday by "Googy" Carnell, the ace prosecution witness, but which differed in some important respects. He denied ever having seen or talked with Mrs. Lyddane prior to his arrest, in denial of Carnell's assertion that he had brought Boland to the blonde bank clerk's apartment and of his own repudiated "confession." He admitted Carnell wanted him to approach Mr. Lyddane, however, whom he characterized as a "good connected man" and who, he said, was going to get Carnell a job.

The reason he was to approach Lyddane had to do with some mysterious photographs, hitherto unmentioned in the trial.

"They were supposed to be of Mr. Lyddane's wife and a man," he said.

"Did you ever agree to kill Francis S. Lyddane?" he was asked by his counsel again and again in cross-examination.

"No," he answered in each instance.

He denied ever approaching Harry Thomas or William Brown to get them to do the job.

Asked in cross examination why he voluntarily waved extradition to Maryland after his arrest in Washington, he denied receiving any promise or being threatened in any way. The reason was that he was "suffering unbearable tortures in No. 8's cell," he said.

He said he was in the cell for about 7 or 7½ hours.

Asked if he had ever been accused of carrying concealed weapons, he shifted in his chair, looked at Fred Maltby, his lawyer, and asked:

"Do you object to that?"

His attorney did, but Boland had to admit that in 1930 he was sent to the District jail for 300 days on this charge.

"I done 90," he said, "and the judge thought I had done enough so he commuted the sentece."

Asked by States Attorney Pugh, who was dressed today in a new Palm Beach suit, about the pictures he had referred to, he said:

"I never seen 'em."

"What were you supposed to do?"

"I was to approach Mr. Lyddane."

"What were you to tell him?"

"Tell him I was aware of the photos."

"What kind of photos were they?"

"Carnell told me they were terrible. He never did say what they were."

Tell of Typewriter.

The morning session was enlivened by a parade of witnesses brought by the State to show that only Mrs. Lyddane had official access to the typewriter on which the "Googy" note, which startled yesterday's courtroom, was allegedly written. They are all officers of the Farmer's Bank & Trust Co., where she was a secretary and clerk—Frank Maynard, treasurer; Richard F. Green, president, and Hilton Darby. Each was asked if he had written the note and each denied it.

Chief Judge Urner objected mildly to this questioning and at his request Pugh and Maltby agreed that it was unnecessary to question all employes of the bank on this score, which Pugh had intended to do.

Boland's "confession" was read into the record. In it he said that Carnell was acting as contact for "Mrs. La Dane" who "wanted her husband killed and offered $2,000."

"I offered to act as agent for a mob," it read in part. "She gave me the make, tag number and place of employment and specified the job be done on his pay day, March 28. I had two conversations with Mrs. La Dane, with Carnell present."

Boland said he made this confession because the police had told him he would have to stay in the cold cell at Station 8, in Washington, unless he made a statement. He said that he told the police he would sign a statement "but it's not going to mean a damned thing."

"So far as I'm concerned," he said today, "there's no truth in that statement at all."

Sergt. J. A. McAuliffee, of the Montgomery County police, testified that Boland made the statement without duress, that he did complain of the cold in the cell, and that he came to Maryland of his own free will. Sergt. Joseph B. Nolte concurred in this statement. Both were present the night of Boland's arrest in Washington.

When Mrs. Lyddane goes on trial tomorrow morning, in a new dress and with her husband at her side, it will be before a jury. A panel of 22 men will be on hand. There are no women on Maryland juries and those on the list are mostly middle-aged farmers from the surrounding countryside. The three judges, Chief Judge Hammond Urner and Associate Judges Charles W. Woodward and Arthur D. Willard, will be on the bench. Heading her battery of defense counsel will be red-faced State Senator Stedman Prescott, with Robert B. Peter, jr., and Kenneth Lyddane, counsel to the Montgomery County liquor board and distant cousin of the man for the plotting of whose murder Mrs. Lyddane will be tried.

While the tactics of the defense counsel, in securing a separate trial for Boland, forced the State to show its hand, surprise witnesses are predicted and last night it was believed that Mrs. Josephine Beall, who Mrs. Lyddane is also accused of plotting to kill, will take the stand. She has never told of her connection with the strange case. Trial starts at 9:30 a. m. and a large crowd is anticipated.

G. Lyster Martin.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., June 11.—G. Lyster Martin, 32, died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Martin, here Saturday. At the time of his death he was foreman of the Landis Machine Co. here. Surviving are his parents, his wife, and three children.

Funeral services were held today, conducted by the Rev. B. Clinton Ritz, D. D., pastor of the Lutheran Church. Burial was in Green Hill Cemetery.

Talmadge Credentials Vanish on Way Here

By the Associated Press.

Still lost:

What was generally conceded to be a perfectly good set of credentials for Gov. Talmadge, of Georgia, to be Democratic national committeeman from the Cracker State.

Hugh Howell, chairman of the State Democratic executive committee, said in Atlanta he sent the papers to Postmaster General Farley special delivery almost two weeks ago, but Democratic headquarters said yesterday nothing had been seen of them here.

Talmadge, one of the severest Roosevelt ian critics within the Democratic fold, was named by the State committee to succeed the late Maj. John S. Cohen, Atlanta journalist.

Under party custom there apparently was nothing Farley and the national Democratic organization could do but accept the credentials if they arrived.

New Stock Eliminates Accrued Dividends

Jersey City, N. J., June 11 (AP).—Stockholders of the American Crystal Sugar Co. today approved the recapitalization plan for elimination of 68 per cent accumulated dividends on the 7 per cent preferred stock by exchange of one and six-tenths shares of new 6 per cent preferred for each share of the old stock.

It is the intention of the board of directors to declare in the immediate future regular quarterly dividends on the new stock, according to W. N. Wilds, president.

Sales of Copper Make Sharp Gain

New York, June 11 (AP).—A sharp increase in sales of domestic copper following extremely sluggish demand in the wake of invalidation of NRA codes was reported in local metal circles today.

Sales of "Blue Eagle" metal on Monday totaled approximately 4,468,000 pounds, the largest single day sales since May 11. It was reported that practically the entire amount went to fabricators. The price remained unchanged at 8 cents a pound.

Japanese Take Complete Rule Of North China

Republic Names Officials as Dictated; Troops Stream South.

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Tientsin, June 12 (Wednesday). A "new deal" in eastern Asia with Japan in complete control of the Peiping-Tientsin area below the Great Wall was inaugurated today.

The Chinese republic named military and civil officials designated by Tokyo's military chieftains and bowed to the demands which placed the Japanese in power in a buffer zone between nationalist China and Manchukuo.

All Kuomintang (People's Party) branches in Tientsin and Peiping were closed this morning, in compliance with explicit orders from Nanking, dictated by the Japanese.

The party officers were abolished throughout Hopei Province. Archives were shipped to Nanking. Underlings received two months' pay on dismissal from government service.

Submission Complete.

The move definitely ends Nanking's semblance of control in the northern zone and marks utter compliance with Tokyo's dictates, as predicted.

Thousands of Chinese troops streamed out of the northern zones toward the south. They were disgruntled but obeyed orders and withdrew in view of Japan's threats at violence and Nanking's determination to avoid war with her imperial neighbor.

Maj. Gen. Kenji Doihara, chief of Japanese intelligence in Manchukuo and "mystery man" in the Manchurian adventure, arrived from Mukden by airplane for a conference with Japanese chiefs in the newly controlled zone here.

"The ultimate solution of the north China situation depends on the manner in which these demands are fulfilled."

Ultimatum is Denied.

Japanese sources said Gen. Ho Ying-chin, Nanking war minister, who was forced to accept Tokyo demands in negotiations at Peiping in the last three days, had telegraphed his resignation, saying he desired to leave north China as soon as possible.

However, Gen. Ho's secretary said the war minister had not yet actually resigned.

Japanese miiltary officials reiterated denials of two reports abroad: First, that they planned to restore the "boy emperor" of China to the dragon throne in Peiping (he is now Emperor Kang Teh in Manchukuo), and second, that an ultimatum had been delivered the Chinese.

Lieut. Col. T. Takahashi, of the Peiping staff, had "complained" to Gen. Ho on the burning of telegraph poles between Peiping and Tientsin yesterday by withdrawing Chinese soldiers, but the headquarters insisted no ultimatum was delivered or contemplated.

Two Japanese Warships.

Lieut.-Col. Takashi Sakai, chief of staff in the Tientsin garrison, said the conference of Japanese officers, including Doihara, had discussed the future policy, but that they were not prepared to reveal details.

The Japanese destroyers Fuji and Tsuta were moored off the Bund, facing the former Russian concession (now canceled). When the warships passed through the international bridge over the Haiho River to their anchorages Japanese sailors and Chinese along the nearby banks gazed in mild curiosity at each other, passing good-natured jokes.

The turnover proceeded calmly and both Tientsin and Peiping were quiet. Withdrawal of all the Nanking forces to posts far to the south was expected to be completed within a week.

Mrs. Clara Miller.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., June 11.—Mrs. Clara Miller, 65, wife of Charles H. Miller, operator of a summer hotel at Pen Mar, near here, died at the Waynesboro Hospital Saturday.

Surviving are her husband and one daughter, Mrs. J. Meri Brown, of Waynesboro. Funeral services were held today, the Rev. B. Clinton Ritz, D. D., pastor of the Lutheran Church, officiating. Burial was in Green Hill Cemetery.

Miss Anna White.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 11.—Funeral services for Miss Anna White, 72, one of the best-known residents of Bridgewater, were held in her home this morning. Burial was in Greenwood Cemetery, at Bridgewater.

Miss White died last night. She was one of the town's oldest residents and an invalid for a number of years.

Surviving are two brothers and three sisters, all of Bridgewater.
